Docket No. 97E0060-PP1

To Eleanor J. Mohamed of Quincy, MA and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Philip R. Henderson, Jr. of 523 Washington St. B-9, Pembroke in the County of Plymouth representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon now known and numbered as 9 Action Street, situated in Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, being lot 19 in Block 4, Section 5 on a plan by Whitman and Howard, dated 1,1915, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Plan Book 77, Plan 3725, Bounded and described as follows:

Southeasterly by Acton Street, fifty (50) feet, Southwesterly by lot 20 in said Block on said plan, seventy five (75) feet, Northwesterly by lot 15 in said Block 4 on said plan, fifty (50) feet, Northeasterly by lot 18 in said Block on said plan, seventy five (75) feet. Containing, according to said plan, three thousand seven hundred fifty (3,750) square feet of land setting forth that he desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than $145,000.00 and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham, 649 High St., P.O. Box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the seventeenth day of September 1997, the return day of this citation.

Kindergarten orientation will be held Wednesday, Sept. 3 through Friday, Sept. 5. Kindergarten classes will start Wednesday, Sept. 10.

School hours are the same as when school closed in June. See the chart accompanying this story for specific hours.

There are a total of 180 school days for students mandated by the state. Teachers are required to add two extra days to their own total and will be in school next Tuesday as well as the day after the students are dismissed for the summer.

The last day of classes is scheduled for June 16. Inclement weather could extend the school year, DeCristofaro said, although he noted that there is no specific number of days that have been set aside for snowstorms.

"If we have, say, 10 snow days, then we have to make up 10 days," he said.

DeCristofaro said this will be an exciting year for the Quincy Public Schools for a couple of reasons, including the opening of the new Clifford Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point which is scheduled for January.

"I think that not only the Quincy Point community, but also the entire Quincy Public Schools community, is excited about the opening of a new school that is on the cutting edge technologically," he said. "I think the teachers are excited about working in a brand new building, and the kids will love it."

He added that the new state tests that will be administered to students in Grades 4, 8 and 10 as mandated by the Education Reform Act of 1993 also will make the year most interesting.

"I think this year will be exceptionally challenging, and parents, teachers and students will be prepared for that challenge, including those tests," said DeCristofaro.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon was on vacation at press time.

coordinator, patrol division commander, communications and computer operations commander."

Sheets had to give a public reason for selecting Frane as the new chief because Kelly scored higher on the Civil Service examination for the position. Kelly scored an 89 and Frane an 85.

Frane has said he is looking forward to the responsibility of the $81,120-a-year job and has cited "the transition into community policing" as being possibly the greatest challenge he will face as chief.

Frane joined the Quincy Police Department as a patrolman in December 1971 and was promoted to sergeant, lieutenant and captain in January 1980, April 1987 and November 1992 respectively.

He lives in Weymouth with his wife Elaine. They have four children: Thomas Jr., 26; Brian, 23; Kevin, 18 and Erin, 15.

As New Police Chief:
Frane Sees Community Policing A Challenge

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Thomas Frane, the city's new police chief, has pledged to do his best as Quincy's top law enforcement officer and said he sees the transition into community policing as the greatest challenge he faces.

More than 150 people were on hand last Friday to see the swearing-in of Frane as the 14th chief of the Quincy Police Department.

Frane was sworn-in by City Clerk Joseph Shea during a City Hall ceremony that was attended by family members, friends, law enforcement officials from Quincy and a number of other communities, elected officials from the state, county and city levels and Quincy department heads.

The new chief, who was brief in his remarks, opened with a moment of silence for three New Hampshire State Troopers who were recently killed in the line of duty. He then introduced his family members, praised Capt. Terence Kelly--Frane's only competition for the chief's position--spoke of the pride his late parents feel about his promotion, and vowed to devote all of his energies to his new job.

"I will do my best to lead this city in the coming years," said Frane.

Frane said he sees the transition into community policing as perhaps the greatest challenge he faces as chief. Quincy's community policing program has

Division Over Downtown Site
Juvenile Court Draws Support And Opposition

The new regional juvenile court proposed for the Parkingway in downtown is drawing both support and opposition.

The proposed site is the building at 152 Parkingway owned by Reuben A. Grossman Realty LLC, which has been selected by the state Division of Capital Planning and Operations (DCPO) for the separate juvenile court that would serve Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph, Milton, Holbrook and Cohasset.

The building owner is being represented by Mike Kenealy of Key Realty of Quincy--the brokers for the proposal--who says bringing the court to the site would allow the owner the financial flexibility to make as much as $2 million in wiring, plumbing, landscaping and other improvements.

The main opposition appears to stem from concern the court would reduce retail parking spaces and that it would not fit in with revitalization plans and hopes for the area.

Among those supporting the proposal are: Congressman William Delahunt, state Sen. Michael Morrissey, Reps. Michael Bellotti and Stephen Tobin, Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott and Key Realty.

Among those opposing it are: Mayor James Sheets, Quincy 2000, and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

The Quincy Business Council of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce has not taken a stand on the issue but has invited Juvenile Court Clerk Magistrate James Poirier to discuss the proposal with members at a meeting Oct. 7.

Sheets has made it clear he does not want to see the court at the Parkingway site.

"I don't support the juvenile court coming to that location," the mayor said. "I've made that known to the appropriate state people. Now we'll just have to wait and see what happens."

Sheets cited the lack of parking as the main reason for his opposition, noting, "A juvenile court is not what you want in a very small, confined space in the retail area."

But McDermott, chairman of the City Council's Downtown and Economic Development Committee whose ward includes the site, said there are benefits that can be derived from the court's presence.

McDermott said the renovations the building owner has pledged to make at the site, an increased police presence in the area, and the possibility of using the court's location at the Parkingway to lobby the state for grant money for additional parking would all be positives that would result from the juvenile court coming to the Parkingway.

McDermott added that the building "has been a blight on Ward 3 for some time" and that aesthetic improvements would be particularly welcome at the site. He also noted that while parking is a concern, and that the court may not be the perfect use for the site, it would still be a step forward.

"I don't think the courthouse is necessarily a bad use. I'm a supporter of any individual landlord who wants to bring people into Quincy Center," he said.

Citywide Curbside Leaf Pickup Will Begin Oct. 14

Curbside leaf pickup will begin Tuesday, Oct. 14 and run for six weeks until Friday, Nov. 21.

Leaves will be picked up on the same day as regular trash by a separate truck. They should be put out for pickup either loose in uncovered trash barrels or in 30-gallon biodegradable kraft paper bags only. Leaves will not be accepted in plastic bags.

Since the fall of 1990 the City of Quincy, through its refuse contractor, Browning-Ferris Industries, has picked up leaves curbside for municipal composting. Leaves are brought to the decomposition pad at the Department of Public Works Corporation Yard at 55 Sea St. There, the leaves decompose into a rich loam, which is reused by the city and made available to residents at no charge.

This year, it will be mandatory to prepare leaves either loose in barrels, or use biodegradable 30-gallon kraft bags which automatically decompose along with the leaves.

Leaves will no longer be accepted in plastic bags for the following reasons: First, the State D.E.M. has imposed a statewide moratorium on plastic in landfills and second, although advertised as such, the plastic bags are not biodegradable and cost the city time and labor to remove from leaf piles before natural decomposition can occur.

The program has kept an estimated 20,000 tons of leaves out of landfills, thereby saving the city the associated costs over 5 1/2 years. The elimination of been successful in the city's Germantown section and is expected to be expanded considerably in the future.

Community policing is a concept that harkens back to the days of the "cop on the beat" who spends his time in a specific neighborhood and gets to know personally the residents as well as their concerns and problems.

Mayor James Sheets, who appointed Frane to his new post, said at Friday's ceremony that dropping crime rates in the city are indicative of a current nationwide trend and expressed confidence such good fortune will continue in Quincy.

"We sense a new change in America," said Sheets. "Crime is down, and that is not by accident. It is because of the ability of the law enforcement officer....to adjust and adapt and provide a new kind of leadership in a new era.

"We've been lucky to have an abundance of leadership in the Quincy Police Department....We're here today to pass the torch to a new generation....to a man who will have to take this city into the 21st century."

To Frane, the mayor added, "We are very, very comfortable in turning the reins of the Quincy Police Department into your capable hands."

City Council President Peter Kolson offered similar praise.

"We can be confident that all the gains we've had in the past will continue in the future," he said.

Outgoing Police Chief Francis Mullen, who retired last week after 41 years with the Quincy Police Department--including the last seven as chief--also was praised by Frane, Sheets and Kolson. He briefly outlined Frane's rise in the department from patrolman to sergeant to lieutenant to captain and said he knows his successor will do the chief's position justice.

"I am sure that he will serve the job with pride, with integrity, and with honor," said Mullen.

Following the ceremony, Boston Police Commissioner Paul Evans, a former classmate of Frane's at Boston State College, said Sheets made a wise choice in selecting the new chief.

"I think it's a great appointment," said Evans. "He (Frane) has big shoes to fill, because Franny Mullen is a great guy, but he'll serve with distinction. I don't think Quincy could have a better man for the job."

Sheets selected Frane over Kelly for the $81,120-a-year chief's position two weeks ago, citing "a broader base of experience in a numerous category of (police) jobs" as the reason.

Frane, a Weymouth resident, joined the Quincy Police Department as a patrolman in December 1971 and was promoted to sergeant, lieutenant and captain in January 1980, April 1987 and November 1992 respectively.

He has served the department in a variety of capacities, most recently as head of communications.

Frane holds a bachelor's degree in criminal justice and a master's degree in public administration, both from Boston State College.

He and his wife Elaine have four children: Thomas Jr., 26; Brian, 23; Kevin, 18 and Erin, 15.

Retires After 29 Years Service

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin Missing From School Scene

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Something was missing when the Quincy Public Schools opened for the new academic year last week.

Or rather, some*one* was missing. Someone very special.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, one of Quincy's two assistant school superintendents, retired two weeks ago after 29 years with the school system. Griffin, 60, has spent nearly half her life working for the schools and helped introduce a number of innovative educational programs.

Surprisingly, education was not always her intended career path. A lifelong resident of Quincy who attended the city's schools (Atherton Hough Elementary, the former Central Junior High and Quincy High), Griffin graduated from Boston University where she received bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees toward a career in clinical psychology.

Initially, she worked for several years for South Shore Mental Health in Quincy. Part of that position included doing consultation work for the schools, work that eventually made Griffin consider a career change.

"I was working with the principals and other administrators to promote good mental health within the schools and to identify children at risk," she said. "That's what first made me interested in education."

Her career with the Quincy Public Schools began when Mildred Harrison, the school system's director of guidance and research, decided to retire. School officials not only wanted to replace Harrison, but to expand the responsibilities of her position and give it a new title: director of pupil personnel services.

Griffin was hired as the first person to hold the new post.

"I think that's what made it so exciting for me," she said. "Since I was the first person to have the job, I could somehow shape it and develop it."

Griffin served as the pupil personnel services director for 19 years before being promoted to assistant school superintendent 10 years ago.

During her career, she helped introduce a number of new programs, including the Quincy Teen Mothers Program, which is now in its 19th year, and the Central Registration Process Program which allows students whose primary language is not English to register for classes at the same place, rather than in separate school buildings.

As assistant superintendent, she has dealt with pupil personnel issues--including those pertaining to guidance, special education, mental health and other areas--worked with the English as a Second Language program and programs designed for academically talented students, and performed various other administrative duties.

Griffin noted that the influx of minority students is perhaps the greatest change the Quincy Public Schools have seen in the past 29 years. When she first started her career in education, she noted, the student population was about 99 percent white, a number that has dropped today to approximately 75 percent.

She added that 9 percent of the public school students in Quincy currently do not speak English as their primary language.

Because her duties were largely administrative, Griffin was unable to meet personally with many students during the course of a school year. However, during the past 16 summers, she ran the Quincy Public Schools' Summer Institute for Academically Talented and Motivated Students which she says gave her great satisfaction.

"That somehow provided me with a balance so that it wasn't all administrative work that I did," said Griffin.

She said she is proud of all of the educational programs that have been developed in the past 29 years, noting, "I think we provide a number of very good options for students, and I think we've been fairly successful."

Asked what she will miss most about her job, Griffin said, "My colleagues. I've worked with some wonderful people, including principals, teachers, administrators and others. I've worked with five superintendents and they've all contributed something to the school system. I've enjoyed it very, very much."

Griffin was then asked to assess her own contributions to the Quincy Public Schools.

"I think I've made a difference," she said. "I'd liked to be remembered as a person who established a strong and effective department of human services that provided a variety of programs that helped our students to become the best learners they can possibly be, as well as (someone who is) leaving a staff of very excellent professionals in place as I leave."

As for the future, Griffin said she hopes to catch up on her reading, take some computer courses and spend more time with her friends.

"Part of the nature of my work is....a long day and very long nights," she said. "I feel it's time for a change for me. But I intend to remain in Quincy, and I intend to remain active.

"I hope I like retirement as much as my friends do. I haven't met anyone yet who doesn't like retirement, so we'll see what happens."

DR. CAROL LEE GRIFFIN, assistant school superintendent for the Quincy Public Schools, recently retired after 29 years with the school system. At left is Supt. Eugene Creedon, one of five superintendents with whom Griffin has worked.

Changes Planned At Registry's Quincy Office

State Sen. Michael Morrissey announces that the Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) Quincy branch office will undergo major enhancements to improve the quality of service.

Morrissey has been working and meeting with Registry officials and the Registrar to discuss areas of significant problems causing considerable delay in processing licensing and registration renewals.

"This is not a superficial change," said Morrissey. "Everything from the physical appearance of the location to new management procedures should improve services to those who are at the Quincy branch."

The Quincy branch will have an additional assistant branch manager, two computer systems dedicated to license renewals and the set-up area will be redesigned. The new location will be a more customer-friendly environment than before, Morrissey said.

"Hopefully we can work together with Registry personnel to shorten the line and wait, and help provide more accurate information to customers," he said.

Renovation of the Quincy branch office is expected to be completed by the end of September.

Frane's Rise To Chief

Three of the mayors who played key roles in the rise of Thomas Frane through the ranks to Quincy police chief were there to see him sworn in.

The three:

Arthur Tobin, who promoted Frane to sergeant--the crucial first step up the ladder--in 1980. Francis McCauley, who appointed him lieutenant in 1987. And, James Sheets who named him captain in 1992 and now, chief.

FRANE

Sheets interrupted his vacation in Pennsylvania to return for Frane's swearing-in ceremony last week in the packed second floor conference room in new City Hall.

McCauley later said he wasn't surprised to see Frane make chief. He recalled that as mayor whenever he discussed police personnel with the late Chief Francis Finn, the latter always referred to Frane as "a sharp, bright officer--a comer."

Guido Pettinelli, the former school safety officer, early saw "that something special" in Frane shortly after Frane was appointed to the police department by Mayor James McIntyre in 1971.

"You could see something special in him," said Pettinelli who remembered telling him: "You're going to be chief someday."

Pettinelli was also on hand when that "someday" came for Frane last week.

In his remarks, the new chief came through with humility and paid tribute to outgoing Chief Francis Mullen and to the man who almost became chief: Captain Terrence Kelly.

KELLY

Kelly had topped the civil service exam for chief but Sheets went with Frane for his "broader base of experience."

Kelly was at the swearing in ceremony and Frane made special note of how Kelly and his wife "were so gracious during the selection process." Kelly waved a sign of appreciation to Frane for his words.

Mullen, who praised Frane and pinned the chief's badge on him, was a 41-year veteran of the department, seven as chief.

Frane has 26 years in the department and at age 48 has 17 years ahead as chief before reaching mandatory retirement age 65.

That would be 10 years more than Mullen's tenure as chief. But seven less than Finn's 24.

The Quincy Police Department has had some outstanding chiefs down through the years--chiefs who have played major roles in giving Quincy its deserved reputation as a clean city.

Chief Frane has all the experience, skills and qualities to follow in their footsteps and make some big ones of his own.

Arts Council Accepting Grant Applications

The Quincy Arts Council is accepting applications for the 1997-98 Massachusetts Cultural Council grants.

Applications may be obtained by calling 376-1322 or may be picked up at the North Quincy branch or main branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library or the information desk at City Hall.

Applications are due on or before Oct. 15. They can be mailed to Quincy Arts Council, 381 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02171, Attention: Arthur Keough or dropped off at the North Quincy branch of the Crane library.

Priorities will be given to performers and programs that have had a successful history in Quincy.

For more information, call Keough at 376-1322.

WORK CONTINUES on the project to give the City Council chamber a new "old look."

KOLSON

The chamber in old City Hall was virtually reduced to a shell this summer to be restored to how it was when Quincy became a city in 1889.

One big difference between the recent look and the new one will be movable chairs.

"Now," says City Council President Peter Kolson, "we will be able to use the chamber for other functions like exhibits in addition to council meetings."

The restoration project was his idea.

He notes the work won't be completed for a while yet.

"I don't think the chamber will be ready for use until October," he says.

Which means the September meeting of the council will be held in the second floor conference room in the new City Hall until then.

"But it will be worth the wait," he says.

TOM GILMARTIN, who keeps a watchful eye on the political scene--local, state an national--has a "darkhorse" candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor: former Congressman Brian Donnelly.

DONNELLY

GIRLMARTIN

Donnelly, who will soon finish up his assignment as ambassador to Trinidad, served this district well during his years in Washington. He still has that special voter appeal. Fresher say, than the current ambassador to the Vatican.

He would be a formidable contender if he decided to make a run for it.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1923 postcard view of the original Sacred Heart Church at the corner of Hunt and Hancock Streets in Atlantic. This is now the site of the Merit gas station. Founded in 1901, the parish church is now located at the corner of Glover Avenue. This view was taken before the North Quincy High School was built and the houses on the right were removed when the school was enlarged later.

Citizens Should Have Input Into Concourse Plan

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In the Readers Forum column Aug. 21 you published a letter from Mrs. Arline Goodman, a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee. In her letter, Mrs. Goodman expressed concern over the "proposed" Quincy Center Concourse.

After three years of meetings, the committee still has no confirmed, detailed plans and to date there have been no public hearings. I read her letter and thought, "Interesting."

Just two pages away I found another article, "Sheets Eyes Fall Date," in which Mayor Sheets proudly proclaims that he would like to see the groundbreaking in the fall. I read this article and thought, "Sounds like a done deal to me, did I miss something?"

That this plan has been discussed is no surprise. For many years, we have heard talk of a Cross Town Connector that might cut across Quincy Center to connect Granite Street to the Southern Artery. Commuting to and from the "east" end of the city to Routes 3 and 128 is no easy task. A Cross Town Connector might make that ride a little easier, but when did this escape route become an important downtown revitalization plan?

As a resident of Bigelow Street, I would expect a chance to hear some detailed plans and perhaps at least voice an opinion before some number of lanes of traffic gets dumped on my front lawn. As a citizen of Quincy, I am disappointed to hear that a plan the size of the Quincy Center Concourse could get as far as this has without any honest solicitation of the citizens of the city.

Setting The Record Straight About Seniors

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Aug. 7 issue of The Quincy Sun carried a letter to the editor from Joel Davidson entitled "What Can We Learn From The Suffering Of The Elderly?"

I have talked with several older people and we find it unfortunate that the letter presents such a grim and distorted perception of what it is like to grow older. The writer recognizes that "the suffering of older people is something that begs description, that we as young people can only guess at." Perhaps he guessed wrong.

He tells us that "nursing homes are filled with suffering humanity." He asks, "How much suffering is enough?....When do we just pray for an easy death?....Why can't we just die in our sleep?" He calls the Golden Years the "Rusty Years."

As older persons, we are aware that many ill and injured people do suffer severe physical and emotional pain. But the great majority of us do not. Over 90 percent of us are not in nursing homes. Medical resources such as Hospice are constantly improving. Most of those who work in hospitals and nursing homes are caring and competent. Modern medications are effective and can alleviate destructive pain in most instances.

So the fact is that most of us old folks are not "scared of livin' and feared of dyin'." We are not praying for easy death or asking to die in our sleep. Ask Al Benedetti, who at age 103 participated in the Quincy Senior Olympics, as a thousand or more other elders have done. Ask Mary Vallier, who in her 80s was named The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year. Ask George Conway, who at 90 set national and world records in race-walking. Ask the busy members of the Silver-Haired Legislature, of the thousands of older persons who fill valuable roles in this city. Perhaps Mr. Davidson would like to take a fast three-mile walk with the "Walk of Ages" senior group, or play volleyball against players 80 and over.

He might then understand that we do not "hope for God's mercy" on us because we are "condemned to live out our lives in a chronic and painful state." We are not in our "Rusty Years." We go on cruises to Alaska, we marry again, we sing and dance.

To be sure, some of us cope with arthritis, migraines, strokes, heart attacks, and cancer, but we do it with courage, dignity, and hope, not with whimpering, whining, and fear. We are not curled up under our blankets praying to die.

It just seemed important to set the record straight.

The Teamsters 'Took On Corporate Greed And Won'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Working men and women everywhere can join the International Brotherhood of Teamsters in declaring victory in the United Parcel Service strike.

By having the courage to walk off the job and onto the picket line, UPS sent a powerful message to corporate America: Working families are unified in their fight for fair, decent-paying jobs.

The Teamsters took on corporate greed and won. They told corporate America that they will not allow big companies to continue creating "throwaway," part-time and temporary positions in place of quality full-time positions.

The Teamsters' successful strike against UPS is huge in scope and historic significance. Organized labor has proven it is a powerful and important voice for working men and women in this country.

By joining together, working people and community members can insist that corporate America treat their workers fairly. As a unified force, we can win the battle for good jobs and fair pay.

Jimmy Fund Ball Missing

Sept. 4-10
1950

By PAUL HAROLD

Appeals were put out this week for the return of Quincy's giant Jimmy Fund baseball, after it was discovered missing from the Braves' storage facility in Boston.

The baseball was built by workers at the shipyard and had been displayed in Quincy Square for voluntary donations. It had also been lent to neighboring towns for their fund-raising campaign.

Mayor Charles Ross had sent it to the Braves for safe keeping last fall.

Samuel Cohen, manager of the Art Theater, said that until the ball is returned, a wishing well would be used for the fund's kick-off dance at the armory later this month.

PUSH FOR MORE SHIPS

John Wiseman, head of Bethlehem Steel for the Quincy-Boston district, hosted a waterfront tour of the Quincy shipyard to emphasize the need for more contracts at Fore River. Highlighted were seven empty shipbuilding berths.

It was the fourth annual tour as part of Quincy's committee to promote shipbuilding for national security.

SCOTT AUSTIN FUND DRIVE

The Scott Austin memorial fund drive was scheduled to end at the end of the month, on the anniversary of his birthday.

Austin was the former principal of Central Junior High School, and the husband of Councillor Edna Austin. He had served as principal at both the Wollaston and Montclair schools.

Donations to the fund were for equipment purchases at the proposed new YMCA.

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Eileen's Carrot Cake

Here is a recipe for a totally different carrot cake prepared by our daughter Anne Marie's friend, Eileen. It has received so many raves, that it is shared with all of you today.

Eileen's Carrot Cake
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
3 eggs (well beaten)
3/4 cup vegetable oil
3/4 cup buttermilk
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
8 ounces crushed pineapple (drained)
2 cups grated carrots
3 ounces flaked coconut
1 cup chopped walnuts

Cream cheese frosting
8 ounces cream cheese
1/2 cup butter
1 pound powdered sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla

Combine flour, baking soda and cinnamon, set aside. Combine eggs, oil, buttermilk and sugar. Beat until smooth. stir in flour mixture, pineapple, carrots, coconut and the walnuts.

Bake in a greased and floured 13 x 9 inch pan at 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Top with cream cheese frosting.

(Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing recipes that have been printed in The Quincy Sun.

The book is available at the Fruit Basket (near Star Market), Previte's Market on Sumner St., Quincy Point, Nanci's Barbershop, Elm St., Braintree and the Quincy Hospital Gift Shop).

Christmas Parade Float Building Seminar Sept. 17

The annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Float Building Seminar will be held Wednesday, Sept. 17 at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex.

The seminar is free to all Quincy-South Shore organizations planning to enter a float in the city's 45th Christmas Parade. The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee sponsors the seminar to assist organizations in plans to build a float.

The seminar will consist of a film presentation of the winners and float entries in last year's parade. The theme for this year's parade is "The Sights and Sounds of Christmas." The winning theme for this year's parade was submitted by Ann Lovaas of Scituate.

Prizes are awarded for floats in various categories based on compliance with parade guidelines and theme.

This year's parade will be held Sunday, Nov. 30 along the three-mile Hancock Street route.

The "Sights and Sounds of Christmas" theme offers great latitude and potential in the planning and construction of individual floats.

Interested organizations and business representatives are urged to attend. Refreshments will be served and the seminar will start promptly at 7 p.m.

For more information, contact Paul Kennedy, float activity coordinator, at 9 Trevor St., Quincy, MA 02170 or call 328-1059.

Abigail Adams Programs In Quincy, Weymouth

The National Park Service, Adams National Historic Site will offer a full day of first-person dramatic portrayals of Abigail Adams this Saturday in Quincy and Weymouth.

The programs are being offered to commemorate the contributions of Mrs. Adams, the only woman to be the wife of one U.S. president (John Adams) and the mother of another (John Quincy Adams).

At the Adams Site Birthplaces, 133 and 141 Franklin St., Quincy, "Abigail Adams: At Home and on the Homeplace" will be presented. Mrs. Adams, portrayed by a Park Ranger, will enjoin visitors to investigate colonial lifestyles, help with farm chores, gather provisions, and prepare for the common defense.

Visitors will practice military maneuvers with the captain of the local militia, who "pays" his conscripts and finally leads them to victory in a mock skirmish with the "Redcoats." Finally, Mrs. Adams will offer her guests 18th century food and refreshments.

At the Abigail Adams Birthplace at North and Norton Sts. in Weymouth, the Bay Colony Educators through costumed interpretation will introduce visitors to the life of the young Abigail Adams. Domestic arts and issues of 18 century health will be demonstrated and discussed, and food and refreshments will be served.

Programs are free of charge and will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Quincy and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in Weymouth. For more information, call 770-1175.

Stop & Shop Site Topic For Montclair-Wollaston Assn.

The future use of the former site of the Stop & Shop building on Newport Ave. will be discussed by the Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at Work Inc., 3 Arlington St., North Quincy.

The planned new construction of an 18,000-square-foot structure across from the new Stop & Shop also will be discussed. Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott has invited representatives from Stop & Shop and VHB Traffic Engineering to be on hand to update residents and answer questions.

McDermott noted that this will be the first phase of the project, which was permitted by the City Council in 1995.

"I have always said that we as a community will hold Stop & Shop to the conditions as set forth in that special permit," he said. "This meeting tonight will give us a chance to refresh our memories."

McDermott said ongoing traffic improvements on West Squantum Street is one outstanding issue that concerns him and area residents.

"These improvements should have been done a long time ago," he said. "Here we are a year later and the traffic improvement project is still unresolved."

He added that he will hold Stop & Shop accountable, since the improvements were "part of the deal" when the special permit was issued.

"The residents of North Quincy were promised that this work would be done, and I intend to fight to see that they get what they deserve," he said.

For more information, call McDermott at 471-3366.

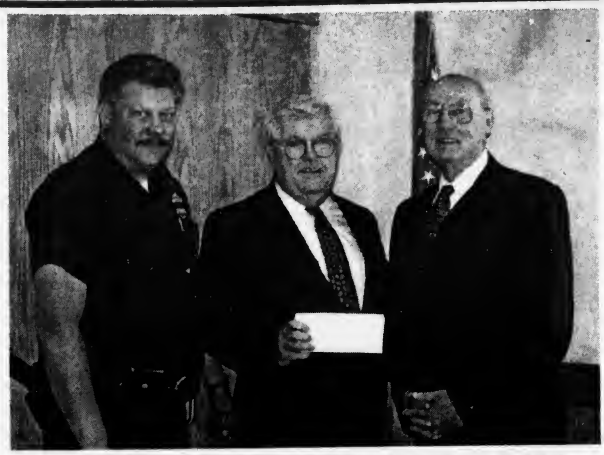
Flood Presents $1,000 To DARE Program



Norfolk County Sheriff John Flood recently presented Police Chief Francis Mullen a $1,000 check to be used toward Quincy's Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) Program.

This year marks the seventh year in a row Norfolk County has offered funds to the 27 DARE programs in police departments throughout the county. The funds are offered as part of a regional law enforcement grant and is made available on a yearly basis through the Sheriff's Office budget supported by the Norfolk County commissioners and County Advisory Board.

In addition to the DARE grant, in the City of Quincy the sheriff's office has conducted over 73.696 hours of community service. The Community Service Program is directed out of the Sheriff's Office satellite facility, the Braintree Alternative Center (BAC) in Braintree. The program utilizes inmate labor to refurbish town and municipal offices, schools, parks and other non-profit agencies. Since the BAC's inception in 1985, the Community Service Program has saved the taxpayers of Norfolk County over $3.5 million in cost-free labor.

Additional Sheriff's Office Mutual Aid Programs include Canine Assistance, Regional Lock-Up Facility and Tactical Team Reinforcements.

"I am delighted that the Regional Law Enforcement Grant makes it possible for my office to assist the 27 DARE programs through Norfolk County," said Flood. "Chief Mullen and the Quincy Police Department have been extremely gracious in supporting the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office."

Free Prostate Screenings At Quincy Hospital

WARD 6
COUNCILOR
Fighting for our neighborhoods!

- Unmet needs of our Neighborhoods demand change.
  - Ongoing street and sidewalk repairs, not just at election time.
  - Greater understanding of how development further increases our traffic volume.
- High taxes paid by homeowners have not improved the quality of our lives.
  - Tax dollars received from Ward 6 should bear some relationship to dollars spent on Ward 6.
  - Continued high levels of pollution at Wollaston Beach should not go unquestioned.
- Ward 6 representation at City Hall must be guaranteed.
  - Public should have the opportunity to speak before all council meetings. The incumbent voted NO to this proposal. (Order #096-022).
- Senior citizen concerns should be included in planning of Squantum Gardens senior housing.
  - Adoption of affordable senior living proposal where median, low and higher fixed income seniors will be welcome.
  - Preference for Ward 6 seniors.

AMONG THOSE PARTICIPATING in the recent Blacks Creek Muster at Pageant Field were John Haney (left) and James Murray. Eighty Colonial re-enactors from as far away at Long Island, N.Y. were involved.

OVER 2,000 PEOPLE, including Thomas and Barbara Cheney of Quincy, attended the recent first annual Blacks Creek Muster at Pageant Field. The event was staged by 80 Colonial reenactors.

Over 2,000 Attend Colonial Reenactment

Eighty Colonial reenactors from as far away as Long Island, N.Y. recently set up camp at Quincy's Pageant Field and hosted the first annual Blacks Creek Muster.

Over 2,000 people attended the free event despite temperatures in the 90s.

"We had about 150 to 200 people per hour walk through the encampment and they all enjoyed themselves," said City Councillor Michael Cheney, event organizer.

Hay rides, candle-making, military drilling, cannon-firing, pottery-making, woodworking and open fire cooking were among the events that took place.

People who attended the event asked very good questions, according to the members of the Massachusetts Council of Militia.

"People in the Quincy area really know their history," said Jim Murray, a colonial soldier and candlemaker.

Planning has already started for next year's reenactment.

"We expect to double the size and activities for next year's event," said Cheney.

The event is expected to take place at the same time next year. The event was sponsored by the City of Quincy, First Night Quincy, Harbor Express and Work Inc.

Citizens Bank Acquires Bank Of New Haven

Citizens Bank of Connecticut, a subsidiary of Citizens Financial Group Inc., has completed the acquisition of BNH Bancshares Inc., parent company of The Bank of New Haven.

Citizens acquired the $342 million Bank of New Haven for $15.50 a share, or $57.2 million. The transaction was announced in April.

The acquisition is the 11th by Citizens Financial Group since 1992 and the fourth in Connecticut and increases the company's four-state New England franchise to $16 billion in assets, $1.8 billion in Connecticut. Citizens Financial is among the 50 largest commercial bank holding companies nationally.

Citizens Financial Group Inc., is a $16 billion financial services company headquartered in Providence, R.I., with some 280 offices operating as Citizens Bank in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. Citizens is 76.5 percent owned by The Royal Bank of Scotland plc, with the remaining interest held by Bank of Ireland.

COOLANT ADVICE

To avert cooling-system problems, most car manufacturers recommend checking the coolant level by taking a look at the plastic recovery bottle. This is preferable to taking off the radiator cap to check because severe burns can result from removing the radiator cap while it is hot. Furthermore, a properly operating cooling system will have a full radiator when the level in the coolant recovery bottle is correct. This assumes, however, there are no leaks and the radiator cap is in good working order. Otherwise, there will not be sufficient suction to draw coolant out of the recovery bottle and into the radiator. Check the coolant level every so often, therefore, by removing the radiator cap AFTER THE ENGINE HAS COOLED.

The recommended interval for flushing the radiator and replacing the coolant is every 2 to 3 years, depending on driving conditions.

Effort Raises Over $150,000

YMCA Concludes Annual Campaign With Celebration

The South Shore YMCA concluded its recent Annual Campaign by throwing a celebration party for all of the Y's fund-raising volunteers at the Summer House in Marina Bay.

The 1997 Annual Campaign, which started in April, raised money to provide financial assistance to deserving youth, family and individuals. As a result of this year's campaign, families unable to afford participating in summer camps, special summer events, day care and after school programs, as well as many other family-oriented activities are now able to enjoy all of what the YMCA has to offer. With donations still coming in, this year's campaign has raised over $150,000.

At the campaign party, which included many Quincy business community members, South Shore YMCA President Ralph Yohe reiterated the main reason for the fund-raiser.

"Our goal is to make the Y available to everybody regardless of their financial ability. Every dollar raised does some good," he said.

To thank the volunteers, Yohe and campaign chairman Jay Asher passed out plaques and pins commemorating the event.

The South Shore YMCA is a not-for-profit association dedicated to improving the quality of life for all through programs that promote healthy body, mind and spirit. The Y is located at 79 Coddington St. in Quincy. For more information, call June Blair at 479-8500, ext. 109.

A Homeowner's Dilemma: Add on or Buy a New House?

News USA

(NU) - If you're a homeowner with a growing family, the need for a larger home is probably high on your list. But which solution is right — adding on to your present home or buying a new one?

You live in a pleasant neighborhood. There is a new shopping center a short distance away and the freeway is just a mile up the road.

Your family has lived there for seven years and has outgrown the house. The home is in good condition, but the family needs another bathroom and maybe a family room.

You've looked at larger homes that would fit your needs, but they are across town, in a different school district and a little farther from conveniences. The kids would have to make new friends and you will have to establish new social contacts.

Another consideration is the higher property taxes you'll face based on the new purchase.

What about building an addition to your home? There's adequate land to add the bath and family rooms, but is it economically smart to do so?

Adding to the problem is too much information from various sources, much of which conflicts and only confuses you further.

Your realtor tells you to make the move and supplies reams of data supporting that choice. On the other hand, your local builder tells you that you can't go wrong upgrading a house in a well-established neighborhood.

What Do You Do?

It's time to ask an independent third party to help you make your decision.

According to the American Society of Appraisers, an independent real estate appraiser will perform an appraisal of the existing home, as well as one with the proposed addition. After obtaining a contractor's estimate of the cost of the proposed additions, you can make a decision to move or expand.

An independent appraiser can also offer advice on the layout of the addition for maximum utility and value.

The ASA urges you to be sure that the appraiser whose services you obtain has experience, credible credentials and a track record that includes strict adherence to the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice.

Look for the designation "ASA" or "AM" following the appraiser's name. ASA means the appraiser has been awarded the designation of accredited senior appraiser. AM means the appraiser is an accredited member of the society. Both are members in good standing of the American Society of Appraisers.

The American Society of Appraisers builds and maintains appraiser qualifications and requires strict adherence to the Principles of Appraisal Practice and Code of Ethics.

For more information on hiring a professional, independent real estate appraiser near you, call the American Society of Appraisers toll-free at (800) ASA-VALU and ask for Dept. NU. Or write to the American Society of Appraisers, International Headquarters, Dept. NU, P.O. Box 17265, Washington, DC 20041.

Seaside Gardeners Help Give Squantum That Pretty Look

By MARIE STAMOS

Keeping up with Squantum's Seaside Gardeners the last several months has, indeed, been a challenge. Lace up your walking shoes and read on.

The 39th annual Plant Sale was a great social event, as it usually is, and for all practical purposes offered the best selection of plants including home-grown, hangers, perennials, vegetable, and annuals right here in your backyard.

In early September, you'll have the opportunity to perk up the garden at the club's first annual Chrysanthemum Sale. A superior selection of plants will be available to you.

Louise Grabowski, Civic Beautification Chairperson, organized the Seaside Gardeners sponsored "The Summer Doors of Squantum." Doors were judged on use of material, color, and composition.

Winners of the adult competition were Patricia McGilvray, 828 East Squantum St.; Phyllis Louise Ryan, 19 Huckins Ave. and Susan Nickerson, 74 Pratt Rd. In the youth competition Nicholas Couture, 39 Aberdeen Rd. won in the elementary school division and Debby Gerbick, 124 Bellevue Rd. won in the high school division. The big winner from a beautification and community participation perspective was Squantum.

As a result of concerns expressed by Seaside Gardeners President Sally Erickson regarding the condition of the Causeway--specifically debris left from roadway improvements and the MWRA Force Main Project and noxious weeds--club members met with DPW Program Manager Michael Wheelwright and Steve Aluisy of the Highway Department. In a combined effort, the DPW will phase clean the entire site with emphasis on construction debris, weeds, drainage problems from the Causeway and surrounding marsh areas prior to establishing indigenous ornamental plantings.

The Gilbert Memorial Triangle and gateway to Squantum has become a gem of greenery and color. Paul and Paula Mahoney, who are not club members, faithfully volunteer time to maintain the area and deserve recognition for their efforts. The area continues to get rave reviews and the Mahoneys are the behind-the-scene caretakers.

If you have not taken the time to drive by Squantum School, do. Jean Mackey, Junior Gardeners Chairperson and her group of youthful gardeners have created an outstanding butterfly garden.

As a public service benefit Quincy's library card holders, the Seaside Gardeners enrolled the Thomas Crane Public Library as a library member to the Plimouth Plantation.

The Family Pass entitles two adults and two children access to the plantation and each of the museum sites including the 1627 Pilgrim Village, Hobbamock's Homesite, Carriage House Crafts Center, Mayflower II, the outdoor exhibit Irreconciliable Differences, the Nye Exhibit Barn, access to the Plimouth Plantation Research Library and reading room, use of the Members' Lounge, a subscription to the Plimouth Plantation Almanac, and advance notification of all museum-related special events.

Cost of the pass (assuming two children and two adults) is $6, a savings of $49, since regular general admission is $55. The pass is available each day during the Plimouth Plantation open season. Last year, over 10,000 people visited the plantation using a pass from their local library. The number for the Crane Library is 376-1300.

As we walked the Causeway with Steve Aluisy viewing junk, debris and litter he said, "You can kind of tell that people think they are just passing through (life)." Reflect on the Junior Gardeners (and Native American) motto, "We have not inherited the earth from our ancestors, but have borrowed it from our children." None of us just passes through; we leave a little piece of the future behind.

Plant something beautiful today, if only a thought.

[Marie Stamos is publicity co-chairperson for the Seaside Gardeners of Squantum.]

Tips for a Healthier School Year

News USA

(NU) - Every parent's back-to-school list should include more than just pencils and paper. Parents also need to think about physical exams, immunizations, exercise and an emphasis on eating right.

"The anticipation and preparation for another school year is exciting, but also a stressful time for parents and children," says Dr. Charles Cutler, vice president of medical services for Prudential HealthCare. "By taking steps to ensure that your children start off healthy, you are well on your way to a happy and successful school year."

Parents should provide psychological support, as well as make sure children receive necessary medical checkups and immunizations. Dr. Cutler noted that these types of preventive care checkups and tests are covered by health plans like Prudential HealthCare. Here are some tips from Dr. Cutler to make your child's school year a healthier one:

• Schedule a well-child exam for children. This might include a history and physical examination; height, weight and blood pressure measurements; vision screening; developmental and behavioral assessments; and counseling on child safety, diet and exercise.

• Find out if your child needs a physical exam. Typically, older children should have a physical exam every other year, unless they have a medical condition or will be participating in organized sports.

• Review immunization records. While most children should receive basic immunizations before age 2, some diseases like tetanus, measles and hepatitis B require booster shots between the ages of 11 and 18. Prudential HealthCare provides parents with tips and helpful guidelines on childhood immunizations available on the Internet at www.prudential.com/healthcare. The site includes a childhood immunization schedule to see when each shot is required; an immunization record to keep track of shots received; and a true/false quiz to test your knowledge.

• Meet with the school nurse. If your child has a chronic condition, like diabetes or asthma, and needs to take medication during school hours, discuss your child's medical history with the school nurse. Give the nurse contact information for the pediatrician and/or family doctor. Plan a timetable for your child to take medication and set up a reminder system so the child won't forget.

• Schedule a dental appointment. Get this out of the way before the school year begins to save you the hassle of scheduling it during school hours or around after-school activities or sports.

• Stress the importance of routine physical activity. Talk about sports they might be interested in during the school year or other ways to stay physically fit. Set a good example and exercise regularly yourself.

• Make sure your child eats a balanced diet. A balanced diet consists of breads, cereals, pasta and low-fat baked goods; fruits and vegetables; dairy foods (milk, cheeses, etc.); lean meats; poultry; fish; and low-fat snacks such as pretzels, graham crackers or animal crackers. Be a good role model by eating the foods you want your child to eat. Get your child into the routine of eating a well-balanced breakfast, the most important meal of the day.

Be Involved In Your Child's Education

Children and young adults are not the only ones heading back to school this fall. Parents should be close behind, according to the National Education Association (NEA).

"A child's success (or failure) in school often depends on the parents, particularly the extent of their involvement in their child's education," says NEA President Bob Chase. "It's important for parents to become active partners with teachers to help their children learn. That partnership plays a role in the classroom and at home. It is a key to ensuring that all children start school ready to learn, whether it be kindergarten or college."

Research shows that when parents take an active interest in their child's education, the child does better in school. Higher grades, improved attendance, and better behavior are among the positive results.

There are many ways parents can be involved in helping their child succeed in school. Here are a few tips:

Encourage your child to read, and help with reading assignments:

•Read aloud to younger children. Get them to comment and ask questions.

•When your child first learns to read, let him read to you; listen attentively and be sure to praise his efforts.

•Have a discussion with your child about the books she reads, whatever her reading level.

•Be a role model–make sure your child sees you read regularly.

•Involve other family members, especially older children who can read to the younger ones.

Make homework a routine assignment:

•Let your child know studying at home is expected on a regular basis.

•Set aside a specific time and quiet place for studying--or reading--every evening, even when there is no homework assignment. Make sure the study area has appropriate lighting, a comfortable chair and enough room to spread out materials.

•Check your child's homework to make sure it is accurate, complete and neat. Encourage your child to find and fix any spelling, grammar, or punctuation errors.

•Discuss the assignment, give your child feedback, and praise his/her efforts.

Talk to your child about what's happening in school:

•Encourage your child to describe what the school day was like, and don't accept "nothing happened" as an answer.

•Ask questions about teachers, your child's friends, favorite subjects, and the new things that he or she learned.

Talk to your child's teacher(s):

•Get to know all your child's teachers, and stay in touch with them.

•Ask about your child's strengths and weaknesses.

•Find out what you can do at home to monitor your child's progress and help him/her succeed in school.

After School Programs Provide Choices For Working Parents

By SHARRON BEALS

For working parents, a primary concern is always who will care for your children while you are at work.

Although the term "child care" is often associated with infants, toddlers and preschoolers, in reality children need someone to watch over them for years after that.

Any parent who works outside the home with a child already in elementary school knows that planning for "child care" not only does not end once the child passes through the school doors, but often becomes more complicated--with kindergarten programs running half-days (and morning afternoon exchanges midyear), early release days (Tuesdays, in Quincy) and school programs running to mid-afternoon. Parents often must scramble for a safe and appropriate plan for the hours before they come home from work.

A well-chosen After School Program can be a positive and stimulating "link" between school and home. In Quincy, parents are fortunate to have choices among a number of private after school programs. (None of Quincy's After School Programs are "public"/city-run programs.)

Selecting the program that is best for your child begins with researching and visiting programs. Most programs require pre-enrollment visits, with your child, to meet staff and view the facility. Interesting and involving your child in the visit/selection process helps ensure that the program matches your child's interests and needs.

Some programs provide special enrichments and opportunities (music lessons, swimming, foreign language classes, other special interests, etc.).

Parents should always ask questions when looking for a safe, stimulating and "fun" after school program. Some questions are:

•Are the staff well-trained, experienced and Office for Children required?

•Is each afternoon well-organized and designed to appeal to the different interests and ages of the children?

•Is there a planned time and space for homework?

•What is the transportation plan (if the program is a location different than school)?

•What recreational, sports and interest choices will your child have?

•Are the site, room, equipment and grounds safe, attractive and stimulating?

•Do children get varied and nutritious afternoon snacks?

•What is the program's health care policy?

•How are children released to parents?

•What are tuition rates? Late pickup charges? Sibling discounts? Registration fees?

In Quincy, parents are fortunate to have choices available for After School Care. Researching to find the best program for your child, one that interests and involves your child, will ensure that the "in-between" hours in your child's day are safe, positive and enriching.

Patricia Moscone Awarded Child Development Associate Credential

Patricia Moscone of Quincy has been awarded a Child Development Association (CDA) Credential in recognition of outstanding work with young children.

The credential was awarded by the Council for Early Childhood Professional Recognition in Washington, D.C., which represents the early childhood profession.

CDA is the only major national effort to improve child care by evaluation and recognizing the skills of individuals providing care. The first credential was awarded 20 years ago, and now 46 states and the District of Columbia include CDA in their child care regulations.

For more information on CDA, call (800) 424-4310 or (202) 265-9090.

QVNA Merges With Quincy Hospital

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association (QVNA) has merged with Quincy Hospital effective this week.

While the QVNA has become a department of the hospital, it will retain its named and continue to provide services to patients who are referred from any hospital, physician office and other health care facility.

The QVNA has been affiliated with Quincy Hospital for the past 13 years and has played an important role in the hospital's continuum of care. The merger is a proactive step to address the changing health care environment and enhance integration and create efficiencies in the system.

Specifically, if a Quincy Hospital patient uses QVNA services, the information from the home visits will be recorded in the patient's medical record at the hospital. That will help ensure continuity of care if a patient returns to the hospital for further treatment.

"The close relationship between our two organizations has served this community very well, and the upcoming merger will enable us to continue to enhance the services we provide," said Louis Mazzini, chairman of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers. "We are expanding the hospital family and demonstrating our concern for maintaining the integrity of health care delivery in this region."

In 1994, Quincy Hospital developed a hospital-based home care service, Quincy Hospital Home Health (QHHH), and contracted with the QVNA to provide the direct care for patient care. Effective this week, QHHH is combined with QVNA to create one hospital-based home care department called Quincy Visiting Nurse Association. All the patients from QVNA and QHHH have been notified about the merger.

"Any change will be minimal for our patients, referral sources and the community in general. Patients will continue to receive the same high quality home health care from the same nurses, therapists, and home care aides they have seen in the past," said John Fanciullo, QVNA board president.

The QVNA and QHHH together perform 140,000 visits a year, servicing 2,300 families on the South Shore. The QVNA employs 200 people, who will become employees of the hospital.

The QVNA provides a wide range of home care services including skilled nursing, rehabilitation, nutritional counseling, oncology, parent/child health, pain control, IV therapy, mental health services, HIV services and wound care.

The QVNA serves patients and families in Quincy, Braintree, Milton, Weymouth, and communities throughout the South Shore.

TOO MUCH OF TWO GOOD THINGS

You get indigestion, you pop an antacid tablet or two. Feeling constipated? Reach for a laxative. Those scenes are repeated by countless individuals every day, yet there may be a hidden danger in the habit if it gets out of hand. The Food and Drug Administration warns that taking too much of an antacid, laxative, or combination of both may lead to weakness, paralysis, mental confusion, and even coma. The problem, evidently, is the magnesium that is a common ingredient in such products, as well as in some pain relievers. When excessive amounts are ingested, magnesium poisoning can occur. This can happen all too easily to someone who takes more than the recommended dosage of an antacid, and perhaps loads up on a laxative or pain reliever at the same time. People particularly at risk of the overload include the elderly, long-time diabetics, and people with decreased kidney function.

P.S. With medications, more is often NOT better. Read labels thoroughly, and never exceed recommended dosages before consulting your doctor.

It is always wise not to mix over-the-counter medications without a doctor's approval. If you have questions, call for the information you need. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to help. We are at 700 Congress St., Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Talent, Depth Keys For Raiders' Success

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Surveying the talent, depth and experience he has at his disposal, one cannot blame Paul Bregoli, head coach of the North Quincy High School girls' varsity soccer team, for being excited about the upcoming season.

"We have over a dozen girls back, and they're all talented kids," he said. "I could go seven deep on my bench easily and not a lose a thing. During our scrimmages, I noticed there wasn't a weak player on the field at any time.

"We should have a good shot at making the tournament, and would be the first girls' team from North to do it. That's our primary objective. Last year, we were right on the edge, and this should be a breakthrough year for us."

The Red Raiders, who play five games in eight days, open their 1997 campaign today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. against Old Colony League opponent Plymouth South at Teal Field in North Quincy.

Following the opener, North is back in action Friday at 3:30 p.m., at Randolph. Next Monday at 4 p.m., North is at Falmouth and next Wednesday at 4 p.m., North hosts Barnstable.

The Red Raiders' first big test of the season comes next Friday at 4 p.m. against Silver Lake, the defending OCL champions who return all their players from its Division I South runner-up squad.

"Silver Lake is the team to beat in the OCL," said Bregoli. "The girls feel they can finish as high as second, which would automatically send us into the tournament."

Leading the way for North will be talented tri-captains Laurie Flynn, Kristen Keohane and Katie Koch. Flynn (wing) and Keohane (midfielder) are both three-year starters and valuable members of the squad, as is second-year starter Keohane (defender).

Betsy Stone (junior forward) and Rachael Powers (junior sweeper) are also in the third year as starters and will be relied on for offensive support.

"Betsy was the leading scorer as a freshman and sophomore with nine goals each year, so she'll be one of our top weapons," said Bregoli. "Our tri-captains are our leaders, so we expect a lot from them."

Bregoli is also counting on the contributions of seniors Erin Tormey (defender) and Marybeth Feeney (forward), sophomores Ashley Murphy (center midfielder), Caitlyn O'Donnell (wing) and Maureen Holleran (midfielder), and juniors Dorothy Cronin (stopper) and Liz Bennett (stopper).

"Marybeth has some nice skills, Ashley's a strong player who scored three goals as a freshman, Caitlyn also scored three goals as a freshman and has a shot at starting at wing," said Bregoli. "Maureen may start at mid, Dorothy was a solid starter last year and Liz will also see some time at stopper this season."

Two transfers from Fontbonne Academy--senior Leela Shankar and sophomore Jill Nicholson--will also be relied upon by the Red Raiders.

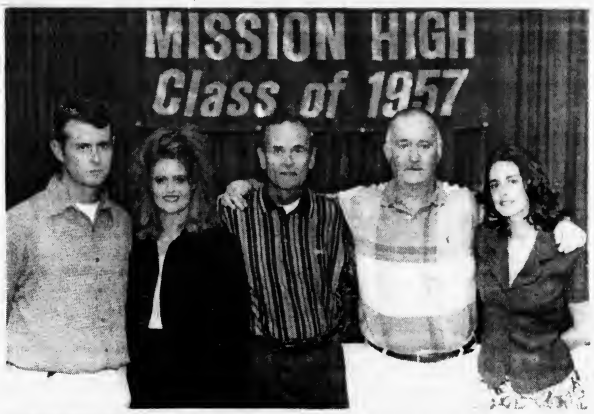
"Leela was a two-year starter at Fontbonne who'll help us a lot and Jill has shown flashes of brilliance in the preseason," said Bregoli.

Minding the net will be junior Kristen Bowes, a midfielder on last year's squad who played just three games in goal.

"She's quick as a cat, with great hands and is a strong athlete," said Bregoli. "She played very well and made some spectacular saves. She'll be a force in the OCL this season."

Adding to the depth of the '97 squad will be freshmen Stacy Szcesuil, Jennifer Connolly and Kellee Connolly (not related).

"Stacy's a strong, smart midfielder who might start," said Bregoli. "Jennifer's is a good midfielder/defender and Kellee is a wing who is fast as lightning."



Joining Bregoli on the coaching staff is Mark Scanlan, who will coach the JV squad and handle the offense. Scanlan is a former North Quincy boys' varsity soccer coach.

Returning to coach the freshman girls through an eight-game schedule is Frank O'Donoghue.

What impresses Bregoli about the squad as a whole is its athleticism and ability to excel in a number of sports.

"We have a lot of three-sport athletes and all the girls are athletes, period," he said. "This is an exciting group; all of them are good kids who are fun to coach. If each of them plays their role, stays focused and injury-free, we should be right there at the end. It'll be a fun season."

George Dunn Honored

GEORGE DUNN, a Quincy Recreation Department employee for 15 years and a former baseball and basketball coach, was recently honored at a testimonial at the George F. Bryan Post. Among the standing room only crowd were members of Dunn's family and friends, from left, son Scott, daughter Erin, Dunn, daughter Julie (far right) and Dunn's friend, George Roche.

5th Annual William F. Degan Road Race Set For Sept. 14

The fifth annual U.S. Marshal William F. Degan Memorial 10K Road Race and 5K Run/Fun Walk will be held Sunday, Sept. 14 in Quincy.

The event is held in honor of Degan, the Quincy native who was killed in the line of duty while serving with the U.S. Federal Marshal Service in August 1992.

The races begin and end at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Starting time is 10 a.m. The race is run on a fast, flat course which includes three miles of beachfront road.

Bill Graney, Degan Road Race committee member and spokesperson, said he is hopeful the race draws 2,000 participants.

"We got 1,500 runners last year, and if all goes well, we'll reach the 2,000 mark this time around," he said.

Graney stressed the fact that those who don't participate in the race itself are encouraged to attend the event and "enjoy the day."

"Even if you don't run, you can come up to the stadium and see what we have to offer," he said. "We'll have free food including muffins, coffee and bagels for breakfast and lunch consisting of hot dogs, hamburgers and ice cream. And it's all free."

"We're also going to have a DJ, Larry Links, who will provide the entertainment in the morning. Raffles and t-shirt sales will be held throughout the day. We're promoting it as a family day that all can enjoy."

In addition to the Degan family, those slated to participate in the race include former Gov. William Weld, acting Gov. Paul Cellucci and Cong. William Delahunt. Quincy mayor James Sheets will start the race.

This year, Children's Charities of Quincy will be the beneficiary of the majority of the race's proceeds, said Graney.

"We want to help the Children's Charities both athletically and educationally," said Graney, who added that $50,000 had been raised to date through the race.

Last year, nearly 1,500 runners helped raise $22,000.

The pre-registration entry fee of $12 had to be received by Monday. Those who pre-registered will receive a free t-shirt. To register the day of the race, the fee is $15. Registration the day of the race will be from 8 to 9:30 a.m. at Veterans Stadium.

Prizes will be awarded to all first-place division finishers and others at the conclusion of the race.

The divisions are: 16 and under, high school (5K only), 39 and under (Open), 40-49, 50-59, 60-69, 70 and over, and a wheelchair division.

The top male and female finishers in the high school division will each receive an engraved trophy that will be displayed at the winner's school, said Graney.

LaBreque, Kincaide Claim City Street Hockey Titles

The Quincy Recreation Department recently sponsored a citywide Street Hockey Tournament for its 19 summer playgrounds.

In the Junior Boys division, LaBreque, which dominated the regular season, captured the city championship. LaBreque was sparked by the outstanding play of Bill McKeon, Josh Giordani, Kevin Richardson, Paul McAteer, Rob Wright and Brendan Craig.

Squantum's squad of Matt Grazioso, Rob Mooney, Paul Graham, Tim Duggan, Jonathan O'Driscoll and Chris Dolbeare came in second.

The Senior Boys divison champions from Kincaide included Kiva Tupe, Mike Webber, James Shea, Chris and Rene Lumaghini, and Dan and Matt Reggiannini.

Welcome Young, which finished second, was comprised of Brian Deptula, Matt Gage, Shaun Boostrom, Todd White, Jeff Narbone and Paul Skarton.

This summer's Street Hockey event was conducted by Sports Specialists Christine Barrett, Steven Barrett, David Bogan, Kerri Connolly, Nicole Manton and Kim Marsden.

Charleen Gale Enlists In Army

Charleen L. Gale has joined the United States Army under the Delayed Entry Program at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, Quincy.

The program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $40,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

Gale, a 1997 graduate of Quincy High School, will report to Fort Leonard Wood, Waynesville, Mo., for basic military training Aug. 26.

She is the daughter of Kathleen Gale of 61 Bigelow St., Quincy.

Siciliano, 19 Others Attend Annual NEMA Conference

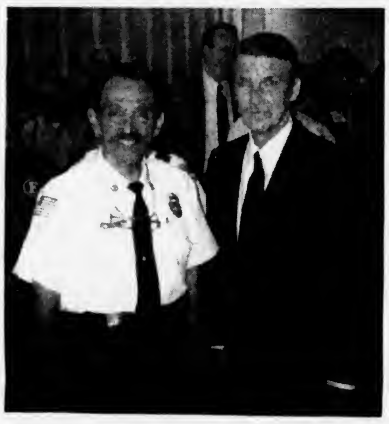
Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano and 19 members of the agency's Youth Services Team/Explorer Post One, Boy Scouts of America attended the National Emergency Management Association's recent Annual Conference in Boston.

NEMA President A. David Rodham, also the undersecretary of public safety for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, addressed 250 guests including 43 state directors, four territorial directors, key state staff members, other state attendees, federal attendees, private sector attendees and other related organizations.

One of the keynote speakers was James Lee Witt, director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. In 1996, President Clinton elevated Witt to Cabinet status--a first for a FEMA director--and noted that FEMA is now a model disaster relief agency and thought in some corners to be by far the most successful part of the federal government.

Rodham, who invited Siciliano and the Quincy group, requested a 30-minute presentation to all NEMA attendees on the city's youth services program. A videotape shown displayed over 100 action photos on the Quincy youth programs.

All of the Quincy representatives introduced themselves, and Siciliano explained the importance of the youth programs.



An Emergency Management Exploring Program Helps Booklet was distributed to attendees by the Quincy group members who urged them to share the information with their local Emergency Management director and their public and private sectors back home.

Siciliano also thanked Massachusetts Emergency Management Director Peter LaPorte and area directors from Massachusetts for their support in the Exploring Program for the youth of the Commonwealth.

Siciliano recently signed a memorandum of understanding as president of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Association with the National Coordinating Council on Emergency Management. He is a member of the Board of Visitors for FEMA's Emergency Management Institute in Maryland. Siciliano will give a full report to the board on Quincy's Youth Services Team's invitation to participate in the annual NEMA Conference.

Siciliano will meet with the Board of Visitors in Emmitsburg, Md. this month.

"Conceptually, we have a tenant going in there, and I see that as a positive.

"I also think that it's dangerous to take a stand against a property owner who wants to lease his property to a tenant. I think that sets a dangerous precedent."

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, the business-municipal partnership said: "This is not the appropriate location for the juvenile court."

Mannarino said he has written to Bruce Tebo, project manager, Division of Capital Planning and Operations noting his opposition and that of Quincy 2000.

"With the support of the business community and city officials, Quincy 2000 has spent the past five years developing programs and incentives to stimulate retail, office and hotel development in Quincy Center," he said.

"It is the consensus of the corporation (Quincy 2000) that the development of a juvenile court will detract from these downtown revitalization efforts.

"Quincy 2000 urges the Division of Capital Planning and Operations to seek a more appropriate location for the Trial Court's juvenile court."

Rep. Michael Bellotti also wrote to Tebo but to express his "strong support" for the proposed location of the juvenile court.

"The site is an ideal area for a juvenile court," he said. "It is central to public transportation and also has facilities to accommodate parking.

"In addition, by accenting this parcel as the new location for a juvenile court, the Quincy business community will also benefit from increased revenues, resulting in the revitalization and development of downtown Quincy.

"It is without any hesitation that I respectfully submit my strong support to Key Realty's proposal."

Quincy 2000's five-member Executive Committee voted "not to support the proposal." Four of the five members voted with one abstaining for personal reasons.

Tom Cataldo, chairman, said:

"The members felt that a juvenile court, in the location adjacent to the elderly apartment complexes and the assisted living facility, would not be a compatible use nor provide any services or products for the residents in the surrounding area.

"In addition, the recently-endorsed Quincy Center Action Plan which Quincy 2000 designed, recommends a mix of residential, retail and commercial uses for this area of Quincy Center."

The executive director of Hancock Park, a neighboring assisted living facility, was not as concerned over having the juvenile court next door.

Richard Johnson said:

"I think it can work if it's well-managed. Is it the ideal solution? That's not for me to say, because I'm relatively new to Quincy. The building is empty now, so that'll be an improvement. It will give the property owner the opportunity to make improvements. As a neighbor, I'm glad to see it's going to be occupied."

Support is also expressed by Congressman William Delahunt, former Norfolk County District Attorney, Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Stephen Tobin.

Delahunt, in a letter to William Kane, assistant to the chief justice of the juvenile court of the Massachusetts Trial Court, said:

"I am writing in strong support of the proposal...This proposal as submitted by Key Realty of Quincy provides an ideal location for such a facility."

Delahunt noted that the establishment of a separate juvenile court was mandated by 1992 court reform legislation.

"To an overcrowded Quincy District Court, where functions of our juvenile justice system are currently performed on Tuesday of each week, the foundation of a separate facility is well overdue.

"The location of this proposed site, with its proximity to public transportation and the soon-to-be-built Quincy Center Concourse, provides the necessary accessibility to be utilized on a daily basis by residents of several neighboring Norfolk County communities.

Morrissey called the Parkingway location "the only bet."

"It would be a shame to lose this (the court) in the City of Quincy," he said.

Tobin said the court would be "an asset to the community."

Daniel Flynn, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association said: "I am in favor of a juvenile court in Quincy, but this is the wrong location.

"A juvenile court situated within the center would counteract the progress that has taken place within the businesses and associations in their effort to create a vibrant commercial district.

"A court situated on one side, and the Registry of Motor Vehicles on the other, would only create a crisis out of the existing problem involving the center's lack of available parking spaces. The congestion resulting from the new court would only create more disorder."

A QCBPA telephone poll of its board of directors indicated a majority were opposed to the Parkingway site as "not in the best interest of Quincy Center development" and that it would "tax" an already deficient number of parking spaces.

Michael Kenealy of Key Realty counters the parking concern.

"The location," he says, "provides an on-site roof deck parking lot for between 35 to 40 vehicles. This provides substantially more parking than 90 percent of other office and/or retail stores in the Quincy Center area.

Kenealy said Craig Wheeler, city planner for Salem, has informed him that city wants a juvenile court in its downtown area.

He said a Salem study showed that a court's presence in a community helps fill office and retail space. Kenealy said Wheeler told him he would expect restaurants, coffee shops and stores providing office supplies to flourish.

He also noted that Dedham and Brockton also have worked to bring the court to their downtown areas.

Kenealy said the Quincy District Court has attracted many of the more than 75 law firms that lease or own space in Quincy Center.

"With a juvenile court in the Parkingway," he said, "the positive impact this will have on the community is far-reaching."

Kenealy said that as a business person and property owner in Quincy himself, he feels the juvenile court at the Parkingway site "will have a positive impact on our downtown community."

And, he added:

"Although we are the brokers involved in this transaction, we would never stand behind a project that could harm our city."

Representatives from two businesses located near the proposed court site gave differing responses when asked about the project.

Kim Ford of Young World said, "I have mixed feelings. I wonder about the traffic and parking, because it already gets pretty congested around here. But then again, that building is pretty much run down, so that (the court) might look nice over there. I'd have to do a lot more thinking about it."

Mike Condon of The Bean Routine, however, expressed strong support.

"I'm very much in favor of it," he said. "I think it would be good for business. That building has been predominantly empty for a number of years, and I think it will bring some vitality into Quincy Center. I think it's important that we look at the positive aspect of what's going to happen. I can't think of any reason why bringing extra bodies into Quincy Center would be negative."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) If you have been feeling down lately, the company of friends is a sure cure. Single folks want to spend money, but married folks could argue. The latter part of the week brings peace.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Renewed love is on the horizon for singles and for married folks. Enjoy the romance that's in the air. A new project comes your way later in the week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Travel is favored. However, if you are on the home front, a lot of minor chores need to be cleared up. Romance is accented over the weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Socially, you are the life of the party this week. You have finally come out of your shell. New and exciting opportunities will be coming your way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Higher-ups are watching you and taking note of your superb job performance. Your efficiency has caught their eye. Be prepared for a surprise business trip this weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Why always follow the crowd? Do your own thing. Be confident and independent. You are likely to be surprised with the results.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have a sharp eye for shopping and financial matters. It's the best time for these intriguing interests. Look into investment opportunities over the weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While you sense that something is troubling a mate or friend, it is best to steer clear until the person is ready to open up. Don't think you always have to solve everyone's problems. Relax and rest this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Enjoy your newfound confidence in love matters. Financially, the picture is also bright this week. Your personality and creativity bring added success.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Things move positively concerning your career. However, don't forget about those close to you on the home front. A child in particular needs your help this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) If you're looking for financial backing for a certain venture, this is the week to go for it. A tense situation could arise with friends later in the week. Seek ways to improve harmony.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You are less than confident about your business decisions. However, go with the flow and use your great instincts. Domestic changes are possible this weekend.

Muriel J. Goudey, 92
Longtime Quincy Teacher

A memorial service for Muriel Jean Goudey, 92, of Quincy, a teacher in the city for 43 years, will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center.

A graveside service was held yesterday (Wednesday) in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Miss Goudey died Aug. 29 at the Boston New England Medical Center after a brief illness.

She spent the first year of her teaching career, which began in September 1928, at the former Central Junior/Senior High School. A year later, she began teaching at Quincy High School where she remained until her retirement in June 1971.

Miss Goudey served as head of the English Department at Quincy High during her last 10 years at the school.

"She was a legend in many ways," said School Supt. Eugene Creedon. "There are certain teachers we've had in the Quincy Public Schools you can say that about. She was an extremely well-known educator, she had a great love for Quincy High School, and she was very, very kind to the students."

Born in Quincy, she was a graduate of Quincy High School as well as Boston University where she received a master's degree.

MURIEL GOUDEY

Miss Goudey was a member of Bethany Congregational Church and the church women's group, the Retired Teachers Association, the Order of Eastern Star, Quincy Historical Society, Quincy Hospital Auxiliary and Rice Eventide Auxiliary.

She is survived by two cousins, Evelyn Smith and Josephine Rossi, both of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

A Thought For The Week

September is back-to-school time. From every part of the country boys and girls, young men and young women, will be starting school.

In today's world, the sum total of man's knowledge is exploding upward at an accelerating pace. It takes many more years of schooling to become well trained in any field and further to become a well-educated human being with the established, permanent desire and ability to continue the learning process throughout life.

Let us remember that the real promise of the future lies in the vast majority of hardworking young people who look forward to the reopening of school this month; not only for the social companionship, excitement and fun of activities, but also because they feel the stimulation of learning about their heritage and opportunities and exploring the vast fields of knowledge now being unfolded to man's mind.

As the school bells ring again, let us wish them well . . .

Neighbors Taking Nightclub Complaints To Court

Three neighbors of the WaterWorks nightclub in Marina Bay are planning to take their complaints about noise at the club to Superior Court.

An attorney for the neighbors said they will appeal a decision last week by the Zoning Board, which refused to hear their claim the club is violating Quincy's zoning laws. Such action must be taken within 20 days of the board's decision.

The board voted 4-1 to refuse to hear the claim brought by Fred Davis, John McGrath and Paul Zine, all condominium residents at 2001 Marina Drive.

The three men had hoped to argue through their attorney, Peter Eleey, that the city zoning ordinance requires the $2 million club to be enclosed and soundproofed. They say live music at the club has been too loud.

The board, however, refused to hear the complaint on procedural grounds. Eleey said last Friday he will appeal the case in Norfolk Superior Court.

City Clerk Joseph Shea, chairman of the Quincy License Board, said the board has made progress in keeping the music from disturbing neighbors, noting that acoustical improvements have been made at the club and adding that the situation will continue to be monitored.

Eleey has claimed that Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey should have required walls and soundproofing when he issued a building permit for the club in May 1996. Mulvey and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, however, have said the inspector acted properly.

Solicitor McGrath and Robert Fleming, the WaterWorks attorney, have argued that any appeal should have been filed within 30 days after the building permit was issued.

Eleey says state law gives a citizen affected by an improperly-issued building permit up to six years to challenge it.

Solicitor McGrath also has suggested that Davis, John McGrath and Zine had no right to even file such a zoning appeal, saying such action was up to a condominium building's board of trustees, not residents acting individually.

Eleey, however, has said the law gives condominium owners the same rights as other taxpayers.

Firefighter Burned In Harvard St. Fire

A Quincy firefighter was treated for burns to his hand after battling a fire Saturday at 208 Harvard St.

According to Fire Capt. Joseph Barron, the fire began around 6:41 p.m. at a two-story home owned by Thomas Stack.

Initially, firefighters found heavy smoke on the first floor and in the basement. Barron said the source of the fire was difficult to locate at first, but firefighters eventually traced it to the basement.

Firefighter Michael Connors was burned on one hand. Barron said Connors was taken to Quincy Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Barron said a faulty water heater may have caused the fire, which was put out by 8 p.m.

Two people were home during the fire. They escaped uninjured after hearing the building's smoke detectors.

Barron estimated fire damage at more than $10,000. He said the building is temporarily uninhabitable and the Stacks are staying with relatives while crews repair the house.

plastic bags will further improve the program and provide additional savings, according to officials.

Biodegradable kraft paper bags are available in grocery stores, neighborhood convenience stores and home improvement outlets in packages of five for less than $2 (40 cents each). The bags are easier to use than plastic bags for picking up raked leaves, hold more leaves, and are fully recyclable, decomposing along with the leaves.

The municipal water contractor, Browning-Ferris Industries, will attempt to make the change go as smoothly as possible by tagging improperly prepared leaves, at the beginning of the collection program. It is expected that tagging will effectively inform anyone who is unaware of the policy change.

Quincy Delegation Announces Successful Legislative Session

Quincy's legislative delegation of Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti reports a highly productive legislative session in the House of Representatives.

Speaker Thomas Finneran said, "By any reasonable standard of measurement, the 1997 legislative session has been both efficient and productive in its work. We have rendered faithful service to our legislative duties and responsibilities and we have given fair and considered judgement on issues of great importance to the social, economic and educational opportunities of the people of Massachusetts."

"I am extremely pleased of all that we have accomplished this session," said Tobin. "In addition to the legislative enactment of the Courthouse Improvement and Construction Bond, my colleagues and I were able to contribute to the timely budget deliberation and completion."

The House budget debate won universally high marks for fiscal integrity, weighted priorities and much-needed procedural and institutional reforms. Educational funding at the K-12 level, public higher education and scholarship assistance, local aid, community policing and public safety programs, and targeted tax reductions all received significant funding support.

"We were able to avoid unsustainable excesses that marked the budget debates of the 1980s," said Bellotti. "This should keep the state in good condition the next few years."

Additionally, the House instituted refinements of uncompensated care hospital and health center reimbursement. The reforms provide a harmonious balance between the providers of health care services and the payers of such services.

"The passage of this new bill, I believe, should provide reasonable relief to affected parties, while also moving toward remedying the state's languishing system," said Mariano.

"All in all, I feel that it has been an exceptional session," said Tobin. "I am pleased at what my colleagues and I have been able to accomplish for the people of Quincy."

William Holman Named Accounting Manager

William Holman of Quincy, recently joined Wickersham Hunt Schwantner as an accounting manager, according to Lysle Wickersham, chairman and creative director of the direct marketing agency.

Prior to joining the agency, Holman was with NAPA in Indianapolis, Ind. He is a graduate of Indiana University.

Wickersham Hunt Schwantner is a $86 million direct marketing agency, with offices in Boston and Dallas.

Creedon To Discuss School Issues At Ward 5 Meeting

School Supt. Eugene Creedon will discuss issues facing the Quincy Public Schools at the Ward 5 Community Association's September meeting.

The meeting will be held Monday, Sept. 8 at 7 p.m. in the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School on Fenno St. New members and outside guests are welcome.

There are two elementary schools, Beechwood Knoll and Bernazzani, in Ward 5. In addition, Central Middle School and Quincy High School lie within the boundaries of the ward. Parents, students, and other concerned citizens are encouraged to attend

Ward 4 Celebrates National Night Out

QUINCY POLICE DEPARTMENT'S Crime Watch Program was featured at a recent Ward 4 Cookout held at the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center as part of the city's National Night Out celebration. Among those in attendance were, from left, Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna, Office Richard Praetsch, Chief Francis Mullen, Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico and Officers John Sullivan and Bruce Tait.

ENJOYING SOME QUIET conversation at the recent Ward 4 Cookout at the Amelio Della Chiesa Childhood Center in South Quincy are, from left, Madeline Taylor, Adeline Caristo and Janet Coletti. Cookouts were held in each of the city's six wards as part of Quincy's National Night Out festivities. The National Night Out program encourages people to meet with their neighbors and work with police.

FIREFIGHTERS BATTLE an early morning two-alarm fire at a vacant 2 1/2-story house at 31-33 Spear St. in Quincy Center on Monday. The house was scheduled to be demolished to make room for a $13 million addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library. Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said arson was the cause of the blaze, which began around 1:25 a.m. and was put out in about 20 minutes.

Preliminary Contests In Wards 1, 3, 6 Only

Light Turnout Forecast For Election Tuesday

With only three ward council contests on the ballot, a light voter turnout is forecast for next Tuesday's preliminary election.

"I think it will be about 20 percent, in the three wards," says City Clerk Joseph Shea.

There are now 43,085 registered voters in the city but only those in Wards 1, 3 and 6 will be going to the polls to nominate two candidates for each of the three council seats.

There are 8,459 registered voters in Ward 1; 8,251 in Ward 3; and 8,014 in Ward 6.

Ward 1 incumbent Peter Kolson of Palmer St., who is also the city council president, is seeking his fifth term.

He is opposed by Joseph Kasparian, Jr., 63, of Rhude St., a retired police officer who ran against Kolson two years ago, and Gretchen Grant, 68, retired, of Bicknell St.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, 27, of Taylor St., is running for a second term.

He is challenged by Linda L. Tracy, 48, of Beale St., a consultant; and Robert Boussy, 42, of Farrington St., a hospital transportation employee.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce J. Ayers, 35, of Williams St., is seeking a fourth term.

Unopposed two years ago, he is challenge this year by Brian F. McNamee, 41, of Billings Rd., an accountant and management consultant; and Joseph Newton of Glover Ave., a bank purchasing agent.

The polls will be open in those three wards from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

This will be the city's third election with its new fast-counting optical scan voting machines. Shea expects the final results to be completed by 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Election workers are being given a refresher course on the use of the machines this week and the machines themselves are being tested to eliminate operational bugs on election day.

Mayor James Sheets, seeking his fifth term, is unopposed for the third time this year.

Also unopposed are

The long-awaited Old Colony Railroad station will officially open to commuters in Quincy and neighboring communities on Monday, Sept. 29.

Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade confirmed the date on Tuesday.

Mayor James Sheets and officials from other communities that will be opening stations will get an advance ride on the morning of Friday, Sept. 26, when they board the commuter rail train and head to South Station in Boston for a special ceremonial opening of the state-funded, $480 million Old Colony line.

The ceremony is being held by the state Department of Transportation and the MBTA.

"They're going to have a major celebration," said Sheets, who added that state and federal officials are also expected to attend the event.

The Old Colony Railroad will include two separate lines: the Plymouth/Kingston Line and the Middleborough/Lakeville Line.

The Plymouth/Kingston Line will include stops at Kingston, Halifax, Hanson, Whitman, Abington, South Weymouth, Braintree and South Station.

Stations on the Middleborough/Lakeville Line will be located at Lakeville,

Sheets, D'Amico, Tracy Top Campaign Spenders

The top spenders so far in this year's city election campaign are Mayor James Sheets, Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico and Linda Tracy, Ward 3 council candidate.

The top fundraisers are Sheets, Michael McFarland, candidate for School Committee and D'Amico.

Financial campaign statements for the period from Jan. 20 to Aug. 29 were due for filing at the city election department on Monday.

According to those statements, Sheets, who is seeking a fifth term unopposed, raised $44,687 and spent $25,461.91.

D'Amico, who is running for re-election to a second term, raised $19,662 and spent $14,872.62.

McFarland, former executive secretary to Sheets, raised $16,061.54. He spent $4,431.80.

Tracy, a first-time candidate, raised $75 and spent $9,539.63. The balance was funded by $9,464.63 she loaned to her own campaign.

A preliminary election will be held Sept. 16 for the City Council races in Wards 1, 3 and 6. Receipts and expenditures for the candidates in those races are as follows:

•Ward 1: Peter Kolson, the incumbent and City Council president, has not yet filed his financial campaign statement. Candidates who missed Monday's deadline have an additional 10 days to do so. Kolson's opponents include Joseph Kasparian, who raised and spent nothing, and Gretchen Grant, who raised $86 and loaned $40.10 to her campaign to spend a total of $126.10.

•Ward 3: Incumbent Patrick McDermott raised $7,750.09 and spent $1,541.81. He is opposed by Tracy and by Robert Boussy, who raised nothing and spent $170 that he loaned to his own campaign.

•Ward 6: Incumbent Bruce Ayers raised $8,695 and spent $5,640.24. He is opposed by Brian McNamee, who raised $13,945 and spent 2,414.01; and

Retirement Reception For Chief Mullen Tonight

Retired Police Chief Francis Mullen will be honored at a retirement reception tonight (Thursday) at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, 27 Glendale Rd.

A cocktail hour will be held at 6 p.m. and presentations will follow at 7 p.m.

Among those who will be making presentations:

Norfolk County Sheriff John Flood, Federal Bureau of Investigations, Drug Enforcement Administration, Norfolk County Prosecutors, Quincy Family Commission, Massachusetts State Police, Boston Police Department Runners Club, Friends and Associates, Quincy Police Retirement Committee, Congressman William Delahunt and the Citizen Police Academy Alumni Association.

FRANCIS MULLEN

Also, Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci, Mayor James Sheets, Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke, Norfolk County Bar Association, Fore River Long Service Shipbuilders Club, Boston Police Department, Norfolk County Chiefs, Southeastern Chiefs of Police Association, Quincy License Board, Quincy City Council and the Quincy Public Schools.

Emcee for the event will be Quincy Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna. The invocation will be given by Fr. William McCarthy of St. John the Baptist Church.

The event will also include dinner, music and dancing.

Mullen, who retired last month, served the Quincy Police Department for 41 years including the last seven as chief. He became a patrolman in 1956, was promoted to sergeant and lieutenant in 1965 and 1969 respectively, and was named the city's 13th police chief by Mayor James Sheets in 1990.

Center Re-opens Friday

New Program Director Hired For Teen Get-Away

A new program director, Jim Graham, has been hired for the Teen Get-Away, Quincy's supervised recreational youth center.

The center, which meets at two locations, will reopen Friday, Sept. 12.

Executive Director Jo-Ann Bragg said, "We are very excited to hire Jim Graham as our new program director. He is well-qualified the position and someone who we, the Board of Directors, feel will be an asset to our organization and an inspiration to our members."

Graham holds a bachelor of science degree in physical education and recreation and is working toward his master's degree in human services. He is certified as an activity director and therapeutic recreation specialist and has certification in nonviolent crisis intervention. He has been a coach and worked with teens and has experience in writing grants.

"When the young people of Quincy return to our program they will see many familiar staff members' faces along with several new staff," said Bragg. "We are looking forward to another exciting year as we enter our fifth year of operation in which we have served on 12,000 teenagers."

On Fridays, the center is open to Quincy's sixth, seventh and eighth graders from 7 to 10 p.m. at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston. Activities include basketball, volleyball, bumper pool, video games, other games, listening to music, and watching television or a movie in the Teen Lounge. On Oct. 3, the Police Athletic League will host a Basketball Shoot-Out Tournament and prizes will be given to the top three winners in both the boys and girls divisions.

On Saturdays, the Teen Get-Away is open to the city's eighth through 12th graders from 8 to 11 p.m. at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center. Activities include swimming, basketball, volleyball, wallyball, ping pong, floor hockey, pool, listening to music, and hanging out. Upcoming special events include dances on Sept. 20 and Nov. 15 and a Three-on-Three Basketball Tournament at which trophies and other prizes will be awarded.

Anyone interested in joining must show proof of age, be a Quincy resident and sign a membership agreement which includes parent/guardian permission to join and an agreement to be substance and violence free.

Cost is $2 per visit although dances are $4. Membership benefits include usage of the center during hours of operation and an opportunity to participate in special activities, events and field trips.

For the sake of safety and accountability, members are now allowed to re-enter the center after leaving for the evening. All members must sign in and out each time they attend.

Appropriate behavior is expected at all times. The Teen Get-Away operates under a "Three Strikes, You Are Out" system.

All staff members have gone through a CORI check (Criminal Offender Record Information Check) done through the Quincy Police Department. A majority of the staff is trained in conflict resolution and certified in CPR, first aid and nonviolent crisis intervention.

For more information, call Bragg at 471-3822 or Graham at 847-4360 or 669-0346 (beeper).

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a permit to Our Lady Of Good Counsel Church, 227 Sea St., to hold a Church Fair Saturday, Sept. 20 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

•Allowed a change of club managers at the Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea St., from James Riggs to James B. Ryan.

•Issued a license to Thi Autobody & Frame Work, 448 Quincy Ave. for a repair shop license. Thi Tan Le will rent space from Kurtzman's. The license is contingent on a planned inspection by the board.

•Granted a Kareoke license to George Pepdjonovic, owner of the Eight Ball Billiard Parlor, 1585 Hancock St. Police Chief Thomas Frane said Pepdjonovic has the option to hire police detail if necessary during entertainment from Thursday through Sunday.

•Approved a request from State Street Bank, 150 Newport Ave., to store 4,750 gallons of gasoline in tanks of approximately 475 vehicles, an increase of 109 cars. The approval is contingent on a meeting with Jack Gillon, traffic engineer and Kathy Nugent, assistant building inspector. The cars would be stacked behind each other with a central key depository.

•Chairman Joseph Shea read a letter from the Lottery Commission which upheld the board's vote against allowing Keno at the 7-Eleven on Cope-land Street and the Shop & Save on Franklin Street. Both businesses had filed an appeal with the Lottery Commission.

•Scheduled a meeting on Sept. 23 regarding allegations that the Adams Heights Men's Club had served liquor to minors. The scheduling was delayed because the club manager was out of town.

•Rescheduled a meeting regarding Bob's Automotive, 52 Hilda St regarding complaints from neighbors citing excessive noise at the site.

•Rescheduled a meeting from The Bean Routine, 405 Hancock St. for a common victualer license and a transfer of ownership from Bourbon Street Cafe, Michael Condon to Harv Company, Martin F. Aronson.

At the end of Tuesday's meeting, Shea welcomed the new police chief Thomas Frane saying, "we were easy on him today" adding that two things on the already short agenda were continued until the next meeting.

Field For Inspectional Services Job Down To Eight

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The number of candidates for the position of Quincy's director of inspectional services has been reduced to eight.

Mayor James Sheets said this week that the committee formed to make a recommendation to him about the position has trimmed down the original field of candidates, which totaled about 30.

The committee consists of Quincy Personnel Director James Chiccino, John Keenan, executive secretary to the mayor; City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi and local contractor Paul Kennedy.

Sheets said he hopes to have a recommendation of about three finalists from the committee by Oct. 1. The mayor will then select the director from that group.

The $65,000-a-year position is being made available as part of the formation of the city's new department of inspectional services. Sheets and members of the City Council, which has approved the mayor's plan for the new department, said the change will make inspectional services more efficient by providing homeowners and business owners convenient "one-stop shopping" for construction and home improvement permits.

The new department will combine Quincy's previously separate building, plumbing, wire inspection, gas, conservation enforcement, and weights and measures departments.

The establishment of the inspector's position will result in the elimination of the $56,238-a-year Quincy building inspector's position. According to Sheets, Mulvey has accepted a new senior building inspector's position from the city that will pay an annual salary of $52,547.

The inspectional services director also will assume two duties currently performed by the building inspector: zoning enforcement and a seat on the Quincy License Board. Because Mulvey is now out on sick leave, those responsibilities temporarily are being handled by Acting Building Inspector Roger Wallin.

Quincy's inspectional services will move from the Department of Public Works Building on Sea Street to the JFK Health Center on Hancock Street sometime next year following extensive renovations to the center.

QUINCY POLICE DEPARTMENT recently received an alarm system for victims of domestic violence donated by Security Link Inc. of Woburn. The system is placed in the home of a victim, utilized until the domestic violence situation is resolved, and then moved to another victim's home. From left are Quincy Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna, Michael O'Connell of Security Link Inc. and Police Chief Francis Mullen.

City To Receive $3.1M For Concourse Project

The state will make available $3.1 million for the planned Quincy Center Concourse on Oct. 1, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The balance of the funding, a total of about $6 million, will be made available in October of next year. Sheets said the money will pay for all of the construction and landtaking costs associated with the project, although engineering costs may or may not be included in the $9.1 million total.

Sheets said the announcement made by the state means the project can move forward as scheduled.

"That means we could move forward with some groundbreaking in the late fall or early winter, and construction could start in the spring," he said.

The concourse, which will link Burgin Parkway with Hancock Street in Quincy Center, is seen by officials as a roadway that will not only help ease area traffic problems but also revitalize the downtown by improving access to Quincy Center.

Sheets and other city officials have said the concourse should be open to motorists by late 1998 or early 1999.

Adams Site To Host Constitution Day

The National Park Service, Adams National Historic Site will play host to a Constitutional Convention to celebrate Constitution Day Wednesday, Sept. 17 from 10 a.m. to noon. The event will be held at the Carriage House on Adams St.

Fifth grade students from the Wollaston School will assume the roles of various delegates to the Convention and will represent their state in a debate that will determine the fate of a nation. Led by George Washington (portrayed by a Park Ranger), in a top secret session, the debate becomes heated as the time draws short before the final vote is called.

After the debate each delegate signs his or her name to the document, rings the "Liberty Bell," receives a copy of the United States Constitution and the Massachusetts Constitution to keep as mementos, and eats a slice of the Constitution Cake.

Through this program students will gain a greater knowledge of the American system of government and a first hand appreciation for the cooperation and sacrifice it took the Founding Fathers to Form a More Perfect Union on Sept. 17, 1787.

For more information about the program, call 773-1177 or 770-1175.

Remembering Muriel

The word icon gets tossed around quite freely these days.

It's getting a bit over-worked.

But long before most of us even knew there was such a word or what it meant, we had a true icon among us: Muriel Jean Goudey.

MURIEL

She was a Quincy treasure as a teacher for 43 years and as a person for 92.

Those of us who were fortunate to have had her as a teacher at Quincy High School or knew her at Bethany Congregational Church or as a neighbor lost a good friend with her death last week.

But we have fond memories of her to cherish.

Her enthusiasm for teaching and that zest for life itself was like a good, sparkling champagne: bubbly. And those famous hats! That special smile.

In her class, English was never dull. For a quick change of pace she could always tell you about the big football game.

She was an outstanding, dedicated teacher who never lost interest in her students in the classroom or out. She wrote to the boys who went off to World War II and was deeply saddened over the ones that didn't come back.

She kept track of her students and their careers as they traveled through life. I'm sure she winced a few times when I got caught up on a preposition or dangled a participle. But she never mentioned it in our frequent chats.

Many of us got to call her Muriel instead of Miss Goudey as we put the years on and she seemed to have found the Fountain of Youth.

As the years went by, she became more like a classmate than a former teacher at our class reunions. She was an invited favorite to all class reunions.

Whenever she came downtown she always stopped by The Sun to say hello. She would update us on the Vo family she virtually adopted when they came from Vietnam. And proudly tell us of the scholastic and professional accomplishments of Kim Vo, "my granddaughter." And with pride, she closely kept tabs on Boston School Supt. Tom Payzant, a Quincy boy, who she knew from the day he was born but never had in school.

Or, knowing my association with the Salvation Army, drop by with a sizeable donation around Christmas.

She would fondly reminisce about yesterday, talk about today and, always, look forward to tomorrow with faith and that wonderful enthusiasm.

She came by one day when she was in her 80's and proudly announced: "I just bought a new car."

And she let it be known it wasn't going to sit in the driveway. And, it didn't. She wasn't a little old lady behind the wheel, either. She didn't crawl. She did her share of passing the slowpoke in front of her.

She loved that car.

But time was taking its toll. The old enthusiasm was still there but as she approached 92 the signs were there to slow it down.

On reaching 92 a couple of weeks ago, she planned to drive that car to Sunday service at Bethany one more time. And then reluctantly sell it.

But it wasn't to be. She didn't get to Bethany that Sunday. She was in the hospital where she died Aug. 29.

A friend noted: "Muriel dreaded parting with that car. And, she didn't after all."

Muriel Jean Goudey was a rare one-in-a-million.

You don't have to be a world celebrity to be an icon. You can be one in your own hometown.

Muriel was a genuine one.

CITY COUNCIL President Peter Kolson has a little confession.

KOLSON

While serving as acting mayor during Mayor James Sheets' recent two-week vacation, Kolson tried out Sheets' office chair.

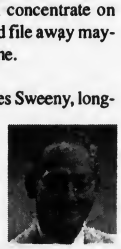
"It felt good," he says. "A nice fit. Nice and comfortable."

And, he further confesses:

"I would really like to be mayor someday. And, I'm a patient man."

Nowadays, patience is more than a virtue for anyone with an eye on the mayor's office. It's good political sense, too.

Sheets, who is still riding a popularity wave--running unopposed for the third time this year--may be occupying that third floor office for awhile yet. City Hall observers are convinced he intends to still be there when the new century dawns.



SHEETS

That would mean at least one more term--a sixth--after wrapping up No. 5 this year.

Meanwhile, Kolson says he will concentrate on being re-elected to the city council and file away mayoral thoughts until the appropriate time.

MILESTONE: Good friend Charles Sweeny, long-time former school committeeman and now a member of the Quincy Board of Registrars, is celebrating his 81st birthday.

SWEENY

A young 81, thanks in part to Betty, who takes good care of him, and the fact he stays active. And gets in a lot of walking.

A versatile fellow, too. Who will forget the horticultural history he made a few years ago when he discovered how to grow artificial roses? Luther Burbank would have marveled at that botanical break-through.

His long-time friends, like Dave Becker, have managed to forgive him for being such a rabid Yankee fan.

You know, Charlie comes from New York and lived down the street from George M. Cohan. Since then he has been a Yankee Doodle Dandy and just can't change.

But, anyway, Charlie, happy birthday. And, many, many more.

Princess Diana: Where To Put The Sadness

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

"Princess Diana has died," the midnight news reported. We were shocked. Earlier reports of the accident gave hope that, though injured, she would survive.

This midnight news must be a bad dream. In the morning it won't be true. In the morning it was true, but the "bad dream" thoughts persisted.

Shock turned to sadness. Sadness needs to go somewhere, to ease the ache perhaps. People put their sadness into flowers given at a place of honor. People put their sadness into tears and words among themselves.

Flowers are lovely for the moment. Words spoken and written bring relief. They are for today. What about the days and years ahead?

Princess Diana wanted to make a difference. She, like all of us, wanted to have her life count for something.

She, in her sadly shortened life, has made a great difference--far beyond what she could have realized. She raised not only money for her causes, but she raised our awareness of people for whom life has been extra difficult.

Her work has not stopped. We can carry it on. We can make her life count for even more, and make our lives count an extra measure in the doing.

Where to put the sadness?

Can we make this sadness a foundation of an effort--an effort to do an extra kindness, an extra act of charity beyond our usual day-to-day ways. This extra kindness may not be recognized and thanked. But each of us in the doing of a generous act, inspired by in honor of the Princess, will be acknowledged by our own good feeling.

The good feeling can take its place beside the sadness and go forward with us all in helping to make a difference.

There Is Still 'Much Room' For Improvement

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In my response (Aug. 21-Readers' Forum) to Mr. Davidson's letter, I meant only to suggest a few alternatives to throwing up one's hands in despair and defeat. The question that Mr. Davidson posed is an important and timely one; not to be dismissed out of hand, but carefully considered.

In the light of shocking response of neglect and abuse in our health care facilities, it seems that Mr. Noonan has painted too rosy a picture in his letter (Aug. 28-Readers' Forum). We all know the stories: people lying in their own excrement, a paralyzed man whose meal sits at his bedside waits to eat; no one comes. Patients who are roughed up, even beaten! Hapless residents of homes whose possessions and/or money are stolen by employees of the home.

Such base shenanigans occurring in a health care setting turns that place into a house of horrors. No wonder people fear these places.

Mr. Noonan brings up the subject of patients' rights. Rights are lovely things to have if you are able to assert those rights, or if you have someone to assert them for you. There are many among us who don't have a chick or a child. Who will speak for these?

A few words on living and dying with dignity: it doesn't have to be a great big deal. We bestow dignity onto one another simply by treating each other decently in every circumstance. Just by following the golden rule we can ensure every person's dignity.

Revisiting Mr. Davidson's question, "What can we as a society learn from the suffering of elderly as they reach their final days?" the answer seems clear: these folks need all the help they can get. While there have been many advancements in the health care field, there is still much room for improvement. Carpe diem!

Seeks Information On Corbett, McNamee Families

An open letter to the readers of The Quincy Sun:

Can Quincy residents provide any information on the families of Boston Corbett and his wife, Maria (McNamee), both of whom lived in Boston's South Cove District near South Station in the 1850s and 1860s?

McNamee was the daughter of William and Mary McNamee of Ireland. She had several brothers and sisters who are believed to have moved to both Dorchester and Quincy in the mid-1800s around the time the South Cove District began to become commercialized.

Some of Corbett's family members are believed to have gone to South Boston for the South Cove District in the mid-1800s and then to Quincy in the late 1800s. Others moved to Hyde Park and Norwood around this time.

I am seeking information on the movements of these family units from the South Cove District to Dorchester or South Boston, and then to Quincy, where some of them reportedly held domicile in the early 1900s--names, addresses of said family members in Quincy, time period of occupancy, etc.

Boston Corbett was born Nov. 28, 1832 in London or Ireland. He was the quizzical Union Cavalry trooper who killed John Wilkes Booth, President Lincoln's assassin in northern Virginia on April 26, 1865, according to some historical accounts. Other accounts that indicate that Booth killed himself in a burning barn.

Corbett married Maria on Feb. 27, 1855 in Holy Cross Catholic Church, 23 Franklin Place near the old Federal Courthouse in Boston's Fort Hill District. His wife died three years later in Milford (Sept. 7, 1858), where she is buried in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Any information on the Corbetts or McNamees of Quincy descended from those in Boston's South Cove District is welcome. Responses may be sent to The Mission Institute, 43 Woodglen Rd., Boston, MA 02136.

Bellotti Upsets Gov. Peabody

Sept. 11-17
1964
33 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Lt. Governor Frank Bellotti, 41, of Wollaston pulled the biggest upset victory in recent history by defeating incumbent Governor Endicott Peabody in the Democratic gubernatorial primary.

At his Boston headquarters, Bellotti called for party unity, saying, "We all won and we all lost in the primary and none of us should gloat over tonight's victory, but rather join forces for a Democratic victory in November."

Quincy gave its hometown candidate a huge margin of 3,723 votes over Peabody (9,046 for Bellotti; 5,232 for Peabody). Republican John Volpe was Bellotti's opponent in the November election.

WOODWARD AVE. LANDTAKING ON HOLD

At this week's meeting of the School Committee, the issue of the taking of Woodward Ave. was again postponed.

Taking of the roadway was considered for the connecting of Q.H.S. to the new Vo-Tech school. Maurice Daly, assistant superintendent for vocational training, said the issue had to be decided quickly so that the architects could finalize their plans.

Committee member Frank Anselmo said if the decision were left solely to the city council, Council President Joseph LaRaia might use it to bargain for the school committee's release of the old Washington School (that was being used for warehouse purposes).

ENROLLMENT UP AT QJC, ENC

The city's two colleges announced increased enrollments for the new school year.

Kenneth White, president of the College Association of Quincy and the South Shore (QJC) said that with the addition of 150 new students, the college's enrollment was at 850.

ENC's Wollaston campus reported an increase of 75 students for a full student count of 735, coming from 25 states and 15 foreign countries.

Stuffed Clams or Quahogs

While on vacation on the Cape, we noticed most of the restaurants served stuffed quahogs. I've always prepared them mostly with bread crumbs, but noticed they used mostly bread.

I've made them several times since and also over the Labor Day weekend. They can be made ahead of time and then baked when ready.

Though the years, I've saved the quahog shells which are large, but any size shell will do. You can also purchase large shells in specialty stores. Today's recipe makes ten large shells. One slice of bread for each large shell. is used.

Stuffed Clams

1 pound fresh minced clams or quahogs
10 slices of white American style bread
3/4 cup bread crumbs (seasoned)
2 tablespoons fresh parsley (chopped)
1 small onion
2 garlic cloves
olive oil
3 tablespoons cooking sherry juice from half a lemon
lemon wedges from two lemons

In hot oil, saute the chopped onion and garlic and add the parsley, sherry and lemon juice. Set aside.

Soak the bread in water. Squeeze and place in a bowl. Add the sauted mixture, the uncooked clams, the bread crumbs and mix until well blended. Salt if you wish. Mixture will be moist.

Brush each shell with oil and fill each one with the stuffing. Top it with a small sprig of parsley, maybe a sliced black olive and a strip of red pepper. I also placed a couple of pieces of shredded cheddar on top.

Place the shells on a cookie sheet and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 35 minutes, until cheese is melted and stuffing is hot. Serve with lemon wedges. Our little darlings loved them!

Torre Dei Passeri 75th Anniversary Dinner-Dance Sept. 26

The Torre Dei Passeri Mutual Benefit Society will celebrate its 75th anniversary Friday, Sept. 26.

A dinner-dance will be held at 7 p.m. in the Golden Lion Suite of the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

Tickets are $25 per person and may be obtained by calling 472-9360 or 472-0449.

Gino Stracco, Jr. is president of the society and James P. Papile is vice president and dinner chairman.

The society, located 262 Washington St., was founded in 1922 by a small group of men who had immigrated from the Italian town of Torre Dei Passeri which means "Tower of Sparrows."

The purpose for organizing was to provide mutual financial assistance to one another's families in times of sickness and death.

In addition to the need for financial support, there was also the need to socialize and to carry on the customs and culture of their homeland.

Today, the society has a third generation membership helping to carry on those traditions and customs.

In addition to Stracco and Papile, the other officers are:

Luigi J. Mariano, recording secretary; Steven Papile, financial secretary; Enrico Salvaggi, treasurer; Arthur Della Barba, Carmicco Della Barba and Emilio DiNardo, trustees; Richard Vena, orator; Anthony Angelis and Robert Mariani, masters of ceremony; John Cieri, Jr., guard and Anthony DiNardo, chaplain.

Past presidents, in order of succession, are Raffaele Papile, John Papile, Luigi Masciarelli, Salvatore Della Barba, Alfonzo Papile, Fiorenzo Fertile, Victor D'Olympio, Enrico Salvaggi, James P. Papile, Richard Vena and Robert Mariani.

Holiday House Tour Topic For Wollaston Garden Club

The Wollaston Garden Club, 48 Winthrop Ave., will open its new season Thursday, Sept. 18 at 11:45 a.m.

President Claire Currier will preside. Guest speaker will be Jane Granstrom, assistant director of the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy. She will discuss a Holiday House Tour.

Jean Colberg will make the floral arrangement. Clara Yeomans will be hostess.

ROGER AND CLAIRE VAKA will perform in "Bon Voyage With The Vakas," an original musical, today (Thursday) at 1:30 p.m. at First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd. The performance is being hosted by the Squantum Women's Club. For reservations, call 328-1126 or 328-7053.

Squantum Women To Host 'The Vakas'

The Squantum Women's Club, now in its 85th season, will host the musical "Bon Voyage With The Vakas" starring Roger and Claire Vaka today (Thursday) at 1:30 p.m. at First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd.

Roger Vaka grew up in Weymouth, began studying dance at age 5, and by age 18 was a professional dance instructor. His wife Claire, a native of Quincy, began training at age 10 as a vocalist at the Boston Conservatory of Music and has sung in the choirs at Star of the Sea Church in Squantum and the United Methodist Church in Wollaston.

The Vakas were married at St. John's Church in Quincy Center in 1976 and began their careers as entertainers in 1980. They have studied under Broadway coach Karen Shepard and have performed in Las Vegas, New York, California, Canada and Europe.

"Bon Voyage With The Vakas," an original musical, was created by Shepard and orchestrated by Brian Gurl. The public is invited. For reservations, call Ann Clarke at 328-1126 or Barbara Anderson at 328-7053.

Clark Chiropractic
Dr. Robert J. Clark

How Does Chiropractic Help?

Your spine consists of 26 vertebrae. When these spinal bones (vertebrae) are "locked up," fixated or not moving properly, a serious degeneration process is set in motion, which if neglected, becomes worse with time. This condition prevents you from functioning at your best and may make you more prone to stress, leading to sickness, arthritis, weakness, fatigue and early aging.

Chiropractic care can help detect, correct and reverse this often painless condition, if detected early enough. Call today to schedule an appointment and/or request our free educational brochure. No charge for the initial consultation.

Park Service Completes General Management Plan For Adams Historic Site

The National Park Service announces the completion of the General Management Plan for the Adams National Historic Site.

The plan sets the direction for management and development of the site for the next 10 to 15 years. The GMP includes an agenda for management, addressing planning issues, resource preservation, protection and visitor services. Initiatives under the plan include the interim visitor center, trolley transportation system, and restoration of the Adams Carriage House scheduled for 1999.

The Adams Site contains the birthplaces of two presidents, the home of four generations of the Adams family, the Stone Library, and the Adams crypt, the final resting place of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives. The buildings house a collection of decorative arts, personal papers, and books that are integrally tied to the historical development of the United States.

Recognizing the Adams Site as the premier place for the exploration of the Adams family's ideals of active citizenship and civic virtue, the GMP sets the site's goals as:

•To continue to preserve the site as steward of its historic structures, landscape and historic collection.

•To enhance the site's role as educator through expanded programs and topics of interpretation and visitor services.

•To serve an active role in conservation and education relating to the Adams legacy in local, national and international communities.

The Park Service plans to work in cooperation with the Adams Memorial Society, friends, neighbors, and partners to continue to protect its resources. Copies of the plan may be requested from Marianne Peak at 773-1177.

Chretien Running For State Representative

Former Quincy city councillor Larry Chretien announces he is a Democratic candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District.

The sea is now occupied by Michael Bellotti who is running for Norfolk County sheriff. The district is comprised of North Quincy, Montclair, parts of Wollaston, parts of West Quincy, and Precinct 6 in the town of Randolph.

The Democratic primary for representative, sheriff, and other state offices will be held in September, 1998.

LARRY CHRETIEN

Chretien said he is running because, "I greatly enjoyed the privilege of being in public service, I believe in the importance of good state government, and I know that I can be an effective representative. I am looking forward to putting my qualifications, record and vision before the voters of the district."

If elected, Chretien said his priorities will be "continuing progress in education reform, helping working families in the district to share in the benefits of a growing economy, protecting the environment, and working to make our state budget more efficient and responsive to our needs."

Chretien, 36, is the Energy Program director for Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., a non-profit, anti-poverty organization. He served as Ward 6 councillor from 1988-1995. Before that, he worked four years as a legislative aide to former State Rep. Thomas Brownell.

Chretien has a bachelor's degree in resource management from the State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry in affiliation with Syracuse University. He also holds a master's degree in economic policy from Northeastern University.

He and his wife, Karen, live at 166 North Central Ave., Quincy.

McCauley Requests Report On Public Schools Test Scores

School Committee member Francis McCauley, in a resolve introduced at the Sept. 3 School Committee meeting, has requested School Supt. Eugene Creedon report on recent test scores achieved by Quincy Public Schools students.

In his resolve, McCauley alluded to test scores reported by some news media. McCauley also requested Creedon to furnish the School Committee the most recent per pupil costs for the communities mentioned in the newspapers articles.

The report will be presented to the School Committee at its Oct. 8 meeting.

New England Wild Places Slide Topic At Library

Author Michael Tougias will give a narrated slide presentation about some of his favorite wild places in New England Tuesday, Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Tougias, a frequent guest on television's "Chronicle," weaves anecdotes, historical stories, and wildlife encounters into his presentation. Fifteen locations, ranging from Maine's Mount Kineo and Gulf Hagas to Massachusetts' Quabbin Reservoir and Connecticut's Housatonic River, are reviewed in depth.

All of the natural areas Tougias discusses are accessible for day trips or weekend outings. He will also give tips and where to stay, when to go, and how to find the specific locations.

Tougias is the author of several books, including "Until I Have No Country" (a novel of King Philip's Indian War), "Quiet Places of Massachusetts" and the most recent, "Autumn Trails: An Explorer's Guide to New England's Best Fall Colors." Books will be available for purchase and for signing.

ERA Central, Quincy Sun Co-Sponsoring MDA Lock-Up

ERA Central Real Estate and The Quincy Sun will co-sponsor the second annual Quincy Lock-Up Thursday, Sept. 25 to benefit the Greater Boston Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The Sun office at 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center, will take on the appearance of a jail from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

During that period, Quincy business men and women will be "arrested" and brought to the jail where they can be freed by calling friends for the "bail" money. They will use cellular phones donated by Cellular One.

Last year's Quincy event raised $23,000 in cash and pledges and was one of the most successful in the state.

Proceeds benefit children and adults in the Quincy and Greater Boston area affected by any one of 40 neuromuscular diseases. The funds go to patient services, medical equipment and research.

Anyone interested in serving a little "jail time" to help the fight against muscular dystrophy is asked to call Jennifer Martin at 617-575-1881.

Vincent Moscardelli of ERA Central, 128 McGrath Highway, is coordinating the event.

Orientation Information Night At NQHS Sept. 24

North Quincy High School will hold an Orientation Information Night for parents of freshmen Wednesday, Sept. 24 from 6:45 to 8 p.m. in the Media Center at the school.

Parents will learn about adjusting to high school, counseling service, promotion/graduation requirements, absence and tardy policies, understanding report cards and levels, and school activities.

For more information, call 984-8745.

Linda Stice To Speak At Altrusa Club Dinner

The Altrusa International Club of Quincy will hold its first dinner meeting of the season Tuesday, Sept. 16 at 6:30 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd.

Speaker will be Linda Stice, executive director of the Mayor's Commission on the Family, whose office is now located at 68 Saratoga St., Squantum Gardens.

Stice is married, mother of two children, lives in Wollaston Hill and has been a member of the School Committee for six years.

She will give a brief overview of the commission and discuss its new Transitional Home Program.

Abdominal Stretch Clinic At YMCA

A new exercise class, an Abdominal Stretch Clinic will be offered at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center.

Classes will be held Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:15 to 7 p.m. and will begin Sept. 15. Registration is now underway.

Mariano Seeks Re-Election To School Committee

RONALD MARIANO

Ronald Mariano, vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee, announces his candidacy for re-election.

Mariano, a former Quincy school teacher for 12 years, currently serves as a state representative and has a master's degree in education and a degree in business administration.

"I am committed to improving the Quincy Public School System from 'content to container.' We have made many improvements in the education as well as the school facilities of Quincy, but I view this as an ongoing process with much more to be done," said Mariano.

During his tenure as a school committeeman, Mariano said, he has led the fight for a tough attendance policy and for the alternative learning program.

"It is very important that our school system have policies and programs in place that set strict limits on behavior for our students and provide alternatives for those who have difficulty learning in regular classroom settings," he said.

Mariano said the greatest challenge facing the school system today is the poor condition of the physical plant at the middle and high school levels. That, plus the fact that the system is expanding at those levels, makes the problem immediate, he noted.

"We have relieved overcrowding at the elementary level by constructing the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center and the Marshall School, reopening the Beechwood Knoll School, and building additions to the Bernazzani and Parker schools," said Mariano. "We must continue on this reasoned course of action as we solve the problems at the middle and high schools.

"As a School Committee, we have responded to the changing needs of our students. The $1.6 million technology bond will allow our students to use the most up-to-date equipment and allow them to compete in college or in the changing world of work."

Mariano highlighted his efforts to reinstitute foreign languages and wrestling in the middle schools.

"The committee has worked hard to restore programs that were cut during difficult budget times and I want to continue to bring programs back in order of priority," he said.

"The Quincy Public School System has been nationally recognized for academic quality on two occasions," added Mariano. "One school receive a national award for its work on human rights. Our graduates are competitive in the job market and are attending college in greater numbers. The test scores of our students continue to rise. We provide our students with a reasonable class size in a school environment that is safe. By any evaluative standard, the Quincy School System receives outstanding grades.

"The perspective that I bring to the committee as a state representative is unique. It allows me to understand the problems in the implementation of state laws and to serve as an agent for change at the state level. I have worked hard to try to change the bilingual education laws and the special education laws as a result of the problems we face in Quincy. My state position also allows me to help access reimbursement for our school construction projects.

"I look forward to continuing to serve the taxpayers, the students, the parents, and the staff of the Quincy Public Schools in an effort to make our system the very best in the state."

Taxi Firm Moving To Braintree Temporarily

Marina Bay Taxi, 86 Sumner St., Quincy Point is moving to Braintree. effective Oct. 1

The action follows several meetings over many months with the Quincy License Board regarding complaints from abutters citing unsightly conditions and noise in the area.

Speaking at the board's meeting Tuesday, Atty. Kevin Burke, representing Basil Tawfik, owner of the taxi company said after many "failed deals" including a location in North Quincy, financial terms on the Braintree site were finally completed Sept. 5.. He said Tawfik has promised to pay rent at the Quincy site until March 1999 because of the remaining two years on the lease.

Burke said the move to F.X. Messina Co. site at 787 Granite St., Braintree, (behind Burlington Coat Factory) will be a temporary one calling it a "short term measure out of town," He said Tawfik has a "strong desire to remain in the City of Quincy. because of the good location, and the environment." He said ultimately they would seek an industrial property preferrably near the Fore River Shipyard or Ricciuti Drive where the activity wouldn't "impact the area."

Saying he "acknowledged the inappropriate nature of the site on Sumner Street," Burke told the board that the quality of the site and the vehicles are in "much better shape than when Tawfik took over."

He added "not one single piece of equipment there when Tawfik purhased the cab company is left" and that the inventory has been "completed replaced with new vehicles.

He said the site has significantly improved with a new fence and landscaping.

Board chairman Joseph Shea who said he "hated to see the cab company move out of Quincy" said the site of the cab company will be "rezoned in the future." He said that cabs that hold Quincy Medallions can operate in Braintree as long as taxes are paid.

Bridgewater, Campello, Randolph/Holbrook, Quincy Center and South Station.

Sheets and the other local officials who will be attending the Sept. 26 ceremony will all depart from their respective communities for the trip to Boston. They will be dropped off back at their "home" stations following the event.

Originally, Quincy was not slated to be part of the Old Colony line, but city officials lobbied Gov. William Weld for a station.

In early 1995, a small controversy erupted when state officials announced that a station would be built in Quincy at the expense of Braintree's planned railroad stop. But that November, after meeting with officials from both communities, Weld said during a press conference in Quincy Center that both Braintree and Quincy would receive stations.

The two stations are being constructed adjacent to the existing MBTA Red Line stations in Quincy Center and Braintree.

TAKE IT EASY WITH TALC

The powder puff has long been one of the classic symbols of femininity. Now, however, evidence is mounting that those luxurious clouds of cosmetic dust, intended as a soothing finishing touch, may instead be hazardous to health. The problem is that talcum powder is similar in chemical makeup to asbestos, a well-known carcinogen. A recent study concluded that women who regularly dusted themselves with talcum powder after bathing had a higher risk of developing ovarian cancer. Even higher risks were reported among women using talc-based feminine hygiene sprays. It is estimated that as many as one in ten cases of ovarian cancer might be linked to the use of talcum.

P.S.: Cosmetic products must list talc if it is an ingredient. Check the labels! When you visit your physician, ask questions about questions which concern you to best protect your health. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I listen to your concerns. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550.

SECONDARY LUNCH

Sept. 15-19

Mon: pizza, tossed salad, fresh fruit or fruit juice, milk.

Tues: crispy chicken nuggets, sweet and sour sauce, rice pilaf with peas, multi-grain roll, milk.

Wed: double decker beef burger, oven-fried potatoes, fresh fruit or juice, milk.

Thurs: Italian cold cut submarine sandwich with lettuce, tomato and pickles; fruit cup or juice, milk.

Fri: cheese-stuffed pasta shells, meat and tomato sauce, green beans, dinner roll, fruit cup, milk.

City Departments To Move Following JFK Renovations

Three city departments, all part of Quincy's new department of inspectional services, will relocate to the JFK Health Center on Hancock Street following extensive renovations to the center.

The city's building, wiring and plumbing departments, which will be among those comprising the inspectional services department, will move from the Department of Public Works Building at 55 Sea St. to the JFK Center following the renovations, according to Mayor James Sheets. The renovations are slated to begin next month and last six to eight months, he said.

The mayor noted that the department of weights and measures--also part of inspectional services--already is located at the center and will return following completion of the work.

Most of the departments currently located at the JFK Center will be moved to temporary homes during the renovations. For instance, the Quincy Health Department will move to the old Remick's building in Quincy Center while the work is being done, Sheets said.

Sheets added, however, that at least one of the departments now located in the center will be moved permanently: the Quincy Veterans Services Department, which will move to the old Spanish-American Hall on High School Avenue.

"That will be their building," he said.

The $1 million renovation project at the JFK Center is funded by a bond issue passed by the City Council at Sheets' request. It will include the addition of handicapped accessibility, improved computerization, and a number of other changes.

Sheets said in the future, the city will eventually have to find more room for the Quincy Data Processing Department at City Hall, which has expanded over the last several years. That department, however, will remain in the same building.

"We'll have to remanage the space in this building (City Hall)," said Sheets. "That's what it comes down to."

E911 Service Underway

The city was expected to begin operation of its new Emergency 911 (E911) phone system yesterday (Wednesday).

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday the system, which is designed to help dispatchers provide quicker, more efficient service in emergency situations, should help save lives.

"The response time should be much faster," he said.

While the older, basic 911 service answered calls at a central place--all 911 calls which originate from within a telephone exchange--E911 service answers calls from a certain geographic area. In addition, the E911 service provides dispatchers on the caller's telephone number and location.

However, those using the service should continue only to dial the same three digits that have always been used for emergencies: 9-1-1.

Sheets said the service will operate out of the Quincy Police Station with a computer link to Quincy Fire Headquarters.

The E911 service already has been implemented in other cities and towns throughout Massachusetts.

ELEMENTARY LUNCH

Sept. 15-19

Mon: pizza, fresh fruit, fruit juice, milk.

Tues: Early release day. No lunch served.

Wed: cheese-stuffed pasta shells, meat and tomato sauce, green beans, dinner roll, fruit cup, milk.

Thurs: sliced turkey breast served on a French roll, carrot sticks, fresh fruit or juice, milk.

Fri: grilled hot dog, baked beans, fresh fruit or fruit juice, milk.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin.

There were not enough candidates for preliminary election contests for councillor at-large, school committee and Ward 4 councillor.

Five candidates filed nomination papers for councillor at-large, two shy of the seven needed for a preliminary run-off for six nominations for three seats.

Filing were incumbents Tim Cahill and Paul Harold, former Mayor Francis McCauley, David McGillicuddy and Sabina Kavanaugh Stenberg.

One of the three seats will be vacant as Councillor Michael Cheney has decided not to seek re-election.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, seeking a second term, is opposed by Stephen Hawko. But, without a third candidate, there is no preliminary contest.

Six candidates filed for school committee, one short of the seven needed for a preliminary election contest.

The six are incumbents Jo-Ann Bragg and Ronald Mariano, Kevin Coughlin, Michael McFarland, John Rodophele, Jr. and Tracy Wilson.

One of the three school committee seats is being vacated by McCauley to run for councillor at-large.

The two winners in Wards 1, 3 and 6 next Tuesday, and the candidates for councillor at-large, school committee and Ward 4 councillor, will square off in the Nov. 4 city final election.

Voter Registration At Farmers' Market Sept. 19

The City of Quincy Registrar of Voters will be stationed at the Quincy Farmers' Market to accept new voter registrations Friday, Sept. 19 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

All shoppers who wish to vote on the November city election are invited to register while purchasing their fruits and vegetables from their local growers. The market operates at the John Hancock parking lot, across from Quincy District Court on Chestnut St.

The market continues to operate every Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Oct. 31. The city provides free customer parking up to two hours.

The market has now a full array of locally grown produce. Among the season's crops are sweet corn, tomatoes, string beans, potatoes, cabbage, cucumbers, blueberries, apples, peaches, melons, herbs, eggplant, variety of peppers, summer squash and zucchini. A variety of brilliant fall mums are also now ready for planting.

There are many benefits for purchasing locally grown products. They have been picked usually the day of the market and therefore are the freshest possible. Secondly, buying from the local grower supports local agriculture and preserves open space.

The Quincy Farmers' Market is certified to accept the Farmers' Market Coupons, distributed to the Women, Infants & Children Federal Supplemental Feeding Program, and elders on limited income.

Surgeons-Podiatrists

IF YOUR HEEL HURTS . . .

The term "well-heeled" may take on a different meaning for the millions of Americans who suffer from pain. As the part of the anatomy that bears the brunt of the body's full weight with every step, the heel has a huge job to do. Problems can be caused by biomechanical faults such as flexible flat heels, high arches, and tight Achilles tendons. Other heel pain villains include weight gain, high-impact athletics, lower back problems, and long periods of standing or walking. Heel bursitis or inflammation of the plantar fascia (the fibrous band that extends from toes to heel) are also common sources of pain. Depending on the cause, treatment may range from rest and anti-inflammatory medication to surgery.

P.S. The heel bone, or calcaneus, is the largest bone in the foot.

Do your feet hurt? Don't suffer. If you are suffering from a foot problem, including heel problems, have it treated by a "board-certified" expert in podiatry. If the need for surgery is indicated, you can be sure of receiving quality and expert care. Call us at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

Tips On Ordering A Home Appraisal

How do you know when your home needs a full appraisal, or when an inspection would be sufficient?

Comparable sales and average prices per square foot can give you a vague idea of your home's value, but can also be highly inaccurate if your home has had improvements or doesn't fit the cookie-cutter mold of your neighborhood.

So when should you order a written appraisal of your property? The American Society of Appraisers, one of the largest organizations representing appraisers of all disciplines, suggests you should order an appraisal when:

•Selling Your Home- If you are relocating, knowing the current market value can help you negotiate a sale quickly, especially if you have a unique property, such as the oldest house on the largest house in the area. If you've done any renovations, an appraisal will reflect the increased value to your home.

•Buying A New Home--Knowing the current market value of the home you are considering buying can keep you from agreeing to an inflated price and save you money.

•Buying Insurance For Real Estate--By establishing the current market value of the property, you can ensure that you have the facts to purchase sufficient insurance coverage.

•Filing A Claim With An Insurance Company--If you have to file for a casualty loss, it's important to determine the market value of the property to determine replacement costs.

•Applying For A Home Equity Loan--An appraisal will help establish the amount of equity you have.

•Taxation Increase--If you plan to challenge a tax assessment on your home, an appraisal can provide support to obtain the correct valuation for tax assessment.

•Refinancing--If you decide to refinance, an appraisal can provide support to establish the market value of your property and the amount of the new mortgage.

•Removing Private Mortgage Insurance (PMI)--Most lenders are willing to drop their requirement for PMI when your home equity reaches a certain level. A current market value appraisal can provide the evidence necessary to support the equity in your home.

Single-Family Home Sales Increase In Massachusetts

Single-family home sales improved for the eighth consecutive quarter in Massachusetts during the three-month period from April to June, as favorable interest rates, a high level of consumer confidence, and a tight rental market across the state drew large numbers of buyers in the housing market this spring.

Sales of detached single-family homes rose 8.3 percent in Massachusetts in the second quarter of this year versus the same quarter in 1996, while condominium sales climbed 24.7 percent in the comparable period, according to data released by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

The MAR report shows 12,983 detached homes were sold in Massachusetts during the second quarter of 1997 versus 11,987 during the same period last year. In addition, 2,849 condominiums were sold from April to June this year versus 2,284 in the same quarter in 1996, making the second quarter of 1997 the most active three-month period for condo sales in the Bay State this decade. In June alone, 1,094 condos were sold, the most sales ever recorded in one month for the state's history.

"This is the spring market since 1987," said MAR President Richard Dils. "Mortgage rates have been falling all quarter, the economy is expanding, and home values are appreciating at a modest, healthy rate, creating great confidence in today's market."

In addition, inventory levels are climbing again, according to Dils, as new construction picks up and those who bought in the late 1980s realize the equity necessary to list their homes and reenter the market.

Regionally, during the second quarter, detached home sales increased at levels greater than the statewide rate of growth in the South Shore (+24 percent), Southeast (+20.1 percent), greater Boston (+13.5 percent), and Central (+12.3 percent) regions. Modest sales gains also took place on Cape Cod and the Islands and in the Northeast region, but sales fell by 4.3 percent versus the second quarter of 1996 in the West.

Meanwhile, in the condo market, every region of the state saw an increase from the second quarter of last year to April-June 1997. The most significant sales gains occurred in the Southeast, where sales doubled from 21 to 42 percent, and in the Central and greater Boston regions, where the number of units sold more than 30 percent in the past 12 months.

"Condos, in particular, are selling very well right now," Dils said. "The tight rental market is driving up rent prices, and that's created a new wave of first-time buyers looking to purchase affordable entry-level homes. Condos also hold strong appeal for empty-nesters because they require less maintenance on the part of the owner. With the large numbers of baby-boomers hitting middle age in the next several years, the condo market should remain healthy for some time to come."

Through the first half of the year, condo sales increased 22.9 percent statewide, jumping from 3,572 units sold in the first half of 1996 to 4,389 sales from January-June of this year. Additionally, every region of the state experienced an increase in sales of at least 14 percent during the first six months of 1997 versus the same period last year. In the detached home market, sales statewide rose 8.2 percent in the first six months of 1997 versus the same period a year ago, rising from 18,870 closed sales in the first two quarters of 1996 to 20,419 in the comparable period this year, but only four of seven regions--the South Shore (+19.9 percent), Cape and Islands (+12.5 percent), greater Boston (+11.8 percent) and Central (+10.1 percent)--posted double-digit sales growth in that time.

As part of its report, the MAR also found the statewide average selling price for condominiums topped $125,000 for the first time in the 90s during the second quarter. The 1997 second quarter average price of $126,735 is 7.2 percent higher than last year's second quarter average of $118,275, and the highest price attained since the third quarter of 1995.

Also, the statewide average selling price for detached homes rose for the 10th consecutive quarter between April and June 1997, climbing from $188,302 in the second quarter of 1996 to an average of $196,185 in the same period this year, a gain of 4.2 percent.

In the condo market, second quarter prices were most pronounced in the Northeast, Southeast, South Shore and West regions, where average selling prices rose 9.5-12.5 percent over the same quarter in 1996. No region saw a decline in price. Similarly, in the detached home market, every region reported some appreciation, with the greatest increases, between 4.5 and 6 percent, occurring on Cape Cod and the Islands, the Northeast and South Shore regions.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Joe Trocki: 'People's Time Is Important'

Express Lumber: The Name Says It All

By LIAM FITZGERALD

For Joe Trocki, president and owner of Express Lumber in South Quincy, the name of his business says it all.

"We know people's time is important, and they don't want to waste time loading and unloading a cart and waiting in long lines," said Trocki, a Quincy resident for the past 18 years.

"That's why we opened this business," he added. "People can drive up, decide what they want and pay for the items. Then our sales staff will help you load the vehicle and you can be on your way."

What attracted Trocki to the business' location at 100 Penn St. (off Burgin Parkway) was its accessibility from Routes 93 North and South. It is located on the site of the former Lumber Liquidators, across from the Quincy Adams MBTA train station.

"You can jump on the highway, be here quickly, get in and get out," he said. "We're about two or three minutes from the highway. We also just added a sign on Burgin Parkway so people heading towards the highway know where to find us."

Trocki, 44, also opened the business to provide residents of Quincy and neighboring communities with what he called "an alternative to Home Depot."

"I thought Quincy was in dire need of a lumber yard that provided superior quality products at a competitive price with quick, friendly service," he said. "In the Quincy area, there were no lumber companies other than Home Depot once Grossman's left. We're trying to step in where they left off and set up our place like theirs.

"And even though we've only been in business for a month, the people who come here are impressed with how fast they're in and out. We've gotten quite a warm reception, and a lot of people are telling their friends about us. We're cautiously optimistic that the concept will work; we just have to give it a little time and see what happens down the road."

Express Lumber's convenient hours, 6 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, have also brought in customers looking to get a jump on the work day.

"During the week, we open usually an hour before our competition," said Trocki. "Contractors who come here when we open can be on the job with the materials they need by 7 a.m., not waiting in a long line."

JOE TROCKI, president and owner of Express Lumber, 100 Penn St., South Quincy, said he opened the business to fill a void in Quincy left by the departure of Grossman's. "I thought Quincy was in dire need of a lumber yard that provided superior quality products at a competitive price with quick, friendly service," he said. (Sun photo/Tom Gorman)

And all the materials contractors and others purchase from Express Lumber carry the owner's seal of approval.

"We carry all top quality material," said Trocki. "We set up T-sheds with plywood and carry pressure-treated wood, dimensional lumber, finished pine, landscaping ties, among many others. We have whatever you need for renovations and additions.

"We sell a lot of decking, and our price on cedar decking is about half of what competing yards sell it for now. Also, our 2x4 8's kiln dried are 99 cents each, which is a bargain basement price."

Yet another convenience of shopping at Express Lumber is that the business offers delivery to customers with big orders. The business also accepts all major credit cards--Visa, MasterCard, American Express, and Discover--and checks.

"Though most of our business is drive-thru, we also deliver when the order is too large for the person to pick up," said Trocki.

Assisting Trocki in the business' early stages are Ken Boisvert, general manager, and Dave Lunetta, assistant manager, both of whom have years of experience in the lumber business.

"We all have been in lumber for a number of years, so whatever questions you have about it, we should have the answers," said Trocki, who became involved in lumber seven years ago when a friend introduced him to the business.

"Whatever we can do for you, just ask," he added. "That's what we're here for: to make your shopping experience quick, easy and hassle-free."

For those who would like more information about Express Lumber and the services it offers, Trocki encourages you to call the business (617) 774-1968. The fax number is (617) 471-6490.

In the long run, Trocki and the staff at Express Lumber hope to gather a loyal following in Quincy and the surrounding areas.

"I read The Quincy Sun, and I think a lot of people in Quincy read the Sun," he said. "Those are the people we'd like to attract into our business. I think once people come see what we're about, they'll keep coming back.

"We're really looking forward to serving the lumber needs of Quincy and other local communities for years to come."

Presidents A Mix Of Veterans, New Faces

Quincy Opens Season Friday Vs. Bishop Stang

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Despite losing 13 starters (including nine on offense) from last year's victorious Thanksgiving Day squad, head football coach Peter Chella believes Quincy High School can be competitive in the Old Colony League.

"We have a lot of players filling in the holes left by some significant contributors, but they've worked hard through the off-season and have looked good in the scrimmages," said Chella, in his third year at the helm at Quincy.

"The JV team had a solid season last year, finishing with an 8-1-1 record, and a lot of those guys moved up to the varsity," he added. "It may take a little while, but by the end of the year, we should have a pretty good team, hopefully with a record above .500."

The new-look Presidents open their season Friday night at 7 against Bishop Stang at Veterans Memorial Stadium. In last year's opener, a late Stang field goal sent Quincy to a 24-22 defeat.

"Last year, they had a huge size advantage and drove the ball on us at will," said Chella. "They're not as big as they were, but they have a very good athlete in quarterback Greg Osuch, who runs the wishbone offense quite well for them.

"They key for us will be to keep him in check. If we do that, and keep our mistakes down and fire and intensity up, we should have a chance to win the game."

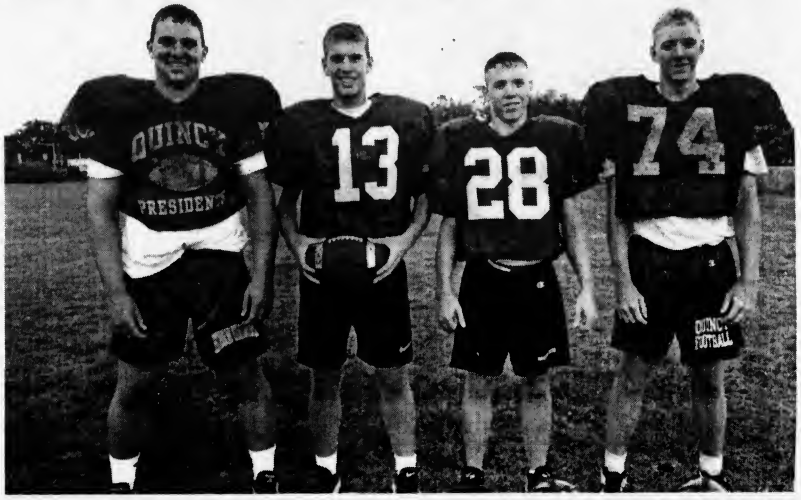
The Presidents' final tune-up came last Friday in a scrimmage against B.C. High at the Stadium. Though the Eagles won, 14-0, Chella was impressed with the Presidents' defensive play.

"Other than a few plays, we held them in check," he said. "I was pleased with the overall play of the defense. Offensively, I think we need a little more work, but that will happen when you lose so many starters."

Taking the snaps from center will be senior Kevin Moore who last season backed up three-year starting quarterback Mark Glynn.

"Kevin's one of our captains, along with Dan Nichol, Pat Harrington and Steve Wiltshire," said Chella. "He's shown a lot of leadership and played a big role against North Quincy last year. He also may see some work at safety."

The task of filling the shoes of powerful tailback Kevin Connolly (900 yards, seven TD's in '96) will be left to senior Shaun Faherty.



"He (Faherty) has a lot of quickness and has shown bursts of speed in the preseason," said Chella. "He has the ability to cut on a dine and has good vision. He's going to give defenses a lot of problems."

Creating holes and blocking for Faherty will be senior fullback Steven Maze, who Chella called "a leader on both sides of the ball."

Leading the offensive line will be senior captains and three-year starters Nichol (left tackle) and Wiltshire (right guard), both of whom are "All-Scholastic caliber," according to Chella.

"Dan is the best two-way lineman I've seen at Quincy High," said Chella. "He's shown the commitment, focus and intensity you don't see as much any more. He's as good a lineman as you'll find on the South

QUINCY'S FOUR CAPTAINS, from left, seniors Dan Nichol, Kevin Moore, Pat Harrington and Steve Wiltshire will lead the Presidents into the season opener Friday against visiting Bishop Stang. Three-year starters Nichol and Wiltshire will anchor the offensive and defensive lines, Moore will start at quarterback and may see some action at safety, while Harrington will be one of Moore's targets at wide receiver, in addition to his duties as a defensive back.

Degan Road Race Sunday

The fifth annual U.S. Marshal William F. Degan Memorial 10K Road Race and 5K Run/Fun Walk will be held Sunday in Quincy.

The event is held in honor of Degan, the Quincy native who was killed in the line of duty while serving with the U.S. Federal Marshal Service in August 1992.

The races begin and end at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Starting time is 10 a.m.

Race organizers are expecting about 1,500 runners and walkers to participate.

In addition to the Degan family, those slated to participate in the race include former Gov. William Weld, acting Gov. Paul Cellucci and Cong. William Delahunt. Francis Mullen, who recently retired as the city's police chief, will fire the starting gun.

This year, children's charities in Quincy will be the beneficiary of the majority of the race's proceeds, said Bill Graney, Degan Road Race committee member and spokesperson.

Last year, nearly 1,500 runners helped raise $22,000.

The fee to register the day of the race is $15. Registration will be from 8 to 9:30 a.m. at the stadium.

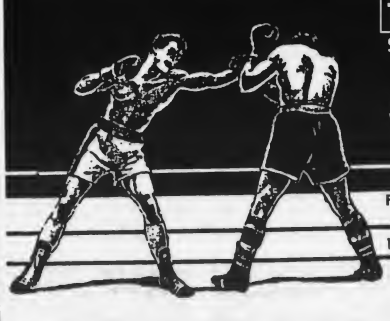
Prizes will be awarded to all first-place division finishers and others at the conclusion of the race.

For more information or to obtain an application, call (617) 576-9860. Mail entrance form and nonrefundable check to: The Degan Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 751, 60 Murphy Memorial Drive, Quincy, MA 02269.

Women's Fitness Classes Start Sept. 15 At Fore River Clubhouse

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct women's fitness classes at the Fore River Clubhouse for seven weeks starting Monday, Sept. 15.

Instructors for the classes will be Mary Manoli on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and Sarah Cobban on Tuesdays and Thursdays.



Classes are offered weekdays at 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. and will offer the same instruction. They are designed to improve and strengthen flexibilty, endurance and overall fitness.

Registration cost is $27. To register, stop by the main office of the Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery. Registration will also be taken at the first session of each class on Sept. 15 and 16.

For more information, call the Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Shore."

"He's also broken every weightlifting record here and squats 500 pounds and benches in the 365 to 370-pound range. He's drawn attention from the I-AA level on down. Both UNH and Northeastern have expressed interest in him.

"Steve (Wiltshire) is also an important player on the offensive line. He had a fantastic day on Thanksgiving, making the game-saving tackle near the goal line. He's a great student and is looking at Colby as a college he may go to."

Joining this duo on the offensive line will be senior Jemel Copeland, right tackle; Jay Crossman, left guard; and senior Tom Kelly, a center. Senior Greg Jaskinia will play both offensive and defensive line and junior Matt Agnew will see time on the offensive line and perhaps the defensive line as well.

The receiving corps will include senior wide receivers Harrington and Kevin McPartlin and senior tight end Jim Quigley. Quigley steps in for departed three-year starter Jon Ryan. Senior flanker Bryan Dunn has impressed the coaching staff with his hard work in the off-season.

"Bryan's really emerged and should help us this year on both sides of the ball," said Chella. "He's grown and worked out and will be one of the players we look for big things from."

On the defensive side, the ends will be Wiltshire and Quigley, with assistance from sophomore Mike Chenette and juniors Tom Agnew and Shu Yang. Nichol and sophomore Sean Fitzpatrick will start at defensive tackle. The nose guard position will be manned by juniors Nathan DoRosario and Patrick Connolly.

At linebacker, senior Bill Armstrong and Maze have secured starting positions, while seniors Tim Lewis, Kelly and McPartlin and sophomore Justin Curran will also see action at linebacker.

"It'll be tough to fill the void left by Mike Russo, but we have some talented linebackers in Armstrong, who's back for another year, and Maze, among others," said Chella.

Dunn and sophomore Danny Kelly are two others who could play either linebacker or defensive back, said Chella.

Keeping an eye on opposing receivers will be defensive backs Harrington, Dunn, Faherty and Tom Kelly. Juniors John Katsarikas and Mike Lencki, along with sophomores Nick DiStasi and Tim Pezzulo, all have a shot at playing in the defensive backfield.

Already playing a number of positions, Dunn will assume punting duties, with Danny Kelly serving as the backup. Lewis, Maze and sophomore Mike Turner were battling it out in practice this week for the placekicking job.

Looking at the OCL, Chella sees Bridgewater-Raynham and Silver Lake as two of the frontrunners, with the rest of the slots up for grabs.

"There really isn't an unbeatable team this year," he said. "I think we'll be right in the thick of things and make some noise in this league."

Outlook Is Bright For North Cross Country

Under the direction of head coach Geoff Hennessy, now in his ninth year at the helm, the North Quincy High School girls' and boys' cross country teams should improve on last year's records.

Hennessy welcomed 31 candidates for his ninth season of cross country. Assisting him will be Jeremy Gott, former North Quincy star, and Sherrin (Quintiliani) Gallagher, a former North Quincy and University of Vermont standout.

The North girls, 4-4 last fall, will be led by sophomores Lynda Wilson, Sarah Houghton, Genevieve O'Brien, Heather Meaghan and Amy Cheung, plus junior tri-captain Ashley Crawford, who has been hampered by injuries the past two falls. Also back are junior captains Shirley Wu and Nancy Gardner, senior Diane Yu and sophomores Lisa Chow, Charlene Cote, Christine Marre.

Freshmen duo Linda Nguyen, the 1997 city champion in 800 meters, and Kelly Rose O'Brien, a Quincy Track Club standout and younger sister of Genevieve, bring their talents to this fall's squad. Other newcomers include Jessica Lambert, Ellen Blaney and Amanda Hernon.

"We'll be in the thick of the race," said Hennessy, who feels this could be his best girls' cross country squad yet. He picked Bridgewater-Raynham, Falmouth and Barnstable to be the Old Colony League powers.

The North boys will seek to turn last season's 2-6 record around following the losses of Matt Quinn and Jimmy Wan to graduation. The boys will be paced by senior captains Joe Linskey and Jay Newhall. Other returners include juniors Rick Walsh, Chi Chung and Chris Barra and sophomore Peter Connolly.

Looking to contribute in their first season are seniors Conor Quility, a three-year track athlete, and Bill Walker, who has played soccer, football, hockey and baseball at North. Other new faces include freshmen Brian Breslin, Paul Griffith, Paul Zenga and Steve Bartkowski, along with Chris Johnson and Sean-William Goodale.

The girls and boys open their campaigns next Wednesday, Sept. 18 against B-R at Pageant Field.

City Tennis Tournament Begins Its 27th Campaign

Near perfect weather made for ideal playing conditions as the City of Quincy Annual Tennis Tournament began play for the 27th year.

The tournament, sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, will crown city champions in eight events over the next two weeks.

The tournament is once again under the supervision of John Franceschini, longtime tournament director, assisted by Michelle Drury of the Recreation Department staff.

Matches are played evenings and weekends at the Russell Park Tennis Courts behind Quincy High School. Bleacher seating is available and there is no charge for spectators.

He graduated in 1996 from North Quincy High School, and received an associate degree in 1996 from Massasoit Community College, Brockton.

SOCCER

Presidents Pick Up Win, Loss And Tie

The girls' soccer team at Quincy High School picked up its first victory Monday, romping over non-league foe Monsignor Ryan Memorial, 13-1, at Varsity Field.

Scoring two goals apiece for Quincy were junior captain Leanne Martin, senior Kerry Duffy, sophomore Amy Papile and freshman Kerrin Griffin. Senior Jess DiBona, senior captain Kara McSweeney and freshman Katie McEvoy each added a goal apiece.

Quincy was back in action yesterday (Wednesday) at Bridgewater-Raynham. Next Tuesday at 4 p.m., Quincy hosts Plymouth South and next Thursday, Quincy travels to Falmouth for a 4 p.m. game.

Last Saturday, the Presidents hosted Dennis-Yarmouth and played well for the first 40 minutes, as neither team scored a goal. However, the visitors from D-Y scored four unanswered goals to collect a 4-0 victory.

"We played very well for the first 40 minutes, but allowed some unnecessary goals later on," said Quincy head coach Robin Welinsky, in her second year at the helm. "We have a great chance to put D-Y away on their home field."

The Presidents opened the season on the road against Taunton and came away with a 0-0 tie.

"This was a great opener for us," said Welinsky. "The team pulled together and played quality soccer but unfortunately couldn't put the ball into the net. We'll beat Taunton at home at the end of Septemeber."

Jen Grogan turned in a solid peformance in goal, turning away seven shots and McSweeney controlled the back at sweeper.

"Kara's unstoppable both offensively and defensively," said Welinsky. "She's a fine player."

Other returning players looking forward to a successful season are senior captain Marisa Ross, seniors Kristin Stenberg, Diane Hanlon and Michelle Boncek, juniors Kim DiBona, Julie Gibbons and Laura McEvoy, sophomore Kelly Raymer and freshman Kerrin Griffin and Caitlyn Flaherty.

Red Raiders Blank Randolph

The North Quincy High School boys' soccer team opened its season last week after a strenuous pre-season topped off by a visit from New England Revolution players Alberto Naveda and Leonardo Squadrone.

The Red Raiders, an extremely young team, faces a demanding schedule this year, playing perennial Old Colony League powers Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Plymouth South.

After splitting their first two games, the Red Raiders fell to visiting Falmouth, 3-0, Monday.

The Red Raiders visited Barnstable yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m., host Silver Lake Friday at 4 p.m. and Cohasset next Monday at 3:30 p.m. North plays its home games at Teal Field, off Newbury Ave. behind the high school. Games are open to the public and free of charge. All are welcome.

Last Friday, the Red Raiders blanked non-league foe Randolph at home, 6-0 as junior goalkeeper Robbie Bell posted his first shutout. North's offense was led by senior captain Shea, with two goals and two assists. Other goal scorers were sophomore T.J. Bell and seniors Miller, Norton and Stockdale.

"It's nice to have the kids win early in the season," said Dano, "but we have to keep our perspective. If we want to enjoy that winning feeling again, we're going to have to work harder than we did today."

The season opener was played at Plymouth South with North losing, 4-1. The Panthers scored twice in the early minutes, a setback from which North could not recover. According to Dano, inexperience was a vital factor.

"We have a new goalkeeper and a new defensive alignment, and it's going to take some time until we're comfortable with it," he said.

The second half featured North's first goal of the season, scored on a restart from Shea, who crossed the ball to Norton, who then headed the ball in at the far post.

North Falls To Falmouth; Silver Lake Next NQ Foe

Coming off shutout victories in its first two games, the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team fell victim to host Falmouth, 4-0, Monday in an Old Colony League battle.

The Red Raiders hosted Barnstable yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. at Teal Field.

Friday at 4 p.m., they host tough OCL opponent Silver Lake, also at Teal Field. Next Monday at 3:30 p.m., they host Cohasset in a non-league game at Varsity Field.

In the loss to Falmouth, the Red Raiders kept the game close in the first half until Kippy Morris (two goals) broke a scoreless tie with 12 minutes left to give Falmouth a 1-0 lead.

Playing under extremely windy conditions (30 m.p.h. winds), the Red Raiders yielded goals at the two-, eight- and 19-minute marks of the second half.

North Quincy head coach Bregoli commended the strong defensive play of senior tri-captain Kristen Keohane at the back line, sophomore midfielder Maureen Holleran and junior sweeper Rachael Powers.

Last Friday, the Red Raiders shut out non-league foe Randolph, 3-0, on the road. Senior tri-captain wing Laurie Flynn scored her third goal of the year 14 minutes into the game, taking a feed from junior stopper Dororthy Cronin and depositing a shot into the top right corner to break a scoreless tie.

Eighteen minutes into the second half, junior forward Betsy Stone scored from 10 yards off a pass from freshman wing Kellee Connolly for a 2-0 North lead. Flynn later scored her fourth goal of the season on a penalty kick to provide the Red Raiders with some breathing room.

Junior keeper Kristen Bowes recorded the shutout, coming up with a huge save in the second half that grabbed the attention of her coach.

"She made an unbelievable save with us up, 2-0," said Bregoli. "She jumped up, tipped it, then reached back and caught it before it went in the net. She stole this win for us."

Also playing well for North was freshman midfielder Stacy Szcesuil, who turned in a solid second half.

In the season opener, the Red Raiders blanked visiting Plymouth South, 3-0, on two goals by Flynn and one by junior stopper Liz Bennett.

Flynn's first goal came off an assist from sophomore center midfielder Ashley Murphy. Flynn scored again soon after on a crossing pass headed to her by freshman midfielder Jen Connolly. With one second left in the half, Bennett scored North's third goal on a pass by sophomore wing Caitlyn O'Donnell.

The Red Raiders turned up the defensive intensity in the second half, led by keeper Bowes, who made five saves en route to the shutout.

Quincy Falls To D-Y

Following a victory in its season opener, the Quincy High School boys' soccer team fell to host Dennis-Yarmouth, 8-2, last Saturday in an Old Colony League matchup.

The Presidents were back on the field yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. against visiting Bridgewater-Raynham. Friday, Quincy hosts Dedham. Next Tuesday, Quincy travels to Plymouth South for a 4 p.m. tilt and next Thursday, Quincy hosts Falmouth at 4 p.m.

Quincy's season-opening victory came over visiting Taunton last Thursday by a score of 4-3. Senior co-captain Jared Downey led the team with two goals and one assist. Junior Bard Hajrizaj collected a goal and two assists and sophomore Bruno Dias tallied one goal.

Quincy took control of the game from the start, scoring within the first two minutes on a goal by Dias. Taunton fought back and tied the game at 1-1 until Hajrizaj gave the Presidents a 2-1 lead with a goal before the half ended.

Taunton came out strong in the second half and tied the game at 2-2, despite the strong defensive performances of Scott Staiti and Eddie Smith. Quincy junior goalkeeper Joe Vallatini played an excellent game, making 14 saves.

With the game tied 2-2, Downey scored the next two goals to give Quincy a 4-2 cushion. Taunton rallied to within one, but could not get the equalizer.

Jake Flemming, Jim Sullivan, Mark Garthwait and Mike McGlaughlin also turned in solid efforts for the Presidents, who return 13 varsity players under the direction of second-year head coach Ray Papile.

SPORT-UTILITY VEHICLES

In recent years, the buying public has embraced to a remarkable degree the sport-utility vehicle segment of the light-truck market. Between the years 1990 and 1995, sport utility sales climbed by 48 percent. Customers now purchase more than 1.7 million of these vehicles each year, with sales expected to reach 2 million by the end of the decade. A large degree of the popularity of SUVs has to do with their off-road capabilities. Most sport-utility buyers choose 4WD models even if they seldom venture off the road because 4WD eliminates the tire slippage in rain and snow for surefooted grip. SUVs also have more towing capacity than the typical car, and their tall ride height imparts a sense of security to drivers.

HINT: Part of the appeal of sport-utility vehicles is that they have a certain character that makes them an attractive alternative to cars for many people.

The safety of our customers is very important to us here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and we want them to be informed. We are small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern equipment and ASE Certified technicians who are constantly trained and re-trained. You can trust your car, sport utility vehicle, or truck repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." BUSINESS

Michelle Higgins Manager Of Canton Bank's Quincy Branch

Michelle Higgins, a well-known Quincy-area banking professional, has been named to manage The Bank of Canton's Quincy branch office.

Higgins brings 15 years of banking experience to the position.

"As manager, I will do my best to ensure that the functions of the new branch run smoothly, and that area residents will have the new 'community bank' they've been hoping for: one with great rates, 'big bank' services, and a friendly face, too," she said.

MICHELLE HIGGINS

A graduate of Stonehill College in Easton, Higgins comes to The Bank of Canton's Quincy Banking Center most recently from the Bank of Braintree (recently acquired by US Trust), where she gained experience in human resources, training, and branch management. She has worked in the Quincy area for 15 years, having begun her banking career at the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

Her community activities include volunteering for South Shore Habitat for Humanity, Massachusetts Easter Seals, South Shore YMCA, American Red Cross and the Braintree Kiwanis Club.

The Bank of Canton, a 165-year-old community bank on the South Shore, expects to open its Quincy Banking Center in the early fall.

Michael Callahan President Of Colleges Security Assn.

Michael A. Callahan of Quincy, director of campus police at Bentley College in Waltham, was recently elected president of the Northeast Colleges and Universities Security Association (NECUSA) for 1997-1998.

The oldest campus law enforcement organization in the U.S., NECUSA has more than 300 members at 189 institutions throughout New England, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio. It serves as a resource network on crime prevention, intervention and training.

Callahan has served at Bentley College for more than 11 years and was appointed director in 1989. He oversees a force of 26 people, including 14 uniformed police officers, five uniformed security officers and five dispatchers, who work closely with the Waltham police and fire departments. Prior to Bentley, he served as lieutenant-operations supervisor at Northeastern University from 1976-86. He has been in campus law enforcement for more than 23 years.

Callahan attended Quincy College, Northeastern University, and Bentley College, where he received a certificate in computers and business. He is a graduate of the Boston Police Academy, and has completed numerous Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Council programs.

Hill & Partners Wins Retailer Market Award

Hill & Partners Inc. of Quincy was awarded Best Booth Over 700 Square Feet at the recent Outdoor Retailer Summer Market in Salt Lake City, Utah for the Malden Mills/Polartec exhibit.

The two-story design is loosely based on Malden Mills' rebuild after a fire in December 1995. The company's CEO, Aaron Feuerstein, was nationally commended for his commitment to the mill workers and community following the disaster, and the booth reflects natural elements found in the new facility, a restore textile mill dating back to the 1800s.

Some of the design's elements include an intricate wood beam grid, a linen-like tent stretched over the top conference room, sisal carpet, a stainless steel wall and hardwood flooring. The design combines the materials to provide two conference rooms, hospitality bar with seating for 10, a five-monitor video presentation, three retail vignettes, a live demonstration area and 32 feet of modular display wall, all in 900 square feet of space.

Hill & Partners Inc. provides three-dimensional marketing solutions for a wide variety of clients and industries. The firm specializes in both international and domestic exhibits.

The Year 2000 Topic For South Shore Secretaries

The South Shore Chapter, Professional Secretaries International, will meet Tuesday, Oct. 14 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd.

Julie Wiseman of KPMG Peat Marwick will be the program speaker. She is a consultant with the company's Global Year 2000 Practice.

She will speak about the Year 2000 problem, how it can affect secretaries and their office, and how to be aware of some of the problems that may be encountered.

Marlene Rivers, CPS, president, invites all office professionals living or working in the South Shore area to attend the meeting. Networking with other office professionals will begin at 6 p.m. and will be followed by dinner and the program.

Cost is $24. Reservations may be made by contacting Eleanor Fusoni at 749-5728.

Quit smoking.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Be patient with a stressful matter between yourself and a friend over a business matter. Use discretion in what you say. Don't harp on trivialities, especially this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're bored and restless, but be prepared for a major development to arise this week. The situation motivates you. By week's end, you're back in the swing of things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You have a tendency to forget things this week. Make more of an effort to concentrate on tasks at hand. The weekend is good for sharing fun times with friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't get frustrated if some family members interrupt you. Keep focused on the project or plans you have had in place. All will work out in the long run.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While you have the itch to socialize, time is better spent at home this week, reviewing where your life is headed. The results are bound to be refreshing.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's no time to give in to depression. It's time to stop the downside of your personality and get with the program. Be confident.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A friend from afar gets in touch with eye-opening news in the beginning of the week. A new career opportunity requires immediate attention. You receive good financial news.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Before indulging, take a good look at your financial standing. Saving for the future is your best bet. The weekend accents romance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An early-week outdoor adventure with friends or family might surprise you. Relaxation is the key, so forget about work matters. Getting back to nature is the important thing.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be careful when credit matters come into the picture. While you are able to impress others, you should be worrying more about yourself. Use shrewd judgment with financial dealings.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Be sure that you give yourself enough time to get things in order on the home front. Unexpected company could drop by sometime this week. Someone is really counting on your advice.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Make a caring gesture toward a loved one this week. Your judgment is excellent, but it is best to express yourself in writing as opposed to the spoken word.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

PATIENCE... What a word... Much has been written and said about this eight lettered word...

It has been said that many a man thinks he is patient when, in reality, he is indifferent. It has also been said that many a person takes credit for being patient when they are simply putting off doing something unpleasant... And then there is an old Dutch proverb which states: "An ounce of patience is worth a pound of brains."

We especially like this quotation written by David Sarnoff: "Patience is a two-sided coin. If patience is to be a virtue it must be employed in a willingness to obtain all the facts, to deduce from the facts what should be done, if anything, and to act in time and not too early or too late. If patience is merely to be used as an excuse for inaction, and if you don't do anything but wait - and you wait too long and the opportunity is past - or if you convert it into lethargy or inaction, then that is the other side of the coin."

Grandpa loved gardening, baseball, and playing the harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special. Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

John Stobierski Chamber Communications Manager

John Stobierski has been appointed communications manager of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in Quincy, announces president and CEO Ronald Zooleck.

"We welcome John Stobierski to our fine staff of professionals," said Zooleck. "John's in-depth knowledge of the South Shore business community, coupled with his extensive experience in all aspects of the field of communications, gives us every confidence that he will not only succeed in his new position, but also bring communications for the Chamber to new levels of excitement and success."

Stobierski comes to the Chamber from his work as a freelance commercial photographer where, among many clients, he worked with the Chamber over the last three years. Previously, he was employed as chief photographer for the Marshfield-based Mariner Newspapers, worked as director of public information for the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and, from 1980 to 1986, he served as press secretary to then U.S. Representative Brian Donnelly. Stobierski's career also includes experience as a radio news reporter, writer and broadcaster.

"I'm excited by the opportunity to work with such a well-respected organization as the Chamber and to help it give voice to the South Shore's dynamic business community," he said.

In his role as communications manager, Stobierski will be responsible for publishing Waves, the Chamber's monthly magazine; the annual membership directory, and the annual report. He will produce all marketing materials, issue news releases, and handle media relations.

Stobierski holds a bachelor of science degree in corporate communications from Emerson College in Boston and studied political science as a graduate student at Northeastern University in Boston. He lives in Hingham with his wife, Susan Trausch.

Michael Hussey Master Of Steamship Cornucopia

Michael F. Hussey, son of Regina Hussey and late Quincy Police Detective Paul Hussey, was recently promoted to Master of the steamship Cornucopia with Keystone Shipping of Philadelphia (Pa.).

The Cornucopia is a liquefied gas carrier, which carries ammonia and propane between Alaska, Korea, and the West Coast. Capt. Hussey is a graduate of Boston College High School in Dorchester and the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point., N.Y.

He holds the rank of LCDR USNR and participated in the Persian Gulf War, supplying jet fuel to the aircraft carriers.

"Having sailed for 10 years, every day presents a challenge shipboard, with a crew of only 25 for a 650-foot veseel," said Capt. Hussey. "However, the opportunity to see many of the Third World countries certainly enhances one's appreciation for his family, community and a lifestyle that we often take for granted."

During his time off, Capt. Hussey works as an assistant football coach at B.C. High.

He and his wife, Sharon, are expecting their third child in October. They have two daughters: Shannon Marie, 4, and Tara Kathleen, 2.

Ultimately, Capt. Hussey hopes to come ashore full-time when the opportunity presents itself.

Firefighters Warn Of Telephone Scam

The Quincy Firefighters Association warns residents of a telephone scam.

Association President William Arienti said the calls are being made to residents by persons identifying themselves as being from "the fire department" and indicating they are collecting money for a foundation for disabled firefighters.

Arienti said the Quincy Fire Department is not associated with any such foundation.

He said his association does conduct telephone campaigns from time to time for worthy causes and members always clearly identify themselves. There is none planned until next spring or summer, he said.

Arienti said anyone who believes he or she is a victim of the current scam should call the fire department at 376-1010 or the Attorney General's Office at 727-2200.

Tracy Pep Rally Friday

The Committee to Elect Linda Tracy to the Quincy City Council will be held Friday, Sept. 12 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post, 24 Broad St., Quincy.

Entertainment will be provided by the G-Mix Jazz Group. Refreshments will be available.

Senior citizens will be admitted free. Donations are welcome. Tickets will be available at the door.

Beechwood Knoll To Receive School Building Assistance Grant

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti and Stephen Tobin announce that the Beechwood Knoll School has received approval from the State Board of Education to participate in the School Building Assistance Grant program.

The legislative delegation commended the work and effort that School Supt. Eugene Creedon and his staff did to acquire the grant approval.

The program is a 49-year-old state and local partnership dedicated to the construction and renovation of school buildings throughout the Commonwealth. The Board of Education is responsible for the approval of the highly competitive grant and the Department of Education is responsible for distribution and oversight of the grant money.

The Department of Education will have $151,155 available for the Beechwood School construction project in Fiscal Year 1999, as a first reimbursement payment," said Bellotti.

"The delay in the money gives the municipality time to plan how to pay its share of the costs," added Tobin.

Most municipalities will approve a 20-year bond for the project and that state's grant program will be reimbursed over that time period. However, the final timetable for payments will be worked out between the municipality and the Department of Education's which will closely evaluate of the project. It is expected that at least 63 percent of the cost will be reimbursed by the State.

The grant money will pay for the construction costs associated with the new wing at the Beechwood School that was recently built. The city must inform the State of the details of that project by June 30, 1998.

"The Legislature appropriated $33 million in the Fiscal Year 1998 Budget for this grant program, which immediately took 49 schools off the waiting list, said Morrissey. "However, there are still over 100 projects on the waiting list this year."

Recount Looms For Second Ward 6 Spot

Incumbents Win By Wide Margins

The three ward council incumbents rode to easy wins in Tuesday's preliminary elections in Wards 1, 3 and 6, leading runner-up nominees by wide margins.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers was the top vote-getter in the election.

In the tightest race of the day, Brian F. McNamee, 41, of Billings Rd., an accountant and management consultant, won the second nomination in Ward 6 by 11 votes over Joseph Newton, 30, of Glover Ave., a bank purchasing agent.

A possible recount looms but Newton had not indicated whether he would seek one at press time.

Two of the six winners among the nine candidates running Tuesday were women.

The resulting match-ups for the Nov. 4 final election will be winners:

Ward 1: Incumbent and council president Peter Kolson, 50, seeking a fifth term and Gretchen Grant, 68, of Bicknell St., retired.

Ward 3: Incumbent Patrick McDermott, 27, running for a second term and Linda Tracy, 48, of Beale St., a consultant.

Ward 5: Incumbent Bruce Ayers, 35, seeking a fourth term and McNamee, subject to a possible recount.

Kolson racked up 731 votes to Grant's 163. Joseph Kasparian, 63, of Rhude St., a retired police officer, failed to break the 100-mark with 97.

McDermott had 587 votes to Tracy's 146. Robert Boussy, 42, of Farrington St., a hospital transportation employee, finished far out of the money with 69.

The voter turnout was light, as predicted by City Clerk Joseph Shea.

The heaviest vote was in Ward 6 where 23.6 percent of the 8,014 registered voters in that ward cast ballots.

Second highest vote was in Ward 1 with 11.8 percent of the 8,459 eligible voters went to the polls.

In Ward 3 only 9.77 percent of the 8,251 eligible voted.

There were no other preliminary election contests Tuesday.

Mayor James Sheets, seeking his fifth term, is unopposed for the third time. Also unopposed are Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin.

There were not enough candidates for preliminary run-offs for councillor at-large, school committee, and Ward 4 councillor.

But the candidates that did file for those seats will

Site To Be Used For Senior Housing

Applications Available For Naval Terrace Units

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Applications for the 48 units at Naval Terrace in Squantum that will be used for senior citizens housing are now available.

Mayor James Sheets said at press time the deadline for submitting the applications is Friday, Oct. 3 at 4 p.m.

Those interested in the housing are welcome to attend an Open House at the site which will be held Sept. 25, 26 and 27 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The city is planning to utilize the site for senior housing now that it has been acquired from the Navy, which has relinquished its control over the property due to the closure of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station. The station was one of a number of facilities throughout the country closed by the Navy.

Individuals interested in applying for housing must be at least 62 years of age and either have been Quincy residents for 10 or more years or have lived 20 of the last 25 years in the city. Sheets said in the case of the latter group, the city felt it was reasonable to include people who were longtime residents but recently had to move to other nearby communities to be with their families.

"We thought that was fair," he said.

Preference will be given to veterans, minorities, the disabled and residents of Quincy's Ward 6, where Naval Terrace is located. Sheets said 15 percent of the population at Naval Terrace will be minorities and 5 percent will be disabled--both are state requirements--while veterans and Ward 6 residents each will comprise

Public Hearing Oct. 9 On Downtown Concourse

The Massachusetts Highway Department (MHD) will hold a design public hearing on the Quincy Center Concourse Thursday, Oct. 9.

The hearing will take place in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The purpose of the hearing to provide the public an opportunity to become acquainted with the proposed roadway construction project. According to MHD officials, all views and comments made at the hearing will be reviewed and considered into the final design to the maximum extent possible.

The hearing will center on the first section of the concourse. The project will include the construction of a new 62-meter (200 feet) multi-span bridge over the MBTA rail corridor and adjacent parking lot, the reconstruction of 270 meters (900 feet) of Burgin Parkway, 150 meters (500 feet) of the Granite Street Connector and 135 meters (450 feet) of the Parkingway.

The work also will include installation of new traffic signals at the Burgin Parkway/concourse and concourse/Parkingway intersections as well as pavement markings and signage.

Policies concerning necessary landtakings related to the project also will be discussed at the hearing.

Plans for the concourse will be on display for 30 minutes before the hearing, with an engineer in attendance to answer questions regarding the project.

Written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements made at the hearing regarding the concourse should be submitted to Thomas Broderick, P.E., Chief Engineer, Massachusetts Highway Department, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, MA 01226. Such submissions also will be accepted at the hearing. The final date for receipt of written statements and other exhibits is Oct. 19.

Firefighters See Flaw In E911 Phone System

The Quincy Firefighters Union conducted a demonstration Monday to display what they are calling a major shortcoming with the city's Enhanced 911 (E911) emergency phone system.

Firefighters Association President William Arienti said it can take up to 10 seconds for emergency calls to be transferred from the new emergency dispatch center at the police station to fire headquarters.

As a demonstration, Arienti dialed 911 and asked that the call be transferred to the fire station. It took about seven seconds from the time the call taker pressed the transfer button until the dispatcher's phone rang at fire headquarters, and Arienti said seven seconds is too long in an emergency situation.

Arienti, who notified the E911 operator about what he would be doing before making the call, said Bell Atlantic told the union the delay is inherent in the E911 service.

E911, unlike the old 911 system, automatically displays a caller's address on a screen even if he or she is unable to talk. Quincy went on line with the system last week--the last community in Massachusetts to do so.

The firefighters union is supporting a bill in the state Legislature to allow the city to install a monitor at the fire station so the fire dispatcher would be able to listen to all 911 calls when they are answered at the police station.

Arienti noted that legislation is needed because the state law establishing the E911 system does not pro-

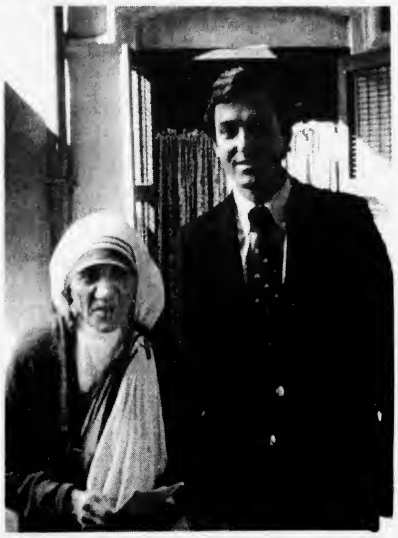
'I Never Forgot Her Words'

Harold Recalls Visit With Mother Teresa

(Note: City Councillor Paul Harold recalls a 1981 visit with the late Mother Teresa in Calcutta that left a lasting impression on him.)



By PAUL D. HAROLD

I visited Mother Teresa at her orphanage in Calcutta in January 1981, while I was lecturing for the U.S. Information Agency in Southern Asia.

My meeting with her lasted only 20 minutes, but it had such an impact on me that I remember it vividly today, 15 years later.

Despite the fact that I had a driver and an interpreter from the American consulate, my simple request to make the 15-minute trip from the hotel to the orphanage caused quite a sensation. My Indian escorts were extremely resistant to the idea of taking me to see Mother Teresa. They kept insisting that my itinerary, as approved from New Delhi, scheduled me to view what they considered a major attraction in the city--the white tiger at the city zoo.

They mumbled disapprovingly that Americans always wanted to see Mother Teresa, and tried all of the arguments they could muster to change my mind. I think their attitude toward Mother Teresa was based in part on the fact that her work with the poorest of the poor in Calcutta highlighted to the world the deficiencies in their country's political and economic system. Rather than letting me make a visit that might embarrass them, my hosts wanted me to see something that made them proud--the white tiger.

CITY COUNCILLOR Paul Harold with Mother Teresa during a visit at her orphanage in Calcutta in 1981.

Although I insisted--then demanded--that we visit the orphanage, they kept trying to dissuade me by saying she wasn't in town; they didn't know when she'd be back; she wouldn't be available; visitors had to make an appointment.

Finally, I went to the orphanage by myself, and simply asked to see Mother Teresa. At the time, I was serving in the Massachusetts Senate, but to the orphanage staff, I was just another visiting American.

Mother Teresa swept into the room within a minute, seeming as if she were blown in by the wind. The first thing that struck me about her was how short she was, and how the top of her habit almost covered her eyes. The second thing I felt was the strength and energy she transmitted to everyone around her.

Although she spoke

Name Plates Available For Hospital Memorial Plaque

Quincy residents can remember a loved one or honor a friend by putting their name on the Quincy Hospital Auxiliary Plaque in the Hunting Hall of Founders at the hospital.

Name plates cost $85 each and become a permanent part of the auxiliary plaque.

The Hunting Hall of Founders recognizes the contributions of the many individuals, businesses and organizations who have provided financial support to Quincy Hospital over the years. It is named for Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting, a member of the medical staff of Quincy Hospital from its inception in 1890. Dr. Hunting became the first chief of staff when the city assumed responsibility for the hospital in 1919.

The $85 contribution for the name plate helps support the Quincy Hospital Auxiliary, which raises funds for equipment and services to benefit patient care at the hospital.

To place an order for a name plate in memory of or to honor a friend or family member, call Esther Grossman at 773-2866.

Starting Our 30th Year

They say time flies when you are having fun.

If so, we must be having a ball at The Quincy Sun.

Today marks the beginning of another major milestone. With today's issue, we begin our 30th year--our third decade.

The years have sped by.

Our very first issue appeared Thursday, Sept. 26, 1968--the birth of Historic Quincy's Hometown Weekly Newspaper.

From the beginning we have focused on Quincy news, features, high school and youth sports, church, social, civic events, etc. All Quincy.

We let the other media take care of the national and international news. For us, Quincy is the most important place in the world.

We have seen many changes in Quincy. We were here for the coming of the MBTA. We have seen mayors, city councillors and other public officials come and go. And, stores and businesses, too.

We have seen downtown Quincy on an economic elevator. Up and down. We've seen old buildings come down and new ones go up. We have seen the good times and the not so good times.

We have spoken out editorially when needed. We just didn't toss an editorial in just to say we have an editorial. We don't try to tell people how to vote.

We have tried to present fairly both sides of issues affecting the community. We have tried to keep our news reporting accurate because, as we say, "Today's Quincy Sun is tomorrow's Quincy history."

And keeping it accurate is important to you--and to us.

We have gotten to know a lot of nice people--our faithful readers, advertisers, members of the many various organizations in the city, public officials. Without them, we wouldn't have made it.

And we can't forget our young newscarriers. Where would we be without them delivering The Sun to your home under all kinds of weather?

We have watched these youngsters grow up, go to college, get married, become parents, and met their children. And, sadly, we've seen them go off to war.

Where did those years go!

The Sun has won a number of awards for editorials, photos, special articles and supplements in New England Press Association and Massachusetts Press Association competition.

The Sun has also been designated a Blue Ribbon Newspaper by the National Newspaper Foundation in Washington, D.C.

And, The Sun has been honored with awards from Quincy organizations for its coverage of the community. Those are the ones we most cherish because they tell us we are doing what we are supposed to be doing as a community newspaper.

We are optimistic as we begin our 30th year. We have confidence in Quincy's future and in our own. As Quincy goes, so go we.

As we look ahead, we want to again thank you loyal readers--many of whom started with us with that very first issue in 1968 and are still with us. And our advertisers, who make it all possible.

We are proud to carry the name Quincy in our name.

Someone once asked us why did you start a newspaper in Quincy?

Our answer then: "Because it was the right place."

We still think so today.

CAROL LEE GRIFFIN, who gave her all to the Quincy school system for 29 years and became one of its outstanding and respected figures as an assistant superintendent, will be honored at a retirement celebration Friday, Oct 17.

GRIFFIN

The event will be held in the grand ballroom at the Sheraton Tara, Braintree. Social hour at 6 p.m., and dinner at 7 p.m.

Tickets are $40, payable to the Q.P.S. Testimonial Fund, and should be sent in care of Ann McAuley, Personnel Office, Quincy Public Schools, 70 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Deadline is Oct. 5.

MIKE McFARLAND, who is seeking a school committee seat this year, has been campaigning door-to-door.

McFARLAND

He says he finds that most people seem to be satisfied with the way things are going in the city.

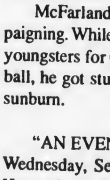
McFarland, former executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, left that office to return to his business, Barry's Deli on Beale St.

But knocking on one door one day he met a woman who did have a complaint.

"Too much salt on the fish cakes," she said, referring to the deli.

"I promised her I would take care of that," McFarland said.

When he got back to the deli he told the chef: "Less salt on the fish cakes."



McFarland also discovered there are perils to campaigning. While meeting parents as they registered their youngsters for Quincy Youth Baseball and Girls Softball, he got stung by a hornet and went home with a sunburn.

"AN EVENING WITH Jo-Ann Bragg" is set for Wednesday, Sept. 24, 6 to 9 p.m., at Coddington's, Hancock St., Quincy Sq. Bragg is seeking re-election to the school committee. For more information, call 471-3822.

MILESTONE: Frank Anselmo, former school committeeman, will be 99 Monday. A young 99.

ANSELMO

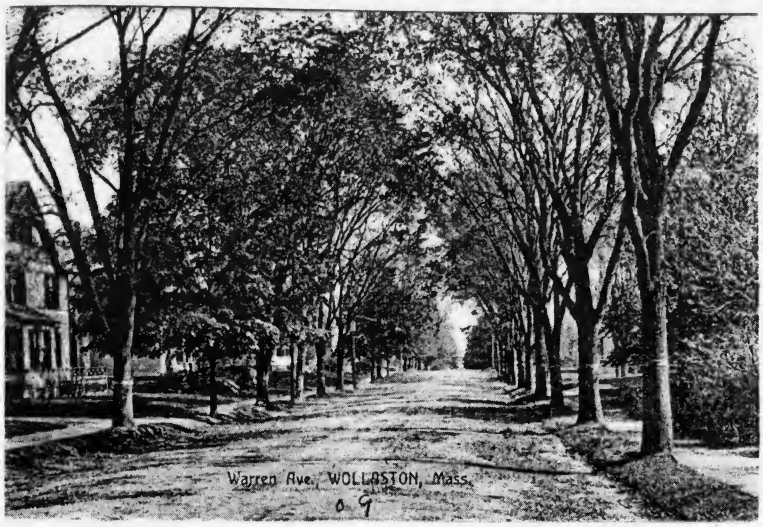
Anselmo, a veteran of both World War I and World War II, is still a familiar figure at Memorial Day and Veterans Day ceremonies and other veterans' events.

Anselmo began his political career after retiring from the postal service as superintendent of the Quincy post office.

That's the age when most people just retire. But not him. He spent something like 20 years as an outspoken member of the school committee.

And if you want to know where he stands on any issue today, he'll be glad to tell you.

Happy birthday, young fellow.



Tobin To Hold Office Hours

State Rep. Stephen Tobin will hold office hours Friday, Oct. 17 and Friday, Nov. 7 in the second floor Conference Room of City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Hours will be held from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. both days. All residents of the Second Norfolk District are invited to meet with Tobin and his staff to discuss their concerns.

For more information, call Tobin's office at 722-2900.

UPS Strike Was A Sham

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Contrary to the opinions expressed by Francis Toland in his letter to the Editor (September 4), I think that the UPS strike was a sham and a cabal on the part of the AFL CIO and the Teamsters Union that was bought and paid for during the last Presidential election.

Here, a strike authorization vote was taken prior to the offer by the company and voted on by no more than 10 percent of the membership. Subsequently, the offer by UPS was misrepresented to the members and when the details of the offer were finally made known, the members were not allowed to vote on the offer. The part-time worker issue was held to be the major issue of contention, when all the time it was really the union's desire to keep their hands on and control the pension fund.

Toland's characterization of UPS as a greedy, insensitive corporation is so off the mark, it strains credulity. This is one of the most enlightened companies in the nation when it comes to workers' wages and benefits. But they were chosen for this fight, because it is an industry whose stoppage would affect the nation most dramatically. President Clinton repaid the debt to the enormous union financial support in the election by not invoking "Taft-Hartley", and the labor secretary applied the pressure to keep the two sides at the bargaining table. All the time, AFL-CIO underwrote the strike fund to a tune of over $10 million a week.

Despite the fact that the workers lost weeks of work and many full-time workers were laid off after the strike ended, the unions mounted a delusional media blitz claiming the Teamsters had taken on corporate greed and won.

Frankly, Mr. Toland, you guys have delivered us a President who gave the country NAFTA, which is a more devastating blow to the working man than any greedy corporation ever delivered. Also, you know in your heart, that any cost that you may cause business will merely be passed on and we, the people will be stuck with the bill. So what did you win, and what did we all lose?

A Thank You From Former QVNA Director

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I want to thank the members of the greater Quincy community for the recent heartfelt and warm reception honoring my completion of 12 years of gratifying service as executive director of the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, Inc.

I am grateful for the consistent support the community has bestowed upon the QVNA. It has been a privilege working with the skilled staff of the QVNA who are active problem solvers and provide compassionate and excellent care to our patients and their families.

The greater Quincy community is fortunate to have many community organizations who in the spirit of collaboration provide a broad range of services. I received great satisfaction working with these organizations, some of which include the Inter-Agency Council of the South Shore, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, the Quincy/South Shore AIDS Consortium, and The Salvation Army.

The members of the Board of Directors represent many areas of interest and knowledge. Under the leadership of John Fanciullo, president, the board has been sensitive to the needs of the patients and the organization as well as attuned to the dramatic changes in the health care arena.

The board members have been instrumental and resourceful to the QVNA and me in guiding us through many changes. The other board members who have actively led the organization are Mary Kennedy-Peretti, Stan Dennis, David MacIntosh, Dan Dunn, Bob Griffin, Darryl Mikami, Margaret Paustian and Mary Sweeney.

I appreciate the recognition shown to me by staff, community leaders, and home care colleagues. A special thank you to Ralph DiPisa, CEO of Quincy Hospital; John Fanciullo, president of the Quincy Board of Directors; Joe Finn, executive director of Father Bill's Place; and Tim Burgers, assistant director of the Home and Health Care Association of Massachusetts for the kind and thoughtful remarks about me.

Many thanks to Jim Bent and Sue Deegan who have assisted in many ways since I first joined the QVNA. A final, heartfelt thank you to Julie Spadea, Mary Cuthbert, and Sonia Courage of the Quincy VNA for the thoughtful, enjoyable, and fun reception they planned for me.

By PAUL HAROLD

The city was hit this week by the most terrific storm in its history, with more than a dozen persons injured and hundreds of thousands of dollars in property damage. Winds reached 100 mph.

Every neighborhood was affected, with several thousand trees uprooted and scores of yachts dashed up on the shore. Roofs at the Quincy Adams Yacht yard and the Squantum Police Office were ripped off.

Helmeted national guardsmen were called out to patrol the business districts where most storefronts were blown out. DPW Commissioner Ezekiel Sargent recruited 350 WPA workers from the Blue Hills to help open up streets clogged with downed trees.

At the Fore River shipyard, none of the expensive ships under construction were damaged, but the yard was littered with trees and uprooted fences.

Two huge trees at the South Quincy Barnicoat estate were felled, but there was no damage to the Adams Birthplaces across the street.

While some youths capitalized on the loss of electricity by selling candles door-to-door, Rev. Daniel Staffeld of the Adams Shore Community Church, distributed communion candles in his district.

Police Captain George Fallon, who headed up the safety committee, praised the legionnaires who assisted in the street patrols.

MRS. WAKEMAN SURVIVES STORM

Mrs. Samuel Wakeman of Monroe Rd., wife of Samuel Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem Steel shipyard, survived the storm by hanging on the upper branches of a tree near her Marion cottage.

Mrs. Wakeman and two other women were trapped in Marion when the flood waters prevented their return to Quincy. They hung for two hours on the tree branches before they were rescued.

STADIUM OPENED

The new $175,000 municipal stadium was dedicated this week. It would also serve as a permanent memorial for the city's war veterans.

It was one of the city's largest WPA projects.

My Dentist's Beet Salad

We've all been to the dentist and have not been able to answer while he's talking because we've either been numbed by the medication, or have some device hanging from our mouths..

And so it was a couple of weeks ago, while sitting in the dentist chair that he gave me the greatest recipe for a quick light salad. He stressed that fresh beets should be used for the ultimate flavor.

Fresh Beet Salad
4 or 5 fresh beets boiled and sliced
3 fresh tomatoes (preferably garden variety or from a kindly neighbor)
2 stalks of scallions
olive oil or a favorite salad dressing.

Boil and cut the beets. Add the tomatoes and scallions, toss and add the olive oil or a dressing. Absolutely delicious with a favorite crusty bread!

(Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing recipes that have been printed in The Quincy Sun.

ClimbFest Sept. 20 At Quincy Quarries

The Metropolitan District Commission, in cooperation with the Boston Chapter of the Appalachian Mountain Club, will sponsor the eighth annual ClimbFest Saturday, Sept. 20 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Quincy Quarries Historic Site in West Quincy.

ClimbFest is a day-long rock-climbing competition and outdoor festival that emphasizes the fun and camaraderie of rock-climbing. Over 100 competitors are expected to participate. An outdoor festival is featured with the "Treadwall", a free standing climbing wall open to the public; ranger-led historical tours of the granite quarries, a ropes course, music, food and raffle drawings. There is no admission for spectators.

The competition is open to all recreational climbers. Categories range from beginner to advanced and prizes will be awarded to the top contenders.

Pre-registration is available until Sept. 12 for $18. Entries and competition slots are limited. Registration on the day of the event begins at 7:30 a.m. and ends at 10 a.m. or when filled. Cost is $22.

Call 698-1802 for more information.

Proceeds from the event will be directed toward site improvements at the Quincy Historic Site.

CHOLESTEROL TESTS FOR LIPID PROFILES

Many people are as aware of their cholesterol count as of their blood pressure or weight. However, the single number quoted as a cholesterol level falls short of telling the whole health story. When blood is drawn for a cholesterol test, the cholesterol measurement reports the total amount of cholesterol found in 100 milliliters of blood serum. Even more telling than that number, though, are the levels of the two different types cholesterol: high-density lipoprotein (HDL), which helps protect against heart disease, and low-density lipoprotein (LDL) which can be a major cardiac risk factor. If your overall cholesterol level is high, your doctor may recommend more detailed tests that profile these lipoproteins and fats in your blood.

P.S. A detailed cholesterol test generally requires pre-test fasting, and must be done through a qualified lab or other medical facility.

Keeping track of your cholesterol is important, but it can be confusing. Get the information you need to make the right daily choices by speaking with your physician and having regular checkups. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize In treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

fluent English, among other languages, her clear, bright eyes communicated a compassion and transcended any language.

When I told her I was from Massachusetts, she asked about the Kennedys, who had visited her on numerous occasions, and were helpful in setting up her aid program in the U.S.

But she clearly wasn't going to waste her time just chatting with me. She pointed out that in India, I had seen people without clothes or food; but that in the United States, there was a different kind of poverty, an invisible kind--the loneliness of the elderly. She told me that on my return to the U.S., my assignment would be to address those needs, and to help ease that loneliness.

I never forgot her words, and have tried to live up to the "assignment" she gave me.

With my visit to her at an end, Mother Teresa rushed off to join the girls from the orphanage, who were gathering for late-morning prayer in the room opposite the terrace where we had been sitting.

Before she left, we had a photo together, and I asked her if she had an donation envelopes. She looked a bit puzzled, then said that her orphanage didn't solicit funds.

When I asked if I could send a donation, she wrote down the address, and advised me not to send cash. Then, in a flash, she was gone.

I've saved the pen she used, with the notion that if she is made a saint, the pen would be a relic.

I saw Mother Teresa again, five years later, at the Papal Nuncio (the Vatican's embassy) in Dacca, Bangladesh. That meeting was a formal reception for dignitaries, held in a marble and carpeted palace teeming with wealth and opulence.

It was a far cry from the grinding poverty of Calcutta and the orphans whose lives she saved.

Quincy Cultural Council Receives $47,498 State Grant

The Quincy Cultural Council has received a state grant of $47,498.

The announcement was made by state Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti and Arthur Keough of the Quincy Cultural Council. The money will be regranted by the local council to fund applications for community cultural programs and a children's ticket subsidy program called PASS.

"The local grants play a significant role in our community's cultural and economic life," said Tobin. "This funding continues a tradition of public support for culture in Massachusetts."

The local council's allocation comes from the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency administering over 15 grant programs--including the Local Cultural Grant Program--which receives its funding from the state Legislature.

Bellotti said the Massachusetts Cultural Council allocates money to 336 local cultural councils serving every community in the Commonwealth. Each community's allocation is determined using a Local Aid formula. The local councils, which are run by municipally-appointed community volunteers, accept applications from the community for projects in the arts, humanities and sciences that have a public benefit.

Mariano added, "My sincere gratitude goes out to the residents of Quincy who generously volunteer their time to work on the local council in order to make quality cultural programs available in our city."

Tobin said those interested in applying for grants should contact Keough at 376-1322 or City Hall for more information. Oct. 15 is the statewide deadline for all local cultural councils to accept applications.

Benefit Concert Sunday At QP Congregational

Soprano soloist Sallyanne Powers of Everett will present a Benefit Concert Sunday at 4 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Powers will perform mainly music by Schubert with additional selections by Holst, Weber, Puccini and Donizetti. She will be joined by Noriko Yasuda, pianist and Alexey Shabalin, violinist.

The concert, which is open to the public, will benefit the church's music program through its Music Committee. A $5 donation is suggested. A reception in the church's social hall will follow.

For more information, call 773-6424.

Tracy Wilson Wins Academic Award

Tracy L. Wilson, a candidate for the Quincy School Committee, was presented with an award from her employer, the Benjamin Healthcare Center in Boston.

Wilson received a plaque in recognition of her "academic excellence," and for her success in becoming an attorney, while working at the center for nearly three years

Wilson expressed her appreciation for all the support of the center's staff, specifically the chief executive officer and the chief operating officer, whom she credits as having been inspirational to her success.

Born and raised in Quincy, Wilson attended the Quincy Public School, Grades K-12, which she also contributes to her academic success.

Carolyn Anderson Named Hospital Leadership Volunteer

Carolyn Anderson of Wollaston has been selected by the Volunteer Services Department at Children's Hospital in Boston as a leadership volunteer.

Anderson, recognized for her dedicated commitment, exemplary service, and her leadership qualities, was one of 30 Children's volunteers to receive the honor.

She will receive a special leadership pin at a reception Oct. 7 at the hospital.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Follow This Fall-Proof Plan For Safety in Your Home

News USA

(NU) - With fall and winter approaching, most people will be spending more time in the cozy confines of their homes. What better time for you to consider ways to make your home a safer place for yourself, your friends and your family?

Many people don't realize that falls are the No. 1 cause of accidental injuries and fatalities in the home, accounting for half of all accidental deaths. One way to prevent some of these falls and make the home safer is to install carpet throughout the house.

By decreasing the likelihood of slipping and tripping, wall-to-wall carpet dramatically reduces the risk of falls. Traditionally, area rugs and mats have been used to reduce the risk of slipping in a room. But rugs can shift under the movement of a person's stride and people can trip over a rug's edge, both leading to falls.

Carpet, on the other hand, presents a smooth, seamless surface for any room. In addition, if a fall should occur, the combination of carpet and carpet padding provides a soft, cushioned surface that can absorb impact.

Many falls also result from slipping on spilled liquid. But unlike other surfaces, carpet can temporarily trap moisture, helping to prevent slips. And while spilled liquids create stains in many carpets, carpets such as DuPont Stainmaster offer superior stain-resistance that makes cleaning easy and effective. This quality frees carpet for a full spectrum of applications in the home.

But carpet is not completely fall-proof. Insecurely fastened or frayed carpet can cause someone to trip. That's why it's important to have carpet installed by a quality professional. Having carpet installed and maintained by a licensed professional ensures that it will make your home safer, longer.

Carpet has long been recognized as a pivotal home-furnishing item that can incorporate all the decorative elements of a room into a cohesive whole. While carpet should be viewed as a beautiful and colorful home-decorating staple, it also is an essential home safety feature because life is hard -- and uncarpeted floors are harder.

For answers to all your questions on carpet, call 1-800-4DUPONT, or visit the DuPont Stainmaster home page on the World Wide Web at www.dupont.com/stainmaster.

an additional 5 percent.

Sheets said members of the above groups who are not selected will be placed into a general pool from which names will be chosen for the remaining 70 percent of the population. While veterans, minorities and the disabled will be given preference for any standard unit that opens in the future, disabled residents will have to wait until there is a vacancy in a specially-equipped handicapped unit, he noted.

Rents will be $750 a month and will include the cost of heat. The city will also take responsibility for the cost of rubbish pickup and Massachusetts Water and Resources Authority water and sewer charges, Sheets noted, meaning electricity will be the only expenditure for residents other than rent.

Sheets said he feels the $750-a-month rent is a fair price for seniors to pay as it is below market value.

The mayor said he hopes to begin moving residents into Naval Terrace by November. He added that it will take 18 months to convert the Squantum Gardens units at the same site to prepare them for their use as senior housing and to construct three new buildings to be used for the same purpose, as well as a special senior center.

Current Squantum Gardens housing will make about 58 additional units available, and construction of the new buildings another 59, for a total of 165 including Naval Terrace, Sheets said. Applications for Squantum Gardens housing will not be made available for about two years, he said.

Naval Terrace applications are being handled by leasing agent Barkan Management Co. Inc. of Boston, which can be contacted at Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace Elderly Housing, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy, MA 02171 or by calling 376-1506.

vide for remote monitoring of the phone line. Firefighters were able to monitor calls before the E911 system went on line.

Arienti said monitoring could save critical time because the fire dispatcher could get emergency equipment underway even before the call was transferred to fire headquarters. He added that the cost would be minimal--"the cost of a phone line," he said.

The city originally planned to have both fire and police calls dispatched from the E911 center at the police station, but the firefighters union pushed to keep fire dispatchers at fire headquarters where they have remained.

City Councillor Paul Harold and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who both attended Monday's press conference, said the council agrees the E911 calls should be monitored at the fire station as a matter of public safety.

Kevin Coughlin Appointed To Judicial Committee

Middlesex Probate and Family Court Assistant Chief Probation Officer Kevin Coughlin of Quincy has been appointed to a special committee on public understanding of and accessibility to the court system.

The appointment was made by Chief Justice of the Probate and Family Court Mary Fitzpatrick.

Coughlin, who has been employed with the Trial Court of the Commonwealth for nearly two decades, is among a select group of court personnel and judges chosen to address issues of access to and use of the Commonwealth's courts by those parties who represent themselves.

Coughlin is known for his work with children, youth and families and has been recognized by members of the Judiciary, the Massachusetts Bar, and mental health professionals for his efforts in that field.

He lives in Quincy with his wife and three children.

Bellotti To Coordinate Wollaston Beach Cleanup

continuing efforts to bring Wollaston Beach back to its original condition.

"Not only is it aesthetically unpleasant, but marine debris can be dangerous to both people and animals," said Bellotti. "Glass and rusty metal pose a serious safety hazard for beachgoers, while animals can swallow and get entangled in many types of debris. Recreational boats can also be damaged by fishing lines and large debris."

Coastsweep is part of an international campaign organized by the Center for Marine Conservation in Washington, D.C. Participants from all over the world collect marine debris and record what they find. This information is then used to formulate solutions to marine debris problems based on potential sources identified.

Bellotti will be joined Saturday by Doug Gutro and volunteers from the Ward 5 Community Association, North Quincy High School teacher Margo Stockmeyer and her science students, and Denise Gould of the YMCA along with teenage volunteers and staff members.

Volunteers should meet between the Squantum and Wollaston yacht clubs at 9:30 a.m. Those interested in volunteering should call Bellotti at 722-2582 or 479-0111.

OLDER FEET: KEEP THEM MOVING!

Too many older people assume that foot aches and pains are just part of the aging process - something to be endured. Unfortunately, if the feet start having difficulties, chances are there are other health problems as well. Following a few preventative measures can help keep feet (and the entire body) healthy. Topping this list is movement. Using the feet, especially walking, is the best possible "medicine." Wearing shoes with firm soles and soft uppers can help as well. Beyond regular exercise, daily foot care is essential. Trim or file toenails straight across, and inspect feet daily for redness, swelling, cracks in the skin, or sores. Never try to treat corns, calluses, or warts with razor blades or caustic chemicals.

P.S. One-fourth of all nursing home patients in the U.S. can't walk, and one-sixth can walk only with help.

We strive to practice "state of the art" podiatry geared to prevention, as well as treatment. If you are having any type of foot problem consult with us. All medical coverage is accepted. We will even assist you in filling out the insurance forms. Make an appointment soon at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18, (773-4300). Our offices accepts most health insurance, and we are members of many HMOs and PPOs.

Inexperience May Overshadow Raiders' Talents

NQ's Season Opener Friday Vs. Stoughton

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Entering his 16th season as the head coach of the North Quincy High School football team, Ken McPhee knows the question Raider fans will be asking:

"How do you replace tailback Brian Walsh, who rushed for 1,969 yards and 19 touchdowns last season?"

McPhee's response?

"You don't," he said, "but I like who we have in the backfield, with (senior tailback) Jason Turner and (senior fullback and captain) Mike Powers. They're two of the most talented athletes on our team and will be counted on for a lot offensively."

Turner, who gained over 500 yards and scored four touchdowns in 1996, will be the primary rusher, while Powers, in his second season at North, will provide blocking, along with occasionally carrying the ball and catching passes.

"Jason's done a nice job in the preseason," said McPhee. "If he stays healthy, he can be a 1,000-yard rusher."

Regarding how the Red Raiders will fare, McPhee said, "We're very inexperienced, but I like our talent at the skill positions. It all depends how soon the new players acclimate to their positions and work together

"They're working hard and the coaching staff is working just as hard to prepare them. I'd have to say I'm guardedly optimistic. This year, I'd like to be in each game in the fourth quarter. If we are, then I like our odds."

The Red Raiders open their season Friday night at 7 against non-league opponent Stoughton at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Stoughton fell to Bishop Feehan, 28-0, in its opener last Saturday.

"Stoughton's a very good team," said McPhee. "That loss was not an indication of how good they are, because Bishop Feehan's an excellent team. Stoughton is very dangerous, with a lot of different weapons."

Taking his first snaps in the opener will be junior quarterback Chris Bregoli, replacing Tom Coughlin. A defensive back as a sophomore, Bregoli has impressed his coach with his rapid progression throughout the preseason.

"Chris has done very well so far," said McPhee. "He's done a good job running the team and is a good athlete. I think he'll do fine."

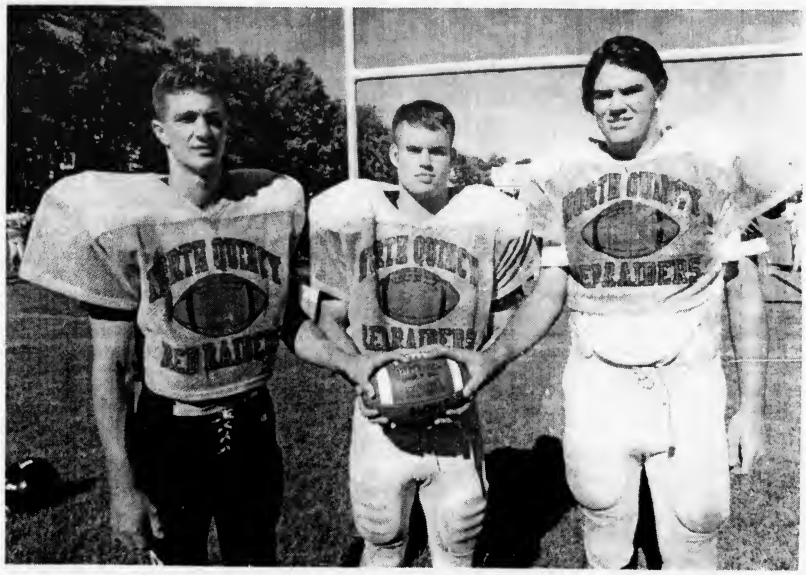
One of Bregoli's main targets will be junior tight end Frank McNamara, taking the spot of Charlie Plaskasovitis, one of North's most valuable players in recent years.

Lining up at the wing position will be seniors Manny Vasquez, Tim Kennersan and Dan Toland, while North's wide receivers will include sophomore Jody Bravo and seniors Matt Kane, Dan Collins, Ryan Deshler and Mark Stanton.

The biggest question regarding the offense, said McPhee, is the offensive line, which returns only two starters, senior captains Kevin Bowes (right tackle) and Brian Wells (left guard).

"Bowes and Wells are solid, but we're new at the other three positions," said McPhee. "The line needs to gel a bit, and I'm sure it will as the season goes on."

Senior Jim Callahan, originally slated for one of North's tackle slots, will start the season at center following a season-ending injury to Paul Carney and an injury to Matt Allen that will sideline Allen for a couple of weeks, according to McPhee.



At right guard will be senior Chris Robinson, while senior Joe Donahue or sophomore Neil Rosenberger will get the nod at left tackle.

On the defensive side of the ball, four starters return to anchor a group McPhee will rely on to "carry the load" as the offense gets on track.

"The defense has played pretty good in the preseason against four very strong teams--Needham, Newton North, Xaverian and Marshfield," he said. "Hopefully that bodes well for us. The defense needs to hold their end of the bargain early on, because it's a little ahead of the offense."

Depending on which defense is implemented, the defensive ends will be Toland and senior Brian Linskey. Returning at defensive tackle will be Bowes and Wells. At linebacker is re-

NORTH QUINCY HIGH'S tri-captains, from left, seniors Mike Powers, Brian Wells and Kevin Bowes, are the only returning starters on the Red Raiders' offense. The trio will be called upon to open holes for senior tailback Jason Turner and protect junior quarterback Chris Bregoli, both of whom will start their first game Friday night at 7 against visiting Stoughton. (Sun photo/Robert Bosworth)

YOUTH FOOTBALL

Storm, Apaches, Elks Win Youth Football Openers

The Quincy Youth Football League kicked off its season Sunday, with a rematch of last year's championship game among the clashes.

In the first game, the Squantum Storm picked up its first-ever win, shutting out the Milton Mustangs, 14-0. The Storm tied the Mustangs last season.

The Storm's big playmaker, Wayne Moynihan scored on a 55-yard run, then caught a pass for the two-point conversion from quarterback Timmy Watson for a 7-0 lead.

Chris Dolbeare took a short pass from quarterback Tim Seay and ran 60 yards, breaking tackles, for the Storm's second touchdown.

Interceptions were key as Matt Grazioso and Leo Ahern each had one for the Storm. Other standouts were Paul Adams, Mike Hayhurst and Dylan Seay.

The second game pitted the North Quincy Apaches against the Quincy Point Panthers, with the Apaches pulling out an 8-0 triumph.

In a scoreless battle, the Apaches took a 2-0 lead when a bad snap by the Panthers sailed into the end zone.

The game stayed that way until late in the fourth quarter, with the Panthers driving for the winning score. With 1:23 remaining, however, Panther quarterback Michael Lorenzano's pass was intercepted and returned for a touchdown by Joe Fitzpatrick. Leading 8-0, the Apaches' try for the conversion rush failed, but they held on for the win.

Sunday's third contest had the West Quincy Elks and Houghs Neck Manets clashing for the first time since last season's championship tilt. The Elks won that title game, and also captured this season's opener, blanking the Manets, 6-0.

A defensive battle through three hard-fought quarters, the Elks scored the winning touchdown after recovering a fumble late in the fourth quarter.

Presidents Visit D-Y Friday

Faherty Lifts Quincy Over Stang In Opener

FOOTBALL

CELEBRATING A VICTORY by Quincy in the season opener is Presidents' lineman Sean Fitzpatrick, a sophomore who started in the 18-7 triumph over Bishop Stang. Quincy is back in action Friday at 7 p.m. at Dennis-Yarmouth, a new addition to the Old Colony League this fall.

By LIAM FITZGERALD

A victory in the opener is always important to a football team, to start the season on a positive note, and Quincy High School is no different.

Coming off a 4-6 campaign in 1996, the Presidents began the new season in fine fashion, defeating visiting Bishop Stang, 18-7, last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Presidents look to capture their second win in as many games when they visit Dennis-Yarmouth Friday at 7 p.m. Dennis-Yarmouth, 1-9 last season in Division 3, is new to the Old Colony League this fall, having replaced Weymouth. In its first game in Division 1, D-Y fell to host Archbishop Williams, 25-0, last Saturday.

Quincy head coach Peter Chella, pleased with his team's performance in the victory, has made his players aware that they must put last week behind them and turn their attention to the task at hand--beating D-Y.

"They (D-Y) have a lot of seniors starting for them and this will be their first home game, so they'll be pumped," he said. "We have to keep focused on what's important, which is being prepared to win this game.

"The kids are feeling good about last week, which did a lot to galvanize our confidence, but they've got to realize it was just one game and we have nine more to go."

In the win over Bishop Stang, the Presidents received solid performances from running back Shaun Faherty (22 carries, 108 yards, two touchdowns) and quarterback Kevin Moore (4-for-8, 83 yards, one touchdown pass) in their first varsity starts.

"Shaun had a lot of big runs for us," said Chella. "You need to establish the running game right off the bat, to take pressure off the quarterback, and we did that. The offensive line did a super job coming off the ball and Shaun found the holes they created."

The visitors got on the board first as quarterback Tom Osuch romped 40 yards for a touchdown with 8:35 left in the opening half. Osuch (13 carries, 119 yards) booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

"Our defense played a strong game, and only let Osuch off the hook once, on that touchdown," said Chella. "He's a superb athlete, and I was pleased our defense contained him and their offense in the second half."

On the ensuing kickoff, Quincy's John Katsarikas took the ball at his own 10-yard line and handed off to Faherty, who galloped down the left sideline 86 yards to the Bishop Stang three. A two-yard run by Moore was followed by a one-yard dive into the end zone by Faherty. The Presidents opted for two and the lead, but Moore's pass fell incomplete and Quincy trailed, 7-6.

After Quincy's defense forced a punt, Moore engineered a nine-play, 80-yard drive that culminated in a dazzling 12-yard scoring jaunt by Faherty. The drive was highlighted by a 29-yard pass to Jim Quigley and a 27-yard toss to Faherty. On the touchdown run, Faherty avoided would-be tacklers and dived into the end zone for the score, sending the Quincy faithful into a frenzy. Again, the two-point conversion failed and Quincy led, 12-7.

Just when it appeared Bishop Stang were marching downfield, as Osuch carried twice for 31 yards with the half drawing to a close, Quincy's Quigley recovered a fumble to preserve the lead.

Following a scoreless third quarter, Moore tossed his first-ever varsity touchdown pass, a 22-yarder to Katsarikas, for an 18-7 Quincy lead. Bishop Stang drove into Quincy territory on its next possession, but a fumble recovery by Quincy's Tim Lewis with 7:13 left dashed any hopes the visitors had of a comeback.

"That recovery was huge," said Chella. "Tim missed all last year with a knee injury, but he worked so hard to come back. He deserves to be commended for his dedication and hard work--and for that big play."

Quincy High Notebook:

Not to be overlooked in the victory was the performance of Quincy senior punter Bryan Dunn, who booted five kicks for a total of 205 yards (41.0 average). Dunn also lines up as a flanker on offense and a safety or linebacker on defense.

"He did a real good job punting," said Chella. "He pinned them in their end every time, which is all you can ask for. They never really had good field position to start a drive.

"Overall, the special teams was strong, including the coverage. We work on that a lot in practice, because we feel it's an important factor in the game. And it paid off for us in a big way."

Chella was also impressed with the play of four sophomores who started their first varsity game Friday night.

"Dan Kelly, Mike Chenette, Nick DiStasi and Sean Fitzpatrick all played huge for us," he said. "It's great to see that from sophomores, contributing right away. It gives the team a big lift."

Inexperience May Overshadow Red Raiders' Talents

turning starter McNamara and sophomore Brian Deptula.

In the defensive backfield, Vasquez and Bravo will be the cornerbacks and Powers (returning starter), Stanton and senior Joe Flores, along with Sean Fitzgerald, will cover opposing receivers at the safety positions.

Doing the punting will be Deptula, while Bregoli and Powers will share the field goal, extra point and kickoff duties.

Looking at the competition in the Old Colony League, McPhee tabbed Bridgewater-Raynham as the "odds-on favorite" and listed Silver Lake and Quincy as other contenders.

"B-R is always tough," he said. "Quincy's got a good club this year, too. The rest of the league will be a dogfight."

Returning to the North Quincy sidelines for another season will be Pete Zoia, longtime Red Raider supporter who turns 80 years old Oct. 13.

"Pete's on board again, thank goodness," said McPhee. "He's one of our mainstays; he's a good man. He is an inspiration to this team without a doubt. He was a captain at North in the 1930s and had been involved with the program for over 60 years. He's amazing."

Sore knees have kept Zoia off his feet for much of the preseason, but McPhee believes Zoia will be there support North once the season commences.

"He'll grin and bear it--he has to," joked McPhee, "because we need to have him around. He's taking some medicine now and is not sure if he'll need surgery. But he'll be there when it counts."

Over 1,500 Participate

Degan Race Raises $15,000 For Local Groups

The fifth annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race proved to be yet another success, with more than 1,500 participants helping to raise $15,000 for Quincy athletic and educational groups.

Race organizers said the money raised from Sunday's race at Veterans Memorial Stadium will go to the Quincy Youth Arena, Quincy DARE, Marine Corps charities, the Beechwood Elementary School library and the Squantum Elementary music department.

The race preserves the memory of the fallen U.S. marshal from Squantum who was shot and killed in the 1992 seige of Ruby Ridge in Idaho. Last month, Kevin Harris of Republic, Wash., was charged with first-degree murder in Degan's death.

Among those who competed were "Degan's Devils," 40 members of the Marine Wing Support Squadron 474, who participated in memory of Degan, their fallen reserve commander.

Speeches by Mayor James Sheets, Congressman William Delahunt and District Attorney Jeffrey Locke preceded the firing of the starting gun by recently retired Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen.

WARRANTY INFORMATION

Are you confused as to what is covered by different warranties on new cars? As its name implies, the basic bumper-to-bumper warranty covers everything from the front bumper to the tailpipe. While such normal-wear items as windshield wipers may not be covered, repairs to correct defects are made at no charge for either parts or labor. As for a powertrain warranty, it covers the engine, transmission, and other parts of the drivetrain only. Because these components are usually very reliable, this warranty is only useful if it extends beyond the basic warranty. A corrosion or rust-through warranty covers rust perforations caused by natural elements, but generally not surface rust.

HINT: An optional extended warranty or service contract, available at an extra charge, extends the warranty protection beyond the period covered by the basic warranty.

Don't hesitate to ask any questions about handling problems or about anything else related to your car when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. SOCCER

Raiders Blank Cohasset, Host Taunton

Fresh off its third shutout victory of the season, the girls' soccer team at North Quincy High School hosts Old Colony League foe Taunton today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Teal Field.

The Red Raiders (3-2-1) travel to Dennis-Yarmouth next Monday at 4 p.m. and host Bridgewater-Raynham next Wednesday at 4 p.m.

On Monday, the Red Raiders blanked non-league opponent Cohasset, 5-0. The shutout was the third of the season for North's junior keeper, Kristen Bowes.

North took a 1-0 lead into the half when sophomore midfielder Maureen Holleran made a flip throw-in and senior midfielder and tri-captain Kristen Keohane tapped it in for her first goal of the season. The goal came with just 10 seconds remaining in the half.

North added to its lead early in the second half when senior wing and tri-captain Laurie Flynn notched her fifth goal, blasting a direct kick to the top corner. The play was set up when North's Betsy Stone, a junior forward, was tripped just outside the area.

Stone scored the next two goals to put the Red Raiders ahead, 4-0. The first score, assisted by Flynn, was a one-timer by the keeper. Stone's second tally came on a nice feed from freshman wing Kellee Conley.

With five minutes to play, North senior forward Marybeth Feeney netted her first varsity goal off of a Conley pass.

"Marybeth played her best game of the season," said North head coach Paul Bregoli. "Two freshmen--Jen Conley and Stacy Szcesuil--also played outstanding games, as did Katie Ceurvels at midfield, using her great speed to get to the ball. Senior Erin Tormey played well at outside back, too."

Returning to action after missing two games with a concussion was Jill Nicholson, a sophomore midfielder who contributed to the win. Senior Leela Shankar, who recently became eligible to play, saw significant playing time and impressed Bregoli with her passing skills.

The previous game was last Friday against the No. 4 team in the state, Silver Lake, and the result was a 3-1 defeat. North broke an early scoreless tie, as sophomore center-midfielder Ashley Murphy booted a shot into the top corner less than six minutes into the match.

"We outplayed them early on, and had numerous chances but couldn't capitalize," said Bregoli. "I was quite pleased with the performance of junior stopper Dorothy Cronin, who has been our most consistent player. She did a great job containing Candy Reich, who holds all the scoring records at Silver Lake."

Bregoli also commended the play of his back line, senior tri-captains Keohane and Katie Koch, along with junior sweeper Rachael Powers.

A Thought For The Week

An English newspaper asked this question: "Who are the happiest people on earth?" These were the four prize-winning answers"

A craftsman or artist whistling over a Job well done.

A little child building sand castles.

A mother, after a busy day, bathing her baby,

A doctor who has finished a difficult and dangerous operation, and saved a human life.

No millionaires among these, one notices. No kings or emperors.

Riches and rank, no matter how the world strives for them, do not make happy lives. . .

A wise man once said: "Happiness is impossible without some regard for the happiness of others and can so often be fostered by the smallest acts of kindness - acts that become instinctive and part of our nature if practiced from day to day. . .

Another wise man stated that happiness doesn't depend on what we have, but it does depend on how we feel towards what we have. We can be happy with little and miserable with much. . . .

L. Carol Killoran, 72
Bookkeeper; Treasurer

A funeral service for L. Carol (Dickinson) Killoran, 72, of Quincy, was held Sept. 11 at the Wollaston Chapel of the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Mrs. Killoran died Sept. 7 at the Norwell Nursing Center.

She was a retired treasurer and bookkeeper for her husband's company, Interlock Woodworking. She also worked a canteen truck with her husband in the 1940s and 1950s and helped run Justin's Hotel and Restaurant in Hanover during the late 1950s.

Born in the Squantum section of Quincy, she was a lifelong resident of Quincy. She was a graduate of North Quincy High School.

She was a member of the Viking Club of Braintree and the Disabled American Veterans.

Wife of the late Justin F. Killoran, she is survived by two daughters, Justine F. Shorey, and Carole T. Vaglica-Haley; a son, Jaime Killoran; a sister, Blanche Cahalin; five grandchildren, a great-grandson, and several nephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

John J. Gormley, 87
Worked In Food Industry

A funeral Mass for John J. Gormley, 87, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday at St. Ann's Church.

Mr. Gormley died Sept. 10 at Waltham Hospital in Waltham.

He was a chef for Silent Chef Caterers in Boston.

Over the course of his life, he worked a wide variety of jobs in the food industry, from fish cutter to culinary director in the hotel and catering business. He had a reputation for great St. Patrick's Day corned beef dinners and Rhode Island clam cakes.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, he emigrated to the United States when he was 17.

Husband of the late Hilda (Grandfield) Gormley, he is survived by two sons, John J. Gormley Jr. of Florida and Robert Gormley of California; four daughters, Joan Houton of Quincy, Patricia Connors of Waltham, Kathleen Roache of Duxbury and Janice Rattet of Walpole; 16 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're itching to get things done, but it's best to relax. Try not to worry about things you can't control this week. Be sure you get enough rest come the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a time fraught with minor snags and irritations. However, things clear up as the week progresses. An important phone call to a distant elderly person should be made by week's end.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) If it sounds too good to be true, then it is. A seemingly lucrative career move beckons, but stay put for a while. Your career eventually will blossom.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This isn't the week to keep things bottled up inside yourself. It's extremely important to express yourself to a partner. This clears the air and romance is renewed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Tempers could fly this week. It's a good time to look into educational pursuits. If a loan is needed, you'll get favorable news.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A raise you've been expecting doesn't come through. Keep plugging along, as higher-ups are watching and very impressed with your work. Close ties are supportive.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your judgment is excellent concerning personal and financial affairs. However, don't brag when socializing, as that could hurt someone's feelings. Be confident, but quiet.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While some developments could irritate you, it's mostly a positive time. An old acquaintance comes through with the information you need. Examine this carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If you plan on visiting relatives or friends, it's best to check into a hotel. Others aren't as hospitable as you'd like. Pay attention to what's being said at work this week.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Keep any career plans confidential for a while. Your financial security improves. A loved one has a happy surprise for you this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Single people meet that special someone. Partners rejoice with good financial news or the joy of a possible addition to the family. The weekend accents family harmony.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Long-distance travel could lead to romantic endeavors. You express yourself best with the written word. Your judgment is sharp this weekend concerning others' motivations.

Mayor James Sheets announced last week that the state will make available $3.1 million for the concourse project on Oct. 1.

The balance of the funding, a total of about $6 million, will be made available in October 1998, according to the mayor. The money will pay for all of the construction and landtaking costs associated with the project, although engineering costs may or may not be included in the $9.1 million total, he said.

Sheets hopes to have a groundbreaking for the concourse in late fall or early winter and that construction will begin the spring. The roadway should be open to motorists by late 1998 or early 1999, according to city officials.

The concourse, which will link Burgin Parkway with Hancock Street, is seen by city officials as a roadway that will not only help ease area traffic problems but also revitalize the downtown by improving access to Quincy Center.

Ayers Endorsed By Fire Fighters Union

The Quincy Fire Fighters Union has endorsed Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers for re-election.

Union officials recently announced they have determined that Ayers has proven to be the most qualified, hard-working and dedicated of all Ward 6 candidates.

He also has a record of assisting the union and Quincy firefighters in many ways, officials said.

LEGAL NOTICE

SALE OF REAL ESTATE
UNDER M.G.L., c. 183A, Sec. 6

By virtue of a Judgement entered by the Superior Court of Norfolk County (Docket No. 96-2037) in favor of Patricia Page et als, Trustees of Ocean Cover Condominium Trust v. Hon Pui Chan and Siu Kwan Li establishing a lien pursuant to G.L. c. 183A, Sec. 6 on the real estate known as Unit N. 410 of Ocean Cove Condominium and located at 677 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy, Massachusetts, for the purpose of satisfying such lien the real estate will be sold at Public Auction at 11:00 A.M. on October 9, 1997 at the office of the Norfolk County Deputy Sheriff, 630 High Street, Dedham, Massachusetts. The premises to be sold are more particularly described as follows: the unit ("Unit") known as No. 410 in the Ocean Cove Condominium at 677 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, a Condominium established pursuant to Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A, by Master Deed dated December 24, 1986 recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Book 7380, Page 264 ("Master Deed") which Unit is shown on floor plans of the building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed and on the copy of the portion of the plans attached hereto and made a part hereof, to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section 9 of said Chapter 183A. Said Unit is conveyed together with: 1) An undivided .1630 interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium described in said Master Deed attributable to the Unit. 2) the exclusive right to use any balcony or patio adjoining the Unit and to which the unit has access. 3) The right to use one parking space in parking area on an assigned basis. 4) All easements, rights, restrictions, reservations and provisions set forth or referred to in the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust of Ocean Cove Condominium Trust recorded with the Master Deed, and the first unit deed of the Unit. Being the same premises conveyed to Hon Pui chan and Siu Kwan Li by deed recorded with said Deeds Book 7923, Page 254.

Terms of Sale:

1: Non-refundable certified check for $2,500.00 to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of the auction.

2. The balance of the purchase price to be paid within thirty days of the sale.

3. Sheriff's Foreclosure Deed to be issued to purchaser upon payment in full of sale price. The deed shall convey the premises Subject to, and with the benefit of, any restrictions, easements, improvements, assessments, encumbrances, liens or claims in the nature of liens which are, by operation of law, conveyed with the premises.

4. No representation is or shall be made by Seller as to the status of any mortgage.

5. Other terms to be announced at the sale.

The sale is pursuant to a Judgement entered by the Brookline, a copy of which may be viewed at the office of Attorney Michael Merrill, One Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02108, 523-1760, attorney for the Seller, by appointment.

Michael W. Merrill, Attorney for the Trustees of Ocean Cove Condominium Trust.

SS Day Care Services Meeting Sept. 23

South Shore Day Care Services, the largest non-profit day care agency on the South Shore serving primarily low income families, will hold its 26th Annual Meeting and present the Rosemary Wahlberg Children's Choice Award Tuesday, Sept. 23 at 6 p.m.

The meeting, which will be open to the public, will be held in Straus Hall, Centre St., Milton Academy, Milton.

SSDCS provides quality care to over 500 South Shore children in preschool and after school centers, a Family Day Care Program and a summer camp. Child care sites are located in Quincy, Abington, Braintree, Hull, Holbrook, Brockton, Randolph and Weymouth and the summer camp in Westwood on the Hale Reservation.

The 1997 Children's Choice Award will be given to Phyllis Fazzio, director of the Step One Early Intervention Program at South Shore Mental Health and a former board member at SSDCS. She has dedicated more than 27 years of her life to young children and their families and is an advocate for children at the local and state levels.

The Children's Choice Award is given annually to the South Shore person who best exemplifies the extraordinary leadership and commitment to South Shore children provided by Rosemary Wahlberg, executive director of Quincy Community Action and one of the founding board members of SSDCS.

Breeda Powers Attends Teen Leadership Conference

Breeda Powers of Quincy was nominated by her high school counselors to participate in the Teen Leadership Conference held recently at Pine Manor College in Chestnut Hill.

Sponsored by the college's Center for Inclusive Leadership and Social Responsibility, the conference was the first in a series that seeks to provide an opportunity for high school girls to consider new models of leadership and their own capacities for exercising leadership.

Criteria for nomination include: involvement in school, community or family activities; ability to contribute to the learning of others and openness to growth and creativity.

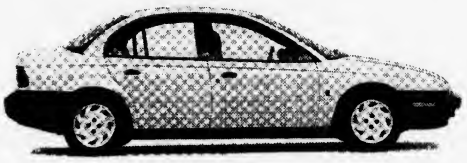
be on the Nov. 4 final election ballot along with Tuesday's winners in Wards 1, 3 and 6.

Five candidates seek one of the three available council at-large seats, one of which is open.

The vacancy is the result of Councillor Michael Cheney's decision not to seek re-election this year.

The five candidates are incumbents Tim Cahill and Paul Harold, former Mayor Francis McCauley, David McGillicuddy and Sabina Kavanaugh Stenberg.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, seeking a second term, is opposed by Stephen Hawko.



Six candidates for three school committee seats, one of their own, are: incumbents Jo-Ann Bragg and Ronald Mariano, Kevin Coughlin, Michael McFarland, John Rodophele Jr. and Tracy Wilson.

The open committee seat is the one being vacated by McCauley to run for councillor at-large.

Although unopposed, the names of Sheets, Raymondi and Durkin will also appear on the Nov. 4 final ballot.

The tabulation of Tuesday's vote was one of the fastest in memory, with the results completed shortly before 9 p.m., less than an hour after the polls closed.

Jim Asher

(The following editorial tribute to James D. Asher, founder of radio station WJDA, appeared in The Quincy Sun June 7, 1973 following his death. A copy of the editorial was placed in the Congressional Record by Congressman James A. Burke.)

Like most men, Jim Asher had his special dream.

Most men don't get to really see their dreams come true. But he did.

While doing graduate work at the Harvard University School of Business Administration, the young Kansas native became acquainted with the Boston area.

And in the late 1930's, he was a clothing salesman in Boston and here at a Quincy store.

He thought the Quincy area had good business potential. But instead of opening up a clothing store he decided to try a radio station.

He had a fascination for the No. 13. So on Sept. 13, 1947, WJDA went on the air-at 1300-on the dial.

"We had about $130 (that number again) in the bank and a lot of hope," he once recalled.

He didn't know much about radio. But he was willing to try.

And he ignored some of the so-called experts who were predicting WJDA wouldn't last six months. Quincy was too small and too close to Boston for a station of its own, they insisted.

What they didn't take into consideration was Jim's drive and determination. He made it. Today, the station that couldn't last is in its 26th year and one of the most successful in the nation.

Jim's dry wit and his homey broadcasting style made getting up a must for many listeners in the area. During his "Breakfast with JDA" from 6:30 to 8 a.m. (until his illness in 1972), Jim's listeners got such inside low down on the latest cribbage match with John (Zep) Duane or what Freddy Lane in the control room was doing for excitement, or they chuckled over Belinda, the mooing cow, who sounded so real people wanted to know how much hay she ate.

Jim, people have said, was a success in life.

But he was much more than that. He was a success as a human being.

True, he was a sharp businessman who could be tough when needed. But he was a good family man, a square shooter who believed in fair play, and was always ready to offer a helping hand.

Jim, for example was an inspiration to us in founding The Quincy Sun.

Our decision to bring a community-oriented weekly newspaper to Quincy was made with the realization that he had blazed the trail before us. He had proved there was room here for a radio station. We both thought there was now room here for a weekly newspaper, too.

Jim offered us encouragement before and after we started The Sun. He did this despite the fact that we were going to cut into the existing advertising dollar in the area.

That didn't bother him.

He went out of his way many times to "plug" The Sun on the air quoting excerpts or asking, "Did you see that item in The Sun?" His frequent mentioning of us helped make many people aware of the fact that there was another newspaper in town.

We will always be grateful to Jim for his kindness to us. He was a good friend.

The Quincy-South Shore area has also lost a good friend. Both he and WJDA have been active in many civic causes.

Jim is gone, but he leaves his radio station as a legacy for us all.

The station's call letters, WJDA, of course, are his initials—James Dudley Asher. Many people will remember him that way.

But having his own initials for call letters didn't impress him that much. In fact, it was only one of several submitted to the FCC for approval. They gave WJDA the green light.

What he was really proud of was what he once told us: "We're a family station."

Men like Jim Asher don't come this way very often. Quincy is indeed fortunate that he did.

So long, Jim.

50 Years Later:
WJDA Proved The Early Skeptics Were Very Wrong

By HENRY BOSWORTH

There were skeptics among the early listeners when WJDA first went on the air in 1947.

Won't last, they predicted. It'll be gone within six months.

Quincy was too small and too close to Boston to have a radio station of its own, they insisted.

Well, they were wrong then–and dead wrong now by a half-century.

WJDA is quite healthy and looking ahead to another half-century.

In the past 50 years, WJDA has come a long way from a modest beginning in a small wooden building on Brackett St. to a modern facility on the same site which opened in 1967, the station's 20th year.

Originally a sunrise-to-sunset station, WJDA is now on the air 24 hours a day, and still, very much community oriented.

WJDA was born at 6 a.m. Sept. 13, 1947. It was that hour and that date founders Jim Asher and Joe Tobin signed the station on the air, 1300 on the AM dial.

They obviously weren't superstitious. Most people wouldn't pick the date 13 to walk under a ladder or to launch a new business and future on.

But 13 didn't bother them. Not even the fact they only had, as the story goes, $130 in the bank when they switched on the air. That 13 again.

Tobin left a few years later to go to a radio station in Gloversville, N.Y. Asher stayed on as owner until his death in 1973 and was succeeded by his son, James (Jay) Asher, Jr. who runs the station today. Tobin is also deceased.

WJDA's success formula was probably pinpointed by the senior Asher many years ago when he noted: "We're a family station."

"We still are," says present station manager John Nicolson.

As a family station, WJDA's policy from the start, for example, has been to not mention suicide as a cause in local deaths.

"We're not concerned with the person who takes his own life," Asher once explained, "but we are concerned with the family he leaves behind."

And, says Nicolson, "We feel the same way about that today."

When it comes to music, WJDA never played what was then hard rock n' roll and is now heavy metal.

It serves up a variety of music--contemporary, big band, country western, show tunes with a dash of soft rock.

"We aim for the 45 and over age group," says Nicolson.

WJDA WAS BORN here in this wooden building on Brackett St., Quincy at 6:00 AM, Sept. 13, 1947. It was torn down to make room for the new modern facility behind it. This area is now the stations parking lot.

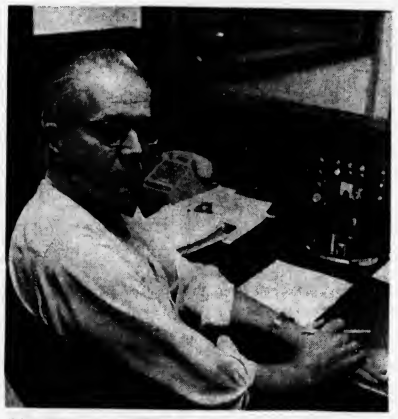
The station has a nice balance of local news, high school and college sports, community events and national and international news. And the popular "Party Line" program which gives listeners the chance to get things off their chest.

It has staff cars which in the early days were equipped with mobile broadcasting units for on-the-spot coverage but now have easier to handle and much clearer transmitting cellular phones.

Asher and Ken Fallon, who was the station's commercial manager and vice president, teamed in one of the station's memorable on-the-spot stories in the 1950's.

From mobile units they covered the chase of a Quincy bank robber and broadcast a live eye-witness account of a police officer gunning him down on a golf course.

Fallon smiles when he recalls that story today. Seems that before the bandit was caught, Asher had to prove he wasn't the one out robbing banks that day.



Asher found himself somewhat of a suspect when one of the police officers looking for the bandit, spotted Asher and stopped him and demanded he identify himself. Asher laughed and did and was allowed to continue covering the story.

WJDA keeps its eye on the nation and the rest of the world via the Associated Press news wire and audio service.

Its microphones have been to the Korean battlefront, Geneva Conference, inside Russia, the Near East, out to sea and to state and national political conventions.

The station's call letters are Asher's initials, James D. Asher. The D is for Dudley.

Asher wasn't on an ego trip. That letter combination was among several submitted to the FCC for approval. And WJDA was the one selected.

FOUNDER JIM ASHER shown behind the mike at one of the early "Breakfast with JDA" programs. He liked to get listeners with rousing early morning Sousa marches.

Asher was once a clothing salesman at Filene's in Boston and was general manager at Remick's in Quincy from 1936 to 1958.

During World War II he was a warrant officer stationed at Fort Devens.

That's how he became acquainted with Quincy after leaving his native Lawrence, Kansas.

"I always liked Quincy and thought it had tremendous possibilities," he once said.

So, he and Tobin, a resident of Weymouth, got together and Quincy got a radio station.

Asher originated the still popular "Breakfast With JDA" program which back then featured small talk, Belinda the cow and stirring Sousa marches to get listeners out of bed and ready to face the day.

They say there were some people who thought Belinda, an actual sound effect, was a real mooing cow. They wanted to know how much hay she ate and how many quarts of milk a day she was good for.

Another early popular program was the late Mary Johnson's "Stork Club" reporting births at Quincy, South Shore and Milton hospitals.

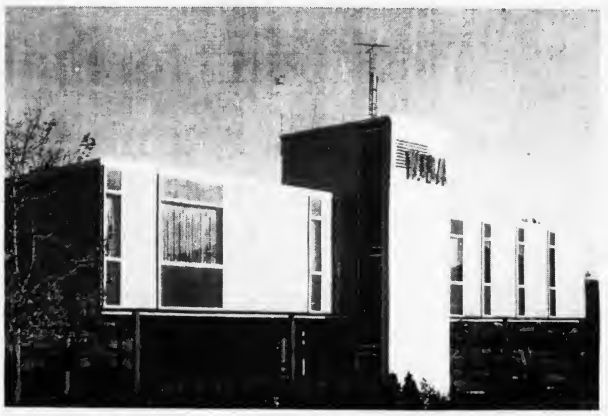
WJDA has a prominent broadcasting alumni:

Former high school sportscaster Ken Coleman who grew up in North Quincy went on to college and professional sports and became the radio "Voice of The Red Sox." He is now active with the Jimmy Fund organization.

Another Quincy boy, Don Kent, was the station's first weather forecaster as "Don Dixon" and went on to WBZ radio and television fame. Now retired and living in New Hampshire, he still does the weather commute for station WQRC on the Cape.

Another "Don Dixon" at WJDA was Dr. Richard Reed who later became a professor of meteorology at Washington State University. And, Thomas Malone, who became chief meteorologist for the Traveler's Insurance Company of Hartford.

The name "Don Dixon" was eventually filed away. Today's forecaster is Rob Gilman who uses his own name.



The late Bob Gallagher, another Quincy boy who was an early sportscaster at WJDA became the "Voice of The Miami Dolphins."

Family Station Format Will Continue

Staying True To Listeners Key To WJDA's Success

By MICHAEL WHALEN

WJDA President James D. "Jay" Asher Jr. says owning and operating a successful community radio station is not as difficult as one might think.

Asher thinks that remaining true to its listeners by keeping its format, for the most part, intact--especially with the help of loyal employees who have stayed at the station for many years--has been the key to WJDA's success.

"We've transitioned a bit, but the format has remained basically unchanged," he says. "It's been relatively easy, because we've had a lot of continuity with people. It just sort of glides along seamlessly.

"Our attitude toward the community is a big reason for our success. We really do feel it (the station) does belong to the people of Quincy and the South Shore. I think we've been pretty responsive to the needs of the people. We want to have an attitude that will benefit our listeners, an attitude that everybody counts."

And, he notes, WJDA will maintain that attitude as it moves into the future.

The 1000-watt station first went on the air on Sept. 13, 1947, seven months after Asher was born. It was started by his late father, James D. Asher--whose initials were used for the call letters--and Joseph Tobin, who left the station for New York in the early 1950s.

Asher remembers spending time with his father at the station during WJDA's early days. The elder Asher would spend six days a week at the station doing a little of everything, including broadcasting, selling ads, handling maintenance work and more.

"He always wanted to be in radio," Asher recalls. "He just loved the business. It was his vocation and his avocation. It was just his life."

But, he adds, there have been a number of other people who have contributed to the station's success over the years, including former News Director Herb Fontaine, who worked at WJDA around 35 years before his retirement; Program Director Roy Lind, who has been around just as long; Win Bettinson, Lind's predecessor who served over a quarter-century at the station; sportscaster Charlie Ross, 24 years; Station Manager John Nicolson, 20 years; and Joe Catalano, Fontaine's successor, the last seven years.

Among the many other colorful personalities who have left their mark at WJDA are well-known local weatherman Don Kent and Ken Coleman, who went on to become the radio voice of the Boston Red Sox before his retirement.

Asher noted that there has been similar success with longtime employees at WESX, the Salem radio station his father and Tobin purchased in 1952.

Asher himself did not necessarily plan to go into radio, but became involved with the family business when his father's emphysema became more debilitating in 1971. At that time, he left a job with an insurance company in Hartford, Conn. to become executive vice president of WESX.

It was also in 1971 he married his wife Terry, a flight attendant for American Airlines, with whom he lives in South Weymouth.

Two years later, his father died, and Asher took over as president of WJDA.

"It's a fun business," he says today. "When my father became ill, I felt it was both a responsibility and an opportunity to get involved. I have no regrets.

"Quincy is a wonderful city, and I think people here really care about each other. It serves a very satisfying purpose just to provide people with the opportunity to be informed."

WJDA is still very much what it was when it first started: a community-oriented radio station with a target audience of listeners 35 and over.

But there have been changes, most notably the extension in the 1990s of its original daily broadcasting hours of 6 a.m. to sunset. The hours were first extended to encompass the period from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m., and later--with the help of added technology--WJDA became a 24-hour station.

Technology has made the business a bit less people-oriented, Asher notes, but has also eliminated a number of "tedious" jobs.

"We have fewer people, but we can treat the people better who are involved in it," he said.

Other changes have included the addition of nationally-syndicated talk shows, an affiliation with ABC that allows the station to provide pumped-in satellite music, and increased programming done in conjunction with WESX.

Asked about the future, Asher said more changes are possible, including an increase in wattage and more technological upgrades--"there's always room to improve the execution," he says--but things basically should remain the same.

"You can't take anything for granted," he said. "I don't know what's going to happen to the radio industry. But my plans are to keep it and maintain it as a locally-owned facility.

"I guess the simple answer to your question," he adds with a laugh, "is that we'll probably just keep on doing what we're doing!"

No. 13 Like A Lucky Charm

The No. 13 seems to go hand-in-hand with WJDA like a lucky charm.

First of all, late founder James D. Asher was born in 1913 on Oct. 22.

WJDA went on the air for the first time Sept. 13, 1947. On the 1300 AM frequency.

And, as Asher liked to tell it, he and co-founder, the late Joseph Tobin, had $130 in the bank when they signed the station on the air that day.

WJDA's phone number is 479-1300.

Asher's auto registration was K 1313 which now adorns the car of his son, James (Jay) Asher who now heads the station.

John Nicolson, station manager has registration P-1300, sportscaster and announcer Charles Ross, R-1300, Roy Lind, program director P-1350 and former program director Win Bettinson, 1321.

The senior Asher always considered 13 a lucky number. And it apparently was and has been.

And does his son, Jay, think it's lucky?

"Yes," he smiles, noting he married his wife, Terry, a pretty flight attendant for American Airlines in 1971--on Feb. 13.

Don Kent Got Started With A Hurricane And Alias

Don Kent, who grew up in Quincy, broke into weather broadcasting with an alias and with the help of a hurricane.

It was back in September, 1947 and WJDA had been on the air about a week and things were a little hectic and disorganized.

There wasn't what you would call planned programming. It was a sort of flying by-the-seat-of-the-pants schedule.

Co-founders Jim Asher and Joe Tobin were trying to put together a few good programs while also trying to find some advertising sponsors to put bread on the table and keep the wolf away.

Asher quickly zeroed in on the Kent rug outlet on Quincy Shore Drive across from Wollaston Beach as a possible advertising prospect.

Roger Kent happened to be the one Asher approached and was told: "No, thanks, we don't need any right now."

There really weren't that many rugs around to sell in those days. Production had stopped during World War II and stores still had trouble stocking them.

"My brother's pretty good at forecasting the weather," Roger happened to mention, "in case you're looking for a weatherman."

Asher said he wasn't looking for one at that moment but he would keep it in mind.

A few days later, a hurricane was brewing off Florida and Asher remembered his visit to Kent's.

He and Tobin invited Roger's brother, Don, to come by the station. And before he knew it, they had him on the air, talking about the threatening hurricanes.

DON KENT

As Kent recalls:

"At that time Jim and Joe were trying to get audience reaction to people and programs they were putting on the air."

The response to Kent, who came through friendly, folksy and knowledgeable: a hit.

Asher and Tobin knew they had something good and decided to hire him as a regular on the newscasts.

But there was one slight hitch. The newscast sponsor happened to be the Sheridan's store in downtown Quincy, which sold, among other things, furniture–and rugs.

Sponsors were hard to come by for the fledgling radio station and Asher and Tobin weren't about to risk losing Sheridan's by having Don Kent, a rug competitor, doing the weather on a program Sheridan's was paying for.

How do you solve that little problem?

Well, just a few minutes before Kent was to go on the air, he recalls, Tobin pulled the name "Don Dixon" off the wall.

Kent remained on WJDA as Don Dixon until 1951 when he moved to WBZ radio.

But, he still couldn't be himself.

From 1951 until 1955 he was known as "Weatherbee, the BZ Weatherman".

But, finally, when he moved over to WBZ-TV, they let him be Don Kent. And, of course, he became one of the most personable TV personalities in New England.

Kent retired from WBZ-TV in 1983 but continued to do his weather spots on

'It Was A Wonderful Time In My Life'

Ken Coleman's Big Break Came At WJDA

KEN COLEMAN

Ken Coleman, who got his start at WJDA, looks back on those early days as "a wonderful time in my life."

A 1943 graduate of North Quincy High School, he joined WJDA on Christmas Day, 1947 just three months after the station went on the air.

Little did he realize it would lead to "the big time" as the "Voice of The Boston Red Sox" as well as the voice of the Cleveland Browns, the Cleveland Indians and the Cincinnati Reds.

When you think of Ken Coleman you naturally think of sports. They just go together.

But in those early days at WJDA he got to do a variety of programs and to cover news events.

He recalls with a smile the day a ship was being launched at the Fore River Shipyard and the sponsor swung the traditional bottle of champagne to christen the vessel.

But the bottle wouldn't break.

"She must have tried at least 10 times and I tried to explain it on the air 10 times," he muses.

Some of those early WJDA programs he was involved in may be remembered by listeners who began tuning in to the new Quincy radio station back then and many of them are probably still tuned in today.

Among them: "Stump The Staff", "Flying Discs", "Battle of The Baritones" or the "1300 Man".

The "1300 Man" was the recorded voices of well known but unidentified South Shore figures.

Each day, a rhyming clue was played over the air to help listeners identify one. The first person to call in with the correct identity won a monetary prize. The longer it took to identify the voice, the bigger the prize got. The next day there would be a new mystery voice.

"We had the opportunity of doing so many things," Coleman says. "I learned a great deal. It was a wonderful time in my life."

And he adds:

"It was probably the most fun I ever had in all the years I've done radio because we (the staff) felt very much a part of something that was growing and has become a truly great radio station in the area that it serves."

Coleman is best remembered for his high school football coverage while at WJDA.

And it was a high school football game and a touch of fate that opened the doors to big things for him.

It was the 1950 game between Weymouth and Brockton High Schools, two of the top schoolboy teams in New England that year.

"College football at that time wasn't doing very well in Boston," Coleman recalls. "There were not many good teams around."

Bill Cunningham, the late Boston Herald columnist, felt the same way and decided to pass up college games that day and cover the Weymouth-Brockton game instead.

It was a good choice.

The game turned out to be one of the best high school football games ever played in New England and which was won by Harry Arlanson's Weymouth team.

Cunningham poked his head into the press box at Weymouth's Legion Field that day, saw it was crowded and decided to try the radio booth where Coleman was, doing the play-by-play.

Cunningham was impressed with Coleman's work behind the mike.

And, remembers Coleman: "He sat in and did color with me."

"The next day he was nice enough to say in his column that the description of the football game between Brockton and Weymouth was the most accurate he had ever heard," Coleman recalls.

Cunningham also said in his column that Coleman was ready for bigger things than high school football.

It opened the door for Coleman who landed a college broadcasting berth as a result. And that led him in 1952 to the Cleveland Browns for 14 seasons.

There was somebody else on his way up at that Weymouth-Brockton game that eventful day.

Among the spectators was a young man from Brockton who after the game was offered a ride home.

"No thanks," he said. "I think I'll just jog home."

It was Rocky Marciano whose brother was playing for Brockton that day.

Coleman did 10 seasons with the Cleveland Indians and four with the Cincinnati Reds. But he is best known in New England for his 20 years as "The Voice of The Red Sox" during two different stints.

He is now doing a program called "Ken's Corner" on WOCN (103.9 FM) in Hyannis. And finding time to get in some golf.

He is still active with the Jimmy Fund and just last week emceed the Jimmy Fund Classic in Bolton. Appearing with him was another Quincy boy, Dick Flavin.

Coleman grew up in North Quincy and played baseball in the old Quincy Park League. He was a pitcher and, they say, he was pretty good.

But not as good as his boyhood friend, the late Dick Donovan who also pitched in the Park League and made it to the major leagues.

But Ken Coleman made it to the majors, too. Not with a fastball or a slider but with a natural talent behind the mike.

'It Was Never Boring'

Ken Fallon Won Interviews With Four U.S. Presidents

Ken Fallon wore a number of hats during his 32 years with WJDA.

And, they were all good fits.

Kenneth P. Fallon, Jr.--to be formal--found his long association with WJDA both challenging and satisfying.

"It never got boring," he says looking back on the years from 1951 to 1982 when retired.

For example, as a newsman, he got to interview one U.S. president and three-to-be presidents. As a sportscaster, he covered local high school football, golf and spring training with the Red Sox.

And, on the business side, he was vice president and commercial manager of the station.

Fallon started out on a part-time basis with WJDA in 1951 doing the color broadcasts of South Shore high school football games.

A play-by-play announcing job opened in 1953 and he was invited to submit an audition tape. Fallon grabbed a tape recorder and scooted over to Legion Field in Weymouth where the legendary Harry Arlanson's Weymouth High School football team was scrimmaging another high school team as a pre-season warmup.

"When I got there, I was stunned to learn that both teams had on practice jerseys with no means of identification by name or number," he recalls.

"I had to pull names out of the hat to describe the action. I was real disappointed in the tape and thought my chances for the job were down the drain."

But the powers at WJDA liked it and the play-by-play job was his. It, too, was a part-time position.

Fallon was doing well as an assistant manager at the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's Quincy office at the time and had no thoughts of full-time work at WJDA.

But then, fate stepped in at Quincy Hospital in June, 1954 when Fallon had hernia surgery and a couple of days later, James Asher, founder of WJDA, was admitted with acute appendicitis and was operated on.

Asher's room was three doors from Fallon's. "We had known each other as members of the Quincy Rotary Club, but really became well-acquainted at the hospital," Fallon recalls.

Sometime later, Asher asked him to join WJDA full-time, offering him the position of commercial manager. Fallon accepted.

And, he was soon to have the best pre-summer tan at the station. He covered the Red Sox in spring training in Florida and Arizona for 25 years.

One of his favorites was Ted Williams, whose runins with the media were well publicized.

"I never had a problem with Ted," Fallon says. "He was always gracious and cooperative with me."

Fallon introduced his wife, Dorothy, to Williams one day in Scottsdale, Ariz. And the next day, as he trotted in from left field, Williams spotted Dorothy in the stands and went over to say hello to her. She was thrilled.

Fallon interviewed one sitting (and walking) President: Harry Truman. That was during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in 1952.

Fallon caught up to Truman in the lobby of the hotel where he was staying but lost him when Truman exited through the revolving door and Fallon couldn't get his radio equipment through it.

Truman was off on one of his famed early morning walks. Fallon caught him again along Lake Michigan.

He met and interviewed Lyndon Johnson at the 1956 convention which was also held in Chicago. That year, Adlai Stevenson was nominated for the second time to run against Dwight Eisenhower.

Fallon interviewed Gerald Ford at one of the receptions during Richard Nixon's inaugural festivities in 1969. Who would have thought a Watergate was in the future and Nixon would resign and Ford become president?

Fallon interviewed John F. Kennedy at WJDA when he was running for reelection to the U.S. Senate in 1958.

"He had his eye on the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination at that time and was out to win reelection in a big way," recalls Fallon.

What did he think of Truman, Johnson, Ford and Kennedy?

"When you're talking to them one on one, you realize they were blessed with that certain something, that quality of leadership," he says.

After retiring from WJDA in 1982, Fallon became executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association for five years.

He is now retired but remains active with the Rotary Club, and gets in some golf.

His WJDA colleagues joined other friends to honor him at a surprise 80th birthday party a few weeks ago at the Wollaston Golf Club.

He's a young 80.

'The People Made It Interesting'

It Was Like A Family For Win Bettinson

WIN BETTINSON who was the program director also hosted the popular "Party Line" program.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

WJDA and family are synonymous for Win Bettinson, the station's former program director who retired in 1990 after a 38-year broadcasting career there.

"WJDA was unique. It was like a big family. In addition to bringing local news and sports to listeners, we'd announce anniversaries, birthdays and even lost dogs and cats. The people made it interesting," Bettinson recently recalled.

Bettinson was hired in 1952 by co-founder James D. Asher. The station's call letters represented Asher's initials. But Asher used to call Bettinson's family the "WJDA family." The four initials also stood for the Bettinson clan: Win, wife Jean, son Dana and daughter Andrea.

After he was hired, Asher encouraged Bettinson to move closer to the Quincy area from his home in Arlington.

"Jim Asher encouraged his staff to live locally. He said if I wanted to go anywhere at the station, I should move closer to Quincy," said Bettinson, who moved to Braintree soon after he was hired and has lived there ever since.

Bettinson, who has been active for many years in several local organizations, said it was Asher who suggested getting involved in the community.

"He encouraged us to get involved in the community. One of the first things I did was join the Kiwanis Club of Quincy, and thanks to (fellow Kiwanians) Paul Ricciardi and Leo Darr I did."

Over the years, Bettinson has been active with other organizations, including the Norfolk County Lung Association, Weymouth Savings Bank and Salvation Army Advisory Board. "The Salvation Army Board was important because they we getting ready to build a new headquarters," Bettinson said.

Shortly after joining Bethany Congregational Church, he was asked to serve as the church moderator. He also served a number of years as a town meeting member in Braintree.

"Things like that make you more valuable to the station because people get to know you," he said.

As the station celebrates its 50th anniversary, Bettinson also recalled many fond memories and highlights during his career there.

Bettinson arrived at WJDA in September, 1952 just as the station was to observe its fifth birthday. The studios and offices were located in a one-story building that was located closer to Brackett St. than the present station. At the rear were several cages containing animals that were to be featured in two free circus performances at Veterans Memorial Stadium that weekend.

"This was part of the station's fifth birthday celebration that also included a parade on Saturday morning in downtown Quincy," Bettinson recalled.

"Some of those who worked with me at the start included Bill Edwards, Charlie Glass, Don LaTulippe, Fred Lane, George Sweeney and John Lee. Although I was hired as a sales representative I was eventually appointed program director, a post I held until my semi-retirement in 1982."

Although WJDA emphasized local news, sports and events, Bettinson traveled beyond Quincy several times in his radio duties.

"I had the privilege of joining other local dignitaries on three trips sponsored by our armed services. One was to observe certain installations connected to the Air Force. Another took us to Cape Canaveral where my roommate was Morton Dean, then of WBZ and now of ABC News. This was prior to the activation of Cape Kennedy.

"A third experience was a trip to Pensacola, Florida, to observe the training of pilots landing on the deck of the aircraft carrier, USS Lexington, the same ship that Quincy sought for the Quincy shipyard."

Of course, some of Bettinson's fondest memories occurred right here.

"It was my fortune to be present for several launchings and commissionings at the Fore River. I especially recall being present for the keel laying, launching and commissioning of the nuclear-powered destroyer leader, USS Bainbridge. Admiral Hyman Rickover and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall etched their initials on the keel.

"I remember the christening of the SS Manhattan, at that time the largest tanker afloat."

Bettinson was also responsible for the Party Line program which had its start in the early 1960s. It was one of the first talk programs in the Greater Boston area and continues today with host Roy Lind.

In addition, Bettinson started the "Church in the Wildwood" program which was heard at 7:30 a.m. every Sunday. He also aired "Songs of Faith" at 8:30 a.m. Sundays, a program that featured church news and choirs and soloists. For several years morning worship services were broadcast, first from the First Presbyterian Church and then from Bethany Congregational Church. This practice ended with Bettinson's retirement in 1990.

For his public service efforts, he received a first place award for "Operation Health" in the 22nd annual UPI Tom Phillips New England Broadcast Awards competition in 1978. The 13-week series discussed a

'You Didn't Know What Would Happen From One Second To The Next'

For Herb Fontaine There Was Never A Dull Moment

HERB FONTAINE CHECKS the news wire before going on the air in this 1975 photo.

Herb Fontaine, now retired, was a familiar voice in Quincy and South Shore homes for 35 years as a news reporter and news editor.

"It was never boring," he says. "There's nothing quite like covering news. You really don't know what's going to happen from one second to the next."

Fontaine came to WJDA from station WOCU in Lewiston-Auburn, Me., in August 1955 and was behind the WJDA microphone until his retirement in 1990.

For a number of years he worked the early morning shift with the late James D. Asher, founder of the station who hired him.

"I would arrive at the station between 4 and 4:15 a.m. because I had much preparation work to do before going on the air," he recalls.

"I had a reputation for awaking officials to get information about night-before happenings. I always told them I was sorry if I had awakened them."

But he now confesses: "Well, I was a little sorry if I got them out of bed. But I would've been more sorry if I didn't get the story."

Fontaine, who won the nickname "Scoop" prided himself in being able to dig up news stories. And proud that he was trusted by police officials, political figures and others to "hold" a story until the proper time for release.

"I got burned a few times on that," he says. "But their trust in me meant a lot."

Fontaine also covered special assignments here and overseas. One was a trip to Israel in the 1980's.

Aboard the plane, he was taping an interview with the pilot when the latter interrupted him. "Wait a minute," he said. And over the radio came the report that U.S. Marines had just been killed by a Palestinian bomb.

"It was shocking, getting that news first hand like that," Fontaine remembered.

Other assignments took him aboard aircraft carriers. He flew with one of the Blue Angels when that precision flying team appeared at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

In 1969, Fontaine put together a special program on the growing drug problem, interviewing police officials, community leaders, and drug addicts themselves.

The series of 15 one-hour programs called "The Drug Menace, 1969" won the Tom Phillips Award, the United Press International top New England award for public service.

One news story really hit home.

It was Jan. 18, 1990 and Fontaine was just going on the air when he caught a report on the police scanner of "a serious accident" on Quincy Shore Drive near Caddy Memorial Park.

He didn't have time to check on the accident but mentioned it in his newscast and said details would follow as soon as they were available.

Shortly after the newscast, he received a telephone call from Quincy Hospital informing him that his wife, Barbara, was being admitted after being struck by a hit-and-run car.

She was the victim in that "serious accident" on Quincy Shore Drive. Their pet dog that Barbara was walking on a leash was killed by the same hit-and-run car.

"Here was a newsman," notes Fontaine, "reporting someone seriously injured in an accident and not knowing it was his wife."

Barbara recovered after a long hospital stay.

Fontaine won a number of awards during his 35-year news career. Perhaps the fondest recognition for him came from the Quincy City Council in June 1987.

That was the night a plaque honoring him was unveiled in the council chambers with a bust of him and this engraved inscription:

"The Quincy City Council Honors Herb Fontaine of WJDA Who Exemplifies the Highest Ideals of Broadcast Journalism: Accuracy, Professionalism, Integrity and with Fairness To All. True to His Family, His Work, Colleagues and Community."

Fontaine had praise for colleagues he has worked with at WJDA. Like Win Bettinson, Jerry Howard, Bob Rissling, Joe Kenney, who now lives in Ireland, Fred Lane and the late Nelson Bragge.

"Excellent radio men," he says.

Though retired, Fontaine remains active in the community.

He is on the boards of directors of the Beechwood Community Life Center, Father Bill's Place, the Interfaith Sheltering Coalition for the Homeless and is a member of the Quincy Postal Advisory Committee.

"Keeps me young," he laughs.

Kept Crucial Information Flowing To Snow-Bound Listeners

WJDA Showed Its True Grit In Blizzard Of '78

By HENRY BOSWORTH

WJDA has served the South Shore community well for a half-century.

The successful formula: a good balance of local and national news, weather, sports, music, interviews, meeting notices, school cancellations, etc.

And, when it comes to a biggie, the WJDA staff is ready for the challenge.

Such a challenge was the Blizzard of '78.

Anyone who lived in Quincy or the South Shore during that howler remembers WJDA with fondness--and gratitude--for going above and far beyond the call of duty.

The station's performance during that historic storm was, many will agree, its "finest hour."

But it was more than an hour. It was several days. Several long days.

During most of that hectic time, with the storm burying the area under 27 inches of snow, furiously lashing the coast, smashing seawalls, flooding streets and homes, WJDA was on the air with vital information.

Station owner James (Jay) Asher and staffers Win Bettinson, Ken Fallon, Herb Fontaine, John Nicolson, Charles Ross and Don Baird kept the crucial information flowing to snowed-in and/or flooded out listeners. And, with it, appeals for equipment such as snowmobiles and four-wheel drive vehicles needed by Civil Defense and other emergency crews.

The station stayed on the air after normal broadcasting hours two nights to keep feeding information to listeners who were virtually prisoners in their own homes.

It was during the height of the storm--Feb. 7--that WJDA showed its true grit--and dedication. An abnormal high tide had rolled over the insulator of the antenna at the transmitter in Germantown and knocked the station with studios on Brackett St. off the air for four hours.

After those long four hours of dead silence, Asher and the staff couldn't stand it any longer. They were itching to get back on the air, back to helping their listeners.

Without really knowing if the water was still dangerously above or safely below the insulator, the decision was made to go for it: try to get back on the air.

Asher later recalled:

"We got tired of sitting around so we turned on the power. It was a lucky shot. It worked, but it could have burned everything out."

It could also have knocked Asher out of business.

The son of WJDA founder James D. Asher and now president-treasurer of the station, he vividly recalled the "Blizzard of '78" in an interview with The Quincy Sun shortly after.

"It was like an adventure out of Star Wars," he said, describing trying to get to the station from his Weymouth home early that Tuesday morning.

"Going down Route 3-A in a blinding snowstorm, no cars, no lights, except every now and then an electrical transformer would short and there would be a brilliant blue flash."

JAY ASHER and Ken Fallon confer over a news item. Both played key roles in getting crucial information out to listeners during the "Blizzard of '78."

It was 5:30 a.m. Tuesday, the day the blizzard stuck. And it was the beginning of the most hectic day in the station's then 30-year history.

Tuesday, for Asher, began at 3 a.m. when he got up to shovel out his snow white driveway.

He left his South Weymouth home at 5 a.m. He found Quincy Ave. closed and took the alternate route through North Weymouth which had taken on an eerie "Star Wars" look.

"I walked down Brackett St.," he recalled, "thinking 'Gee, if nobody else gets here it might be my announcing debut."

Asher, whose voice is rarely heard on WJDA found himself musing: "I wonder what it would be like to be on the air all day."

But Herb Fontaine, who was the news director and announcer and who lived not too far away in Merrymount, was already there. Quincy police, aware the station would be needed to get out emergency information, picked him up and got him to the station.

Engineer Don Baird was able to walk in from his nearby home.

John Nicolson arrived from North Weymouth about the same time as Asher. Ken Fallon made i from his home on Furnace Brook Parkway. Both he and Nicolson walked and hitched rides on snowplows.

Win Bettinson got in from Braintree Highlands thanks to a police cruiser relay. Bettinson arranged with Braintree police to get him to Capen's Circle where Quincy police met him and delivered him to the Southern Artery end of Brackett St.

"They arrived like the cavalry," said Asher. "Al different directions and methods."

WJDA Proved The Early Skeptics Were Very Wrong

Bill Edwards, former reporter and news editor at WJDA, moved on to NBC's "Monitor" program. He's now semi-retired doing consulting work for NBC and living in New York.

Don LaTullipe, who went to WEZE and WRKO, is retired but doing some work for WEZE.

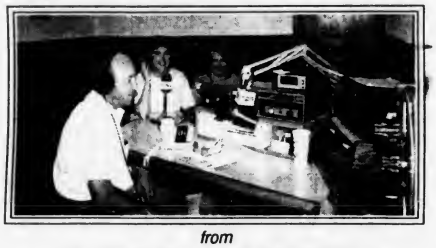
Joe Kenney, who used to host "Party Line" is retired and living in Ireland.

Charles Ross, whose grandfather served nine years as Quincy mayor and was one of the city's powerful political figures, has had a near 25-year association with WJDA.

He has worked both full-time and part-time doing newscasts and high school sports. He is now the Saturday morning host of the "Breakfast with JDA" program also does some football.

To WJDA from other stations came popular radio personalities such as Nelson Bragge (WBZ-TV), Jerry Howard (WBZ-WEEI) and Bob Rissling (WBZ).

Bill Coleman, Ken Coleman's son and nephew of the late Bill Coleman who used to do those gasoline commercials on the old Boston Braves telecasts, had a stint at WJDA. He is now in the mortgage business.



Today's familiar voices on WJDA are Roy Lind, Joe Catalano, John Nicolson, Diane Baron, Terry Fancher, Mike Logan and Ross.

And they are ready to start the next half-century.

ENGINEER BILL MALCOLM flips the switch to get WJDA off to the start of it's 31st year in September, 1977.

WBZ radio from his North Weymouth home until his retirement in 1985.

He and his wife, Miriam, now live in Sanbornton, N.H., appropriately "high on a windy hill."

"I've become a first class farmer," he laughs, producing blueberries, strawberries, apples, etc. by the bushels.

But he really hasn't retired from the weather business.

He is doing the weather for WQRC (FM 99.9) in Hyannis--from his home in New Hampshire.

He does the commute weather between 4 and 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, noon and 6 on Saturdays and 8 and 9 Sunday mornings.

"You can say I'm still working seven days a week," he laughs.

So, as WJDA celebrates its 50th anniversary, Don Kent is also celebrating his 50th year on the air.

That would seem to make him the dean of New England weather forecasters.

'An Exciting Place To Be'

John Nicolson: A Man For All Seasons

By MICHAEL WHALEN

John Nicolson is something of a jack-of-all-trades for WJDA.

Nicolson, 54, has worked at the radio station since 1977 and has been station manager since 1990. In that capacity, he says, he does "a lot of everything"--including computer programming, production work, occasional broadcasting, handling sales calls and more.

"With automation and the way things are today, we operate with less people," he says. "I do everything from answering the phone to all the way up. We all do, really."

And, he adds, he wouldn't have it any other way.

"It's an exciting place to be," says Nicolson, who also was given the title of vice president in 1992. "Everything that happens on the South Shore goes through WJDA in one way or another. The station provides a real service to the community, and you get to meet some wonderful people.

"And every day is different. Something new is always happening."

After working in the camera business in Hingham--and, briefly, New York--Nicolson returned to Massachusetts and started at WJDA as a salesman working under Ken Fallon, the sales manager at the time, and Earl Hannafin who also worked in sales the department.

"I learned a lot from those two gentlemen, both of whom had spent more than 25 years here," he said. "They both had a great deal of pride in the station, as well as a dedication to our advertisers. Both were very active in the communities the station serves. They set a great example for me to follow."

Nicolson added that he considers himself lucky to have worked with some of the people who helped make WJDA the success story that it is today, including Fallon, former News Director Herb Fontaine, former Program Director Win Bettinson and former announcer Joe Kenny.

Reflecting on some of his happier moments during his 20 years at the station, Nicolson mentions events such as the arrival of the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Salem at the Fore River shipyard in 1994; North Quincy High School's victory over Arlington in the High School Division 1 Super Bowl in 1992; and a Mass celebrated by Cardinal Bernard Law at St. John's Church shortly after he became head of the Archdiocese of Boston in the early 1980s.

He has met and interviewed a number of famous people, including politicians, athletes, and others.

Perhaps the saddest story Nicolson remembers is the Dec. 27, 1977 accident involving a WEEI Radio traffic helicopter that crashed into a West Quincy apartment building. The two people in the copter--including former WJDA employee Chip Whitmore--were killed.

"I had never met Chip, but still it was like, one of your own goes down," he said. "And we got calls from radio stations all over the world, including Australia."

But when you ask WJDA employees about the story that stands out most in their minds, most will say the Blizzard of '78, through which the station stayed on the air to provide people with the information they needed. Nicolson is no exception.

"On the day of the storm, I woke up at about 2 in the morning," he remembers. "I looked out my window, and I said, 'Oh, my God!' After that, I couldn't get back to sleep. So I got dressed and came to work.

"That was a lot of fun, if something like that can be fun. There was just a lot going on that day."

It's events like the Great Blizzard, Nicolson realizes, that best exemplify the station's dedication to doing all it can to help residents of the South Shore.

"WJDA is an icon in this business," he said. "We have been owned by the same family all of our 50 years, and we have had the same format all this time: 'South Shore News and Information.' We just try and do it better (as time goes on).

"I am very proud to have been a part of this wonderful station and to have enjoyed being a part of such a great reputation."

Nicolson and his wife Penny, who live in Weymouth, will celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary in October.

STATION MANAGER John Nicolson is one of a string of WJDA employees who have devoted two decades or more to the station. Nicolson has been with WJDA since 1977.

Those Don Dixons

In the early years, WJDA's weather forecasters were known as Don Dixon.

Among them:

Don Kent, who went on to WBZ and WBZ-TV; Dr. Richard Reed, who became professor of meteorology at Washington State University and Tom Malone, who became director of weather information for the Travelers Insurance Co. of Hartford.

Rob Gilman, their successor, goes by his own name today.

Good News: No Retirement Plans

Roy Lind Has Legion Of Fans As 'Party Line' Host

OFF THE AIR, Roy Lind (right) is WJDA's program director. Here he is with Pat Whitley, host of the station's Sunday restaurant program.

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Loyal listeners of WJDA have no need to fear: Roy Lind has no plans to retire.

The station's program director and popular "Party Line" show host, who will turn 65 on Nov. 5, says he wants to continue working as long as possible.

"As long as they want me, I'll continue on," he says with a chuckle. "I have pretty good health, and I enjoy what I'm doing. I'll go on a few more years, if they want me."

It's hard to imagine that WJDA would not want Lind, who has served the station for about 35 years, including the last 14 as program director.

Lind, a graduate of Quincy High School and Boston University and an Army veteran of the Korean War, was hired by the station's founder, James D. Asher, as a control room engineer in 1960. He worked there for 10 years, eventually becoming a news and sports announcer, before starting a public relations agency in Newport, R.I. with a friend in 1970.

Two years later, however, Lind was back at WJDA doing announcing and remote broadcasting. Asher, who had agreed to let him return to the station, died in 1973.

Lind remembers Asher not only as a "taskmaster" and "real sharp dresser" who took his business very seriously, but also as a community-minded individual who was good to his employees.

"He gave a lot of people opportunities to get started in the business," he said.

Lind took over WJDA's morning show from Win Bettinson in 1977 and became program director when Bettinson retired in 1983. He became the host of "Party Line," which features well-known guests and call-ins from listeners, a couple of years later.

"Party Line" has provided Lind with the opportunity to meet a number of famous people, including nationally-known attorney Jerry Spence, U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, Congressman Joseph Kennedy, former Boston Celtic M.L. Carr and former Boston Bruin Derek Sanderson. (He has also met numerous other local sports heroes through a Monday night program he used to broadcast live with former Boston Red Sox pitcher Dick Radatz at Pat Flanagan's in Quincy.)

Being the host of "Party Line" has not only had its share of memorable guests but also plenty of lively exchanges with callers. Still, Lind says there was only one occasion he became so impatient with a caller that he hung up on the air.

"This woman called up complaining about the treatment she got at Quincy Hospital for a bloody nose," he recalls. "She went on for about seven or eight minutes, kept mentioning how they put these sticks up her nose, and finally I said, 'That's it!' and hung up.

"After that happened," he adds with a laugh, "I got a letter from a man addressed to the 'Ayatollah of Quincy' chastising me for hanging up on this woman, and saying he was going to call up all our advertisers and ask them to stop advertising with the station."

Most callers are perfectly polite and offer pleasant conversation, Lind says. And while he admits some people who call the station regularly can become mildly irritating, he shrugs it off, noting, "You ask these people to call up, and you have to listen to them. I'm a host, and I want people to call."

Lind also thinks "Party Line" gives listeners the chance to speak with city officials and others who are usually hard to reach because of bureaucratic red tape.

"It's an access for listeners to reach some of these people," he said.

PROGRAM DIRECTOR Roy Lind has been with WJDA for 35 years. Lind is perhaps best known at the station's popular "Party Line" program.

There also have been many memorable news events Lind has attended through his work with WJDA. Among those that stick out in his mind are the visits to Massachusetts by the Tall Ships in 1976 and 1992 and the arrival of the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Salem at the Fore River shipyard in 1994.

As for the infamous Blizzard of '78, through which WJDA went on the air and provided listeners with the latest up-to-the-minute information, Lind was one of the few WJDA employees who could not help out. The storm forced him to abandon his car on the Hingham-Weymouth line en route to the station and make his way back to his home in Scituate by soliciting several rides and walking the last four miles from Cohasset.

Lind, who was forced to remain at home for several days, said he cannot recall if his co-workers kidded him about staying out of work due to the weather.

"I don't remember if they did or not," he says with a smile, "but I think they were envious of me being home."

Now, nearly 20 years after that storm, Lind says that while there have been some changes at WJDA--including improved technology with which he admits he isn't entirely comfortable--he said he is glad he has remained with the station.

"You meet a lot of interesting people in this business," he said. "And in a way, you feel like you're helping people--you do a lot of public service stuff.

"And you can picture the listeners at home, eating their breakfast, listening to you every day, and you feel almost as if you're a member of their family. It's a nice feeling."

Lind's own family includes his wife, the former Joan Soltesz, with whom he still lives in Scituate; their daughter, Marcia Short of Duxbury; twin sons, James of Scituate and Jeffrey of Kingston; and six grandchildren.

'Listeners Feel It's Their Station'

Charles Ross And H.S. Football Go Together

CHARLES ROSS has been calling high school games for WJDA for 24 years. He also has done other sports and news announcing for the station.

By MICHAEL WHALEN

When people think WJDA, and they think sports, they naturally think Ken Coleman, the former station employee who went on to become the radio voice of the Red Sox before his retirement.

But they also think Charles Ross, the man who has been doing WJDA's play-by-play for high school football games for the past 24 years.

Ross, 47, began his career at the station as a summer replacement in May 1973 and took a full-time position when it opened up a month later. The job included news and sports announcing, production work and more.

Ross worked for WJDA full-time for 17 years before accepting a job at the National Fire Protection Association as telecommunications and marketing manager. He never broke his affiliation with the station, however, and has stayed on both as Saturday morning announcer and high school play-by-play man.

He says he is glad he has remained part of the WJDA family.

"I've worked with a lot of people at WJDA in 24 years," said Ross, who graduated from Quincy High School in 1968 and Curry College, where he studied communications, in 1972. "A lot of people that are just cornerstones of the place, some of whom have retired."

Ross, who is the grandson of the late Quincy Mayor Charles Ross, recalled how WJDA President James Asher died in 1973 about two weeks after he started working at the station and how Asher's son, Jay, something of a neophyte in the radio business, then took over as the head man.

"I've seen Jay blossom and grow as a person," he said.

He added that he has enjoyed his relationship with all of his co-workers at the station over the years, including Program Director Roy Lind, Station Manager John Nicolson, former News Director Herb Fontaine, former Station Manager Win Bettinson, former Sales Manager Ken Fallon, and others.

Ross has called hundreds of high school games over the years, mainly those involving Quincy High School and/or North Quincy High School, as well as the games of other high schools.

A couple of games stick out, he says, including North Quincy's two trips to the High School Super Bowl: a 1975 loss to Woburn and a 1992 victory over Arlington.

"Quincy (High) has been in their with a lot of great memories as well," said Ross of his alma mater. "You know, Ken Coleman once told me to make sure to broadcast the Quincy-North Quincy games (on Thanksgiving Day) in an impartial manner, so I mention North Quincy. But Quincy, like North, has had some great games and some great individual athletes as well."

Ross says he enjoys being part of a community radio station that does its best to serve its listeners.

"And it's not just Quincy, it's all of the South Shore," he said. "What's really great about WJDA is that the listeners feel it's their radio station; they feel as if they own a part of it. The smaller-market radio stations are not as plentiful as they used to be, and to have loyalty like that from the listeners for 50 years, it's just wonderful.

"I think we've been doing a really good job at WJDA, and we'll continue to do that job."

Ross and his wife, the former Helen Snow, live in Mansfield. They will celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary in October.

'Local News Very Important'

Joe Catalano Is Now The New Familiar Voice

JOE CATALANO

By MICHAEL WHALEN

WJDA News Director Joe Catalano has been a familiar voice to regular listeners of the station for the past seven years.

Catalano started at WJDA part-time in the spring of 1986 just prior to his graduation from Curry College in Milton, where he received a bachelor's degree in communications.

"At the time, I was spinning records in the afternoon and working some weekends," he recalls. "While doing that, I was also working part-time at WATD in Marshfield doing the same thing, and also working part-time at a small drug store in Dedham."

In the spring of 1987, Catalano quit all three jobs to work full-time at WBZ-AM as a production assistant. However, things didn't work out quite as planned.

"I thought it was my big break in radio, but it turned out that it broke me," he said. "After two years of doing nothing but dubbing commercials onto tape, I realized that there was no chance of going on the air at WBZ."

Leaving WBZ in the fall of 1989, Catalano returned to WJDA as a full-time employee, playing records and filling in on weekends. He said he was pleased to be able to return to on-air work and will always be grateful to WJDA President Jay Asher for allowing him to come back to the station.

The following spring, Catalano received his biggest break when he was offered the job of Herb Fontaine, who had announced his plans to retire as news director.

"I realized it was a great opportunity, but was hesitant because I lacked a news background and knew I had big shoes to fill," said Catalano. "But I seemed to settle in nicely to the job, because Herb had established a good contingent of news sources, and I developed my own.

"Now, seven years later, the job just comes naturally to me. I know who to call, and when, and for what information. And I've always loved to write, so that wasn't a problem."

He added that one of the high points of his career has been his professional relationship with Mayor James Sheets.

"It's been exciting to work with Mayor Sheets really right from the start of his successful and popular administration," he said. "I've come to realize that he is a man of vision and commitment."

Between 1992 and 1994, Catalano worked part-time playing music at the old WJIB, and then WCDJ, in addition to his work at WJDA.

"It seems that is what gives me the most gratification in this field," he said. "Although I realize news is very important, especially local South Shore news that our listeners can't get anywhere else on radio."

Catalano says he has had a great time working for WJDA, adding that he is not surprised the station has been owned by the same family for 50 years.

"I never knew Jay's father, but I realize that his mission to create a truly unique and local station for the Quincy/South Shore area is still alive and well, and I'm proud to be a part of it," he said.

What does he see for himself in the years ahead?

"I look forward to continuing my service here," said Catalano, "and as far as the future goes....Stay tuned!"

Remember Belinda?

Early listeners of WJDA will remember Belinda the Cow with fondness.

Belinda was heard mooing from time to time often during the early morning hours of WJDA when founder Jim Asher was on the air chatting and playing stirring Sousa marches.

Belinda, of course, wasn't real although some people thought she was.

She was a convincing sound effect.

scheduled at 6 a.m. that Tuesday with Fontaine and Bettinson reading news bulletins and emergency announcements. Almost all of the regular programming was cancelled.

Charles Ross was summoned in from his vacation. And, as he arrived, the station went off the air.

Everything had been going well until the abnormally high incoming tide reached the insulator of the antenna in Germantown. No one was at the transmitter to check it, but there had been "bad readings" on the dials back at the studio.

"We figured if we were ever going to be on the air again during the storm, we had better shut everything off and wait for the tide to go out," Asher recalled.

The problem was that, back at the studio, they couldn't tell when the tide had fallen below the insulator. So the staff started calling people in Germantown and asking them if they could see the transmitter and if they could tell how far the water was above the insulator.

Nobody was sure.

"Finally," said Asher, "around 2 o'clock, we got tired of sitting around so we turned on the power."

It was that "lucky shot."

WJDA was on the air until 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, two hours and 15 minutes beyond the time then authorized by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). (WJDA today broadcasts through the night.)

Back then, WJDA was allowed to stay on the air at night as long as the broadcast was limited to emergency information and there were no commercials.

"I don't know what we would have done without you...You were the only ones who kept us informed."

The staff used an open telephone line like the one on the morning Party Line program.

So when officials called with vital information they were put right on the air.

"We just gave Win the name of the person on the phone, his title and where he was calling from and Win would take him right on the air," said Asher.

When the broadcast day was over, Nicolson made it home to North Weymouth on a snowplow and Ross and Baird walked. Asher, Bettinson, Fontaine and Fallon stayed at the station overnight sleeping on couches and air mattresses.

The next morning, Nicolson came back with a couple dozen eggs and Asher scrambled them for the crew for breakfast.

The emergency broadcasts continued during Wednesday but the station was returning to normal.

WJDA, which serves an area far larger than just Quincy, for a time was probably the only significant line of communication for hard-hit places along the South Shore coast.

More than a week after the storm, the wife of Hull Selectman Simmie Hartstone called to tell Bettinson that power had been restored to another section of that beleaguered town.

"I don't know what we would've done without you," she said. "While we were without lights, you were the only ones that kept us informed."

And, to that, a lot of people throughout Quincy and the South Shore would add a grateful Amen!

THE WOLLASTON BUSINESS ASSOCIATION extends Best Wishes and Congratulations to WJDA on 50 years of great community broadcasting and continued promotion of local businesses.

WJDA: Born 6 A.M. Sept. 13, 1947

WJDA was born at exactly 6 a.m. on Sept. 13, 1947.

It was at that moment on that date that founders James D. Asher and Joseph Tobin switched the station on the air for the very first time.

Both were Weymouth residents at the time, but Asher was a Kansas boy originally.

And why did he decide to open a radio station in Quincy?

He got to know the South Shore area while serving as a warrant officer during World War II at Fort Devens. And he got to know Quincy well later working as a salesman at Remick's.

"I always liked Quincy and thought it had tremendous possibilities," he once said.

JIM ASHER

JOE TOBIN

Asher settled in Weymouth and stayed on at WJDA. Tobin left later to go to a radio station in Gloversville, N.Y.

Both are now deceased.

But WJDA, their dream come true, lives on, serving the South Shore community with distinction as a radio station--and friend.

WJDA: A Second Generation Radio Station

WJDA is a second generation radio station.

James (Jay) Asher who is president-treasurer today, is the son of founder James D. Asher.

And, you might say, he started at the bottom of the ladder.

As a 12-year-old he was emptying wastebaskets and doing other little chores at the station.

But he started to hang around the station when he was even younger and remembers the "candy-covered candies" the station gave as prizes in its early "Stump the Staff" quiz program.

Jay is a Harvard graduate, joined the Army and returned to become general manager of WJDA's sister station, WESX in Salem.

He succeeded his father at WJDA when the latter died in 1973 and became president-treasurer of the company.

Mary Johnson: Stork Club Host, Friend Of Jimmy Carter

One of the most popular programs on WJDA for many years was Mary Johnson's "Stork Club."

The births of hundreds of babies born at Quincy, South Shore and Milton hospitals were faithfully reported daily by Mary.

She also hosted another program called "Tonight on the South Shore," a calendar of events.

After working at Remick's in Quincy, she joined WJDA as a secretary in 1958 but soon found herself in front of the microphone.

She also covered political events and produced a special series of reports on Hawaii.

Mary and her husband, Russ, met Jimmy Carter in May, 1973 when he was campaigning for President. Russ was arrangements chairman for the annual South Shore Council of Churches Men's Prayer Breakfast that year and got Carter to appear as keynote speaker.

He and Mary picked Carter up at Logan Airport and brought him to the breakfast at Valle's Restaurant in Braintree.

MARY JOHNSON

They quickly became good friends and Carter later referred to them as "my first friends in Massachusetts."

"I gave him a big smooch," Mary recalled later. "I couldn't help it. He was so friendly and natural."

Mary had one fault. She was a heavy smoker and succumbed to lung cancer in November 1976.

Carter learned of Mary's illness while she was in the hospital before the election and sent her a bouquet of American beauty roses.

With them was a note: "Wishing I could be with you. You have been a sincere friend to me. Because of you and Russell we will enjoy a great Democratic victory in November."

It was signed "Love, Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter."

That victory did come.

Two of the votes were those of Russ and Mary.

Mary voted by absentee ballot from the hospital shortly before she died.

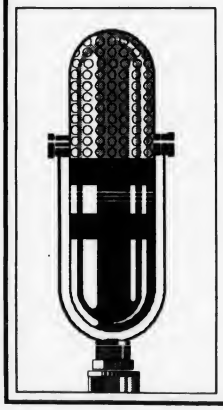
Father And Son Chief Engineers

Arthur Lane, better known as Fred, was WJDA's first chief engineer.

He was familiar to early listeners of the station as a broadcast sidekick of founder James Asher during his "Breakfast With JDA" program. Both are now deceased.

Lane's son, Doug, is following in his father's footsteps as the station's chief engineer today.

JERRY HOWARD, who was also the voice of "Slim Pickens," is shown here in 1975 checking the wind velocity, barometer and temperature readings which he would then translate into his country-style "fog on the bog" weather forecasts. He is now retired and living in New Hampshire.



EARL HANNAFIN was a longtime popular advertising salesman for WJDA. Now deceased, he was also well known as a musician and had his own dance band that played in the South Shore area.

different health program in cooperation with Quincy Community Action and the South Metro Health Council.

Mother Nature provided Bettinson with some of his most vivid memories at WJDA.

"One of the most memorable events in my years at WJDA was Blizzard of 1978 when WJDA shone was a beacon during that big storm. An earlier storm in March, 1956, occurred just after the Etrusco went aground off Scituate. The St. Patrick's Day Parade was canceled that year because of it.

Another memorable event was participating at the Quincy Sun with Roy Lind during the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for MDA. "We covered the pledge center all day giving progress reports and interviewing volunteers.

While radio has endured many changes, WJDA has survived as a locally-oriented station, Bettinson said.

"There have been many changes in the way things are done in radio: satellites, word processors, automated equipment, CD's, wireless microphones, etc. But WJDA remains on the air because it's a good organization with local people.

"My 38 years at WJDA meant much to me and my family. It was a privilege to have been known as one of the voices of the South Shore for 38 years."

What Was It?

THIS PILE OF debris used to be the comfort station in the Hancock Parking area. The long-time, but long-unused landmark, was closed a number of years ago because of vandalism and other problems. The facility was demolished this month by the city at the request of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association to get rid of a nuisance while creating room for more parking spaces.

More Training For School Bus Drivers, Monitors

By MICHAEL WHALEN

School Supt. Eugene Creedon will increase the length of training for school bus drivers and monitors following an incident during which a 4-year-old girl went undetected on a bus for nearly three hours.

Creedon said at press time the driver and monitor involved in the incident last Thursday will face disciplinary action of some sort but it has not yet been decided what kind.

The superintendent said he feels that providing an extra hour or two for both school bus drivers and monitors is necessary to ensure they fully understand the proper procedures that must be followed.

"It's my plan to have that (extra training) in order to improve the performance of those duties," he said.

The monitor did follow the mandatory procedure of walking up and down the bus aisle after each run but failed to notice the 4-year-old, he added.

Creedon said he and other school officials are investigating the matter to determine what disciplinary action should be taken. Possibilities include a letter of reprimand, suspension, and termination, he noted.

Creedon added that while he understands that supervising 40 to 50 children on a school bus can be a difficult job and that last week's incident was an accident, he was "incredulous" to hear a kindergarten student went unnoticed for three hours.

EUGENE CREEDON

He said he was happy to hear, however, that the girl was unharmed.

"I was tremendously relieved to know she seemed to be physically okay," said Creedon, who described the girl as being quiet for her age.

While the bus driver returned to work the following day, the monitor, who began the job just last Wednesday, has remained at home since the incident at her own choosing, he added.

The incident last Thursday involved 4-year-old Anna Masalin, who was finishing up her second week of kindergarten at the Point-Webster School.

School officials said Anna boarded the bus shortly before noon for the short ride to the school. When the bus arrived at Point-Webster, however, she did not get off and neither the driver nor the adult bus monitor noticed she was still sitting in the third row.

Officials said after stopping at Point-Webster, the driver went on her lunch break, taking the bus monitor to the monitor's Quincy home and then driving herself to her home in Braintree. She went inside for lunch for more than an hour

Service Will Not Be Disrupted

Major Renovations Planned For Quincy Post Office

Major renovations at the Quincy Post Office at 47 Washington St. in Quincy Center are expected to begin sometime after the beginning of the year.

The work should not cause any problems with postal service, according to Paul Lundrigan, manager of the facility.

Lundrigan said while the exact cost and timetable of the project were unknown at press time Tuesday, he is "pretty sure" the work will begin sometime in January. Postal officials were expected to meet sometime yesterday or today to discuss specifics, he said.

He noted that while the project is somewhat extensive, it should not interfere with service, which will continue uninterrupted.

"There should be no disruption in service," he said.

Lundrigan said a few of the changes that will result from the work will include:

•A remodeled, expanded lobby.

•New breakrooms and bathrooms.

•Upgraded lighting.

•A partial postal store, which will sell items of historical significance, similar to those in other Massachusetts post offices.

•A total of 500 new post office boxes, which will bring the total in the building up to 950. (Lundrigan noted that there are an additional 1,000 boxes at a satellite location elsewhere in the city.)

While all of the above are interior renovations, Lundrigan said the outside of the building also will be cleaned up. That work will probably be done through powerwashing, he added.

Lundrigan said this is the first major project of its kind at the Washington Street facility, which was built in 1908. Although an addition was built onto the back of the building in the mid-1940s, very little work has taken place in the years that have followed, he noted.

"Nothing, basically, has been done since then," he said.

Community Policing Administrator Hired

Former criminal justice consultant Kathy Bandera has been hired as administrator of Quincy's new community policing commission.

John Keenan, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, told the City Council Monday night that the mayor hired Bandera, a 37-year-old Quincy resident, earlier this month.

Keenan told councillors Bandera started the 30,000-a-year, part-time position last week. She has met with Police Chief Thomas Frane on a couple of occasions to begin organizing the commission's work, he said.

Sheets has not yet appointed the 20-member board, which will work with the Quincy Police Department in identifying trouble spots before they become sources of serious crime and disturbances.

Bandera has worked with the Norfolk County Juvenile Justice Roundtable. In April, she helped that group hold a public forum on youth violence in Quincy.

A month before that forum, Bandera made a presentation on community policing to the City Council at the request of Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

Raymondi proposed the commission shortly afterward, and the council created the board in July with the endorsement of the city's patrol officers and superior officers unions.

Council Chambers Reopen Oct. 20

The City Council Chambers at Old City Hall will reopen for business with a "new-old" look at the council's regularly-scheduled meeting Oct. 20.

Councillors have met in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex since the work began in June. The council's next meeting Oct. 6 also will be held there as the finishing touches are put on the chambers.

At the suggestion of Council President Peter Kolson, the chambers are being renovated to resemble as closely as possible how they appeared in 1888, the year Quincy officially became a city.

The project, which carries a price tag of about $230,000, is being paid for with a state grant, funding from the city's cash reserve account, and bond money, according to Kolson. City officials hope to get more money through other grants and fund-raisers, he said.

The architect for the project was John M. Sheskey and Associates of Quincy. Construction is being done cooperatively by Paul J. Rogan Co. Inc. of Braintree and the Quincy Department of Public Works, Kolson said.

Moody St. Landtaking For Marshall School Supported

A lightly-attended City Council public hearing on the proposed landtaking of a parcel of land on Moody Street in Quincy Point received nothing but support Monday night.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and two local residents spoke in favor of the landtaking while no one voiced opposition. The city must assume control of the land in order to clear the way for the opening of the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School in January.

Raymondi said the opening of the new Marshall School is among a number of "significant steps" being taken in Quincy Point, which he termed "a community on the move."

He listed the recent unveiling of Quincy 2000's Quincy Point Action Plan and the anticipated return of shipbuilding to the Fore River shipyard as being among other events that will help bring future prosperity to the neighborhood.

Also voicing support of the proposed landtaking were residents Dan Lauretto of 40 Chubbuck St. and Joe MacDonald of 68 Keating St. who serves as president of the Point-Webster Elementary School PTO.

"I know that the school will make a good neighbor," said McDonald.

The City Council will take a vote on the landtaking after it receives a recommendation from the Planning Board.

Bradley, Hospital Honored At Cancer Society Dinner

Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry Bradley and Quincy Hospital were among those honored at the American Cancer Society's recent annual Awards Dinner in Rockland.

Bradley was recognized for his contribution to the society's 1997 Relay for Life, for which various events were held throughout southeastern Massachusetts. Efforts by Relay for Life volunteers helped raised over $1.5 million statewide.

The hospital, specifically Kristen Manchester in its Public Relations Department, received a Community Service Award

Cheney Calls For Study

Possible Hotel Tax Would Pay For Salary Of New Tourism Head

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council wants the Quincy Board of Assessors to look into the feasibility of implementing a 1 percent hotel/motel tax to be used to hire a new city tourism director.

The council voted 6-2 to back the proposal by Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney on Monday night. Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill and Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott voted in opposition. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers did not attend the meeting.

Cheney's proposal calls for the Board of Assessors to do a study on the matter and report back to the City Council at a later date.

The city has not had a tourism director since the departure of Jo-An Thomas earlier this year.

Cheney said a new director will be needed to lead the city in coordinating special events related to the upcoming millennium. Such celebrations are expected to be held throughout the country.

Since there is some debate as to whether the millennium should be celebrated in the year 2000 or 2001, Cheney added, "it will be a one to two-year celebration."

He also said he has asked Mayor James Sheets to form a millennium committee to help plan for the occasion. A number of such committees are being formed in Massachusetts, Cheney said, and he has been in contact with the one in Boston.

MICHAEL CHENEY

Cheney noted that he also has spoken with Boston Mayor Thomas Menino about tying together Quincy and Boston in some capacity for the millennium events and "he was enthusiastic about it."

Cheney said a hotel/motel tax to pay for a tourism director's salary is something that should be done not only as a result of the upcoming millennium, but also because coordinating tourism in a community is a full-time job.

"Tourism is what generates the money to fill the rooms in those hotels and motels," he said. "It really requires full-time attention."

Cheney added that although the state annually distributes money to 13 regional tourism agencies in communities throughout Massachusetts--including Boston and Plymouth--Quincy does not receive any of that funding.

Thomas, who was hired by Quincy 2000--the city's public-private planning corporation--left Quincy earlier this year because of lack of funding for her position. She came to the city last year when Quincy 2000 used mitigation money obtained by Roche Bros. Supermarkets and Wal-Mart to fund her position.

Sheets has said the hiring of a new director is crucial to Quincy's efforts to attract more tourists and that any new person brought on to handle that responsibility will command an annual salary similar to what Thomas was paid, somewhere between $45,000 and $50,000.

One of the councillors who opposed Cheney's proposal, however, said after Monday night's meeting that hotels and motels should not be taxed to pay for the new position.

"I'm not a big fan of taxing," said McDermott. "We're trying to attract a hotel to the city, and I think a tax is kind of contrary to what the city's pitching."

McDermott added that while tourism should be a priority, he is unsure if hiring a director is the direction the city should take.

Cahill voiced similar sentiments.

"I don't even want to open the door on that, even though the vote was only to study the issue," he said. "I absolutely oppose any kind of hotel tax."

Cahill said he might be willing to consider such a tax to benefit improvements to the city's schools or infrastructure, but not to hire a tourism director.

He added that while he does not see the director's position as something that should be paid for with city tax dollars, it could be funded through other sources, such as Quincy 2000, business donations, or regionally through the county.

Newton Will Not Seek Recount

Former Ward 6 City Council candidate Joseph Newton has decided not to file for a recount following his narrow defeat in last week's preliminary election.

Newton finished with 386 votes, 11 behind runner-up Brian McNamee who had 397. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, the incumbent, finished with 1,097 votes.

Newton said in a previous election, he might have asked for a recount, but the machines the city purchased to count votes last year are too accurate to make a mistake of 11 votes

His decision was reenforced, he added, by the fact that there were only a handful of "blanks" tallied in the election.

Newton said he enjoyed campaigning for the Ward 6 seat and plans to do so again in two years.

Ayers and McNamee will square off in Quincy's citywide election Nov. 2.

BECOMING RATTLED?

One of the most common noises that drivers hear coming from their engines is a rattling sound that occurs upon acceleration. This noise, known as pinging, results when the mixture in the combustion chamber explodes before or after it should. If left unchecked, pinging (detonation) can lead to serious damage to the pistons. The first step to find a cure involves a check of the owner's manual to make sure that the car is using the correct octane gas. If pinging persists, the car should be checked for overheating. A faulty thermostat or loss of pressure in the cooling system can cause the engine to run so hot that it pings. Proper engine timing is also critical in preventing ping. Ping can also result from a hose or wire disconnected from an emission-control device.

HINT: The switch to a higher octane fuel should only be made when no other cure provides a fix for ping.

You Can Ride The Trains Monday

The Old Colony Railroad will officially open to commuters in Quincy and neighboring communities on Monday, Sept. 29.

Both Planning Director Richard Meade and Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets, have said the general public will be able to use the rail line, which in Quincy runs parallel to the Quincy Center MBTA Station, beginning next week.

Sheets and officials from other communities that will be opening stations will get an advance ride this Friday morning when they board the commuter rail train and head to South Station in Boston for a special ceremonial opening of the state-unded, $480 million Old Colony line.

The ceremony is being held by the state Department of Transportation and the MBTA. State and federal officials are also expected to attend the event.

The Old Colony Railroad will include two separate lines: the Plymouth/Kingston Line and the Middleborough/Lakeville Line.

The Plymouth/Kingston Line will include stops at Kingston, Halifax, Hanson, Whitman, Abington, South Weymouth, Braintree and South Station.

Stations on the Middleborough/Lakeville Line will be located at Lakeville, Bridgewater, Campello, Randolph/Holbrook, Quincy Center and South Station.

Originally, Quincy was not slated to be part of the Old Colony line, but city officials lobbied Gov. William Weld for a station.

In early 1995, a small controversy erupted when state officials announced that a station would be built in Quincy at the expense of Braintree's planned railroad stop. But that November, after meeting with officials from both communities, Weld said during a press conference in Quincy Center that both Braintree and Quincy would receive stations.

The two stations are being constructed adjacent to the existing MBTA Red Line stations in Quincy Center and Braintree.

City Has $4.4M Free Cash Surplus

The city has begun Fiscal Year 1998 with a "free cash" surplus of $4.4 million, Mayor James Sheets announced this week.

Sheets said although the fiscal year began July 1, the city did not receive official certification of the amount from the state Department of Revenue until Monday.

Last year, the city had an even larger free cash surplus: $5.7 million. Sheets, however, said he is pleased with this year's amount, noting that anything over $3 million is considered good.

The mayor said most of the money came from two sources: higher than expected collections of residential and commercial property taxes, licenses and permit fees; and a smaller number of delinquent tax payments.

The city's FY98 budget was $149.6 million, or $6.5 million more than the FY97 budget of $143.1 million.

Among the uses the mayor has planned for the money are snow removal expenditures and an after-school program for teens and youngsters. Some of it may also be used to cover a 5.6 percent water and sewer increase from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, he said.

Sheets added that he is unsure how the rest of the money will be used.

Concourse Committee Meeting Today

The Quincy Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet today (Thursday) at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Meetings are open to the public.

Four City Departments Moving To Ross Way

Because of planned renovations, the offices of four city departments currently located at the JFK Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., will move to a temporary location at 76 Ross Way on Sept. 29.

The four departments are the Health Department, Department of Weights and Measures, Rent Grievance and the Asian Affairs Office.

The temporary site is the old Sears building where the Registry of Motor Vehicles is currently located. The city offices will be located next to Hurley Insurance. The building may be entered from the front at 1585 Hancock St.

Renovations to the JFK Center are expected to take six to eight months and the departments should move back to the center by May or June. The city will inform the public about the move before the anticipated date.

The mailing address for the temporary location at 1585 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169. Telephone numbers will remain the same: Health Department, 376-1273, 1274 or 1275; Weights and Measures (Mike Shaheen), 376-1250; Rent Grievance (Jane Reikard), 376-1070; and Asian Affairs (John Chen), 376-1201.

Free Smoke Detector Program For Quincy Seniors

Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) is being planned to assist Quincy senior citizens with information about, and placement of, free smoke detectors in their homes.

Services will include a home visit to check smoke detectors, battery replacement, and installation.

The project, an extension of the city's Elder Home Repair Program provided by Beechwood on the Bay, is designed to address health/safety needs of senior homeowners who may be frail and/or mobility impaired and "at risk."

The project is co-sponsored by Beechwood, the National Fire Protection Agency, Quincy Rotary Club, City of Quincy, and the Quincy Fire Department.

Installation of smoke detectors is the primary goal of the project and information pertaining to placement and maintenance of smoke detectors is a secondary intent.

Senior service providers, clubs, community centers, churches and Quincy seniors (living in their own homes) to call if they, or any senior they know:

- Has less than three smoke detectors.
- Has detectors that need checking, repair or replacing.
- Has any questions about smoke detectors.
- Is interested in receiving fire safety information.

Names, addresses and phone numbers should be sent to: Beechwood on the Bay, Project SAFE, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy, MA 02171. For more information, call 471-5712.

Recounts Thing Of The Past?

Will recounts become a thing of the past in Quincy politics?

Joseph Newton's decision not to seek one in last week's preliminary election could be a sign that recounts may already be a political endangered species.

Newton lost the second Ward 6 council nomination by a scant 11 votes to Brian McNamee who will face incumbent Bruce Ayers in November.

But despite that close margin, Newton opted to pass-up a recount he would have had the right to request.

There were two apparent good reasons not to ask for a recount:

The city's new virtual error-proof voting machines, for one. And the few blanks cast in Ward 6, for the other.

SHEA

"With the new optical scan voting machines the chance of errors is very slim," says City Clerk Joseph Shea.

He notes that if someone marks the ballot wrong such as voting for two candidates when they should have voted for one, the machine spits it out.

And the voter gets a second chance to do it right.

"In the Ward 6 case last week there were also very few blanks," says Shea. "In fact, there were only nine. Those who turned out to vote knew who they were going to vote for and voted for him."

Recounts were quite common in close elections in the days of paper ballots and tabulation by hand.

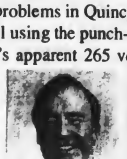
One of the city's most famous recounts during that period was in the 1975 mayoral election face-off between incumbent Walter Hannon and challenger Joseph LaRaia.

HANNON

LaRAIA

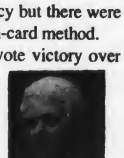
Hannon went home election night the winner by 134 votes. But LaRaia filed for a recount which showed him the actual winner by 483 votes.

The punch-card voting system that came in during Mayor Frank McCauley's administration at the request of then City Clerk John Gillis was a big improvement over paper ballots. It took Quincy out of the dark ages for elections.



But problems and challenges became common when the punch-cards weren't properly punched causing tabulation questions and problems.

Shea decided it was time for the next step forward and asked Mayor James Sheets to approve the purchase of the opt scan voting system which is not only much more accurate but faster counting, too.



Shea's decision to make the change proved a wise one in last year's controversial 10th Congressional District Democratic primary.

There were no problems in Quincy but there were in communities still using the punch-card method.

Philip Johnston's apparent 265 vote victory over William Delahunt shrunk to 175 in recounts in those punch-card communities. And then it all wound up in court with a judge declaring Delahunt the winner by 108 votes.

JOHNSTON

DELAHUNT

One of the recount towns, Weymouth, has since joined Quincy with opt scan machines.

By the way, there is room on the opt scan ballots for write-in votes. In Ward 6 last week, Park Dept. Executive Director Tom Koch got one as did David McGillicuddy who is running for the city council at-large. And on one ballot, someone wrote in: "None of the above." (candidates)

Last week's election which had a light voter turnout cost about $30,000, estimates Shea.

A good part of the pricetag is for the ballots. There has to be a ballot printed for every registered voter.

Last week's preliminary election was in Wards 1, 3 and 6 only. They have a combined total of 24,724 registered voters. But only 3,673 of them went to the polls. Which means 21,051 stayed home.

Biggest turnout was in Ward 6 with 1,880 of its 8,014 registered voting. In Ward 1, 991 out of 8,459 voted and in Ward 3, 802 out of 8,251.

At the moment there are 50,517 registered voters in the city. Shea has to have that number printed for the Nov. 4 final election---just in case.

He hopes a lot more ballots will be used then than in last week's preliminary election.

Founded in 1920, Guay's became Quincy's largest bakery until it closed several years ago. The main store was at 1455 Hancock Street where in 1929 they built a new building that is now the site of the Tae Kwon-Do Institute. At that time, as shown on the truck, they also has stores in Wollaston and Norfolk Downs. By 1940, they had stores in Nantasket, Allerton and Scituate. Hingham and two in Dorchester. If you look at their old building in Quincy Center, you can still see the name Guay's at the top.

The Republican Party Is Unified

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The election of 1998 has the potential to remove the stigma attached to the Republican Party in the State of Massachusetts. For the first time in recent memory many of the key positions are held by Republicans. The GOP in this state has an opportunity to turn around its image and position of power.

Former Gov. Weld went to the nation's capital to fight not only for an ambassadorship but also the future spirit of what the Republican message will be. Many have criticized Weld for not appointing more Republicans to positions within the state. The criticism is unfair. Many very important positions were given to qualified Republicans, i.e. sheriffs and district attorneys. Even current Gov. Cellucci got to his position because Bill Weld resigned to fight for a position he deserves.

The Reformation of the GOP could not be an overnight event. It has taken almost eight years for voters of this state to see that Republicans could run this state effectively. The leadership and groundwork laid by former Gov. Weld put this unprecedented change in motion. It is up to the current Republicans in power to continue to show the voters that as a political organization, the GOP leadership was not a flash in the pan but a true movement.

The media, over the next year and several months, must also acknowledge this trend. Too often editors and reporters have seen the Massachusetts GOP as a splintered faction that is caught up in petty rivalry. What has escaped all the editorials is that right now, there are many people taking pride in being a Republican in this state. As a party they are positioning themselves for a good fight in the impending elections. There are strong sentiments of pride.

If the newspapers and their editors would bother to read between the lines of which candidate is better liked before a primary and saw what is really happening, they would see the Republican Party is actually unified and looking forward to election day.

State officials such as Gov. Cellucci, Sheriff Flood and District Attorney Jeff Locke have an opportunity that has been offered to other people in their respective positions: to breathe life into the Republican Party in the State of Massachusetts.

When election day arrives and people go to the polls, one thing should hopefully enter their minds: not if there is an (R) or a (D) after a candidate's name, but who has performed up to their expectations of those positions.

Dealing With 'End Of Life' Issues

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to reply to the article entitled, "Each of Us Can Do Something" which appeared in the Aug. 21 issue of The Quincy Sun.

Thank you, Mrs. Jan Levitsky, for attempting to shed some light on some of the questions raised in my Letter to the Editor which appeared earlier last month entitled, "The Suffering of the Elderly." Mrs. Levitsky writes with great eloquence and bravery about human suffering, about which she knows only too well, addressing her concerns to those individuals who deal with end of life issues.

Cancer is a terrible disease with no cure. After the customary treatments which may include radiation and chemotherapy by prescription, a patient may be told that all conventional treatments have failed to halt the spread of the disease. After all, conventional medicine can only do so much. It is then that a patient is sent home to die, and the twin nostrums of pain management and palliative hospice care come into play.

The suffering of those in pain from a wasting disease can be lessened and hope dies hard as the affected individual struggles to maintain his or her dignity and composure in the face of such an illness and as he or she learns to cope with more and more limited options for health.

Their cry is "Don't cast us off in our old age!" Stress abounds for the members of the family of the affected individual too as they become consumed with endless chores associated with nursing care.

No one knows which hour is the last hour of life but as we approach the end of life, we must come to terms with the overwhelming spiritual and emotional issues which arise from such a state in order to be at peace with our fate.

Thank you to those helpful individuals so accurately portrayed in Mrs. Levitsky's article who take the time to help those who are struggling and who are in their hour of need.

Can a caring heart be an appropriate prescription for a wasting disease and a terminal illness? To quote from Dylan Thomas: "Do not go gentle into that good night. Rage, rage, against the dying of the light!"

Granite House Seeks Volunteers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Granite House, a long-term residential and educational treatment facility for adolescents located in Quincy, is seeking volunteers for the upcoming year.

We are seeking volunteers to help prepare lunch and dinner meals for our residents and staff. These volunteer positions would involve working with our residents and teaching our residents life skills, while helping to build self-esteem and develop a positive sense of accomplishment.

A background check on all our volunteers is required by The Massachusetts Office For Children.

Our current volunteers find their experience at Granite House enriching and rewarding. If you have any interest, please call me at 479-4043.

1922
75 Years Ago

The manufacturers' met in their rooms on Franklin St. while the union met at Malnuti Hall.

The compromise plan was the result of an earlier meeting at city hall that was led by Rev. William Ayers, the mayor's chairman of the city's unemployment committee.

Basically, the union's three demands were: a minimum wage of one dollar a day, recognition of the union by the manufacturers and no discrimination of granite stone, no matter where it was quarried.

ONE HUNDRED APPLY FOR AUTO LICENSES

One hundred persons applied for a license to operate an automobile, at the offices of Alfred LaBreque in the Adams Building. Examinations were recently shifted from the Chamber of Commerce building to the Adams Building.

One of those successful on his first try was Rev. Leander Hokenson, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran Church. Rev. Hokenson, has purchased his Oakland sedan from T.A. Winsloe of the Wollaston Center garage.

ENC CEREMONIES OPEN SCHOOL YEAR

With over 100 students enrolled for the new school year, Eastern Nazarene College predicted 1922 would be the best in the school's history.

George Coleman, president of Babson Institute, was the principal speaker, with president F.J. Shields in charge of the program. Rev. E.E. Angell offered the prayer.

Lisa's Dance Studio Celebrates 10 Years In Quincy

Photograph by FineLight Photography

The Students of Lisa's Dance Studio recently celebrated Ten Years in Quincy at their Annual Recital. The Ten Year Anniversary Performance was held at Weymouth Jr. High School and featured Dancers from Quincy and the surrounding South Shore Area.

Over the years Lisa's students have competed in numerous nationally recognized professional dance competitions. Lisa's Dance Teams have been comprised of all ages and have competed and won outstanding awards in all Dance Subjects... Ballet, Tap, Jazz, Streetdance, Video-Jazz, Lyrical Jazz, and Modern Jazz. They have to their credit numerous First and Second Place Trophies, numerous Gold and Silver medals, along with Special Judges Awards and Overall High Score Awards. As well as competing regionally and nationally, Lisa's Dancers have performed at such events as The First Night Celebration in Quincy, The Quincy Sidewalk Sale, the "Festival of Hope" on the Boston Common, and as opening act for The New Kids On The Block Convention, and Perfect Gentlemen.

The owner and Director of the Dance Studio, Lisa V. Hoover, started dancing when she was four years old. She began assistant teaching at the age of eleven, and has since been teaching, performing, and choreographing. Prior to opening a Dance Studio, Lisa worked as a professional dancer and model. She has performed in numerous videos and shows including opening act for Tom Jones, Studio 54, and the Boston Emmy Awards. She has appeared in commercials, television shows, and numerous fashion shows. In the early 90's Lisa worked in the Music Industry as a choreographer, performer, manager, and talent scout. It was her work with young recording artists that inspired her to start the vocal groups within her dance studio. The vocal groups Lisa has created within the Dance Studio over the years are: Sweet Perfection, Hearts Desire, Girls United, In Sync, Modern Reality, Something Hype, Beantown Posse, and The Funky Crew. All the vocal groups were professionally recorded and their performances won numerous awards.

Lisa's Dance Studio provides instruction for ages 2 through 17. She and the Faculty teach Toddler Dance (age 2), Pre-school Dance (ages 3&4), Kinderdance (ages 5&6), and Ballet, Tap, Jazz, Streetdance, Video Jazz, Lyrical Jazz, Modern Jazz, Acrobatics, and vocal groups for ages 7 through 17. They teach the basic fundamentals of dance as well as today's contemporary styles.

The Dance Studio is conveniently located at 77A Parkingway in Quincy, next to Pat Flanagan's Restaurant. For information on enrollment, please call Lisa at 471-5678.

Hospital To Co-Coordinate Cancer Society Walk-A-Thon

Quincy Hospital has been chosen as co-coordinator for the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society's "Making Strides Against Breast Cancer" walk-a-thon.

The annual five-mile walk, which will take place Sunday, Oct. 5 on the Charles River Esplanade in Boston, is designed to raise funds to help fight breast cancer in Massachusetts.

As co-coordinator of the event, the hospital acts as a resource center for people interested in participating or sponsoring walkers. The hospital is providing pledge sheets, buttons and all registration materials.

For those signing up at the hospital by Friday, free round-trip bus transportation will be provided by the City of Quincy. Registration will take place at the buses in front of Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. Buses will department for the walk as they become full.

Funds raised through Making Strides Against Breast Cancer will support scientific research on the causes of breast cancer and ways to prevent it, "Reach to Recovery," a one-to-one support program for women with breast cancer; support for legislation on mammography quality standards, insurance coverage, and other issues; and educational efforts. It also supports free mammograms for low-income and uninsured women through the Neighborhood Breast Cancer Screening Program.

To register or for more information, call 376-4020.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT BUNIONS

Bunions - hose deformities of the inner side of the foot near the big toe joint - can be among the most distressing of foot problems, partly because people tend to think that there is nothing they can do about them. Bunions develop due to weaknesses in bone structure, and are often hereditary. However, while it is true that bunions can develop into painful problems, there are a number of highly effective treatment options. If a bunion deformity is diagnosed early on, the cause and symptoms may be controlled through such measures as exercise, footwear, prescription orthotics, and anti-inflammatory medication. If the condition worsens, a variety of surgical options involving the bones and tendons is available.

P.S. Bunions are most common ' among older adults, but they can develop at any age, even during childhood.

Bunions can be quite uncomfortable. When diagnosed by a podiatrist however, the remedies may be relatively simple. We offer complete foot care, using all the very latest procedures and medications that are available. Make an appointment soon at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300). Our offices accepts most health insurance, and we are members of many HMOs and PPOs.

By LIAM FITZGERALD

B Natural, a day spa and cosmetics salon located at Suite 104 in President's Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center, is the one stop to make for all your personal beauty care needs.

Whether its a full body massage, a facial, a manicure or pedicure that you're interested in, or the spa's full line of cosmetics and skin care products, B Natural has it all.

"This is what we wanted, an upscale salon in Quincy, so people don't have to go to more than one place," said Beverly Feldman, who owns B-Natural along with Barbara Savage and Kim Foulsham. "We know people don't have time to run around to different places, so we provide it all right here for you: a total package of skin care for a healthy body and mind."

The trio of owners, all of whom have over a decade of experience in the field, worked together at a former South Shore Plaza salon and decided to venture into the business themselves.

"We joined forces to bring you the very best in service and individual beauty care," said Feldman. "We've been here six months and we like the convenient, cozy atmosphere.

"We love the size of it, because it gives us the room to offer a number of different services. These nicer facilities help us pamper our clients in a personal manner."

That close attention paid to each client is what Feldman believes sets B Natural apart from the numerous other spas and salons which have popped up in recent years.

"I feel we're unique because we concentrate on the individual needs of the clients," she said. "We never rush them, and they're always taken on time so they're not waiting around.

"We do all this because we want their experience to be great, from the time they come in until they leave. We like to see people go away with a smile and tell their friends about us. That's the best advertising in the world--word of mouth."

Feldman and her staff (all South Shore residents) would also like to get the word out to their clients from the South Shore Plaza salon who are unsure of their present location.

"We'd love to familiarize previous clients who don't know where we are, since we would like to appeal to those loyal people," she said. "If you're missing us and want to find us, here we are. We're also interested in serving new customers in the Quincy, Milton and Braintree areas."

B Natural carries an extensive line of retail products, including makeup, shampoo, and skin care products.

"We carry all the popular products, including Joico, Aveda, Paul Mitchell, Biolage, and Back To Basics," said Feldman. "We also have aroma therapy products and our own specialized skin care and makeup products. We do welcome men, too, and we carry a men's product line, American Crew."

They also specialize in bridal spa packages, offer gift certificates and will create a makeup gift basket of your choice.

"We're always looking for current methods and products to supply our customers," said Feldman," since there's so much emphasis put on beauty care these days.

"We all want and have to look our best, especially in the workplace, where first impressions are very important. People want to look and feel great, and this place is a sanctuary for them. We all get stressed, and this is a wonderful alternative. You feel so much better when you leave."

Among the items B Natural utilizes to relieve stress and improve people's well-being is a stress-release massage chair.

"You sit in this chair for 15 minutes and it's like a 30-minute massage on the table," said Savage. "People come in during their lunch hour for a short time and go back to work feeling relieved and relaxed. And that's just one of the pieces of state-of-the-art equipment we have at our disposal."

Also, B-Natural has a European spa pedicure system, complete with a whirlpool tub for the feet and a separate motorized massage chair.

For those interested in a full-body massage by either of B-Natural's massage therapists, Amy and Marie, a separate, private room is available.

"Additionally, we have a room for facials and offer different types of facials: anti-aging, acne problems, glycolic treatments, all to aid in promoting healthy-looking skin," said Feldman.

"We have a makeup and skin product area where you can take your time looking through our product line. You can also get a free makeup consultation and/or skin care consultation."

Recent additions to the staff include Jill and Billy, both of whom were previously employed by Patricia & Co. in East Milton Square.

The business also has a psychic, Marilyn, who is available upon request.

Continuing its quest to help people live better and healthier lives, B Natural is sponsoring a Breast Cancer Marathon week of events to benefit Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. Proceeds from the marathon, which will be held Monday, Sept. 29 through Saturday, Oct. 4, will be contributed to the BreastCare Center Research Fund at Beth Israel.

The climax of the week will be a cocktail party Oct. 4 at 7 p.m. at the Galleria at Presidents Place. Tickets are $25 each and can be purchased at B Natural.

There are a number of ways to participate: be a pledge form coordinator, be a sponsor, or come in for any service and participate in the marathon. Also, a portion of any service, retail, or gift certificate purchase will be donated towards the fight against breast cancer.

A special gift basket will be raffled off each day of the marathon. Validated parking will be available at B Natural's private parking garage.

B Natural is open Monday through Saturday, with walk-in service and appointments available. The phone number is 328-1101. For the convenience of their customers, B Natural validates parking for up to two hours.

"Our busiest times are at noon and after work," said Feldman, "so we're open extensive hours, including early in the morning on weekdays."

Summarizing B Natural's primary objective, Savage said, "We enjoy making people feel good. When you leave here, you'll feel like a million dollars."

Club Loses License 14 Days For Selling Liquor To Minors

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

For the first time in more than 40 years, the Adams Heights Men's Club has lost its license for 14 days for selling alcohol to minors and to an intoxicated person.

The closing includes the function hall and the member's lounge.

The action and unanimous vote was taken Tuesday by the Quincy License Board following testimony by Sgt. Robert Perchard, liquor inspector.

Perchard told the board that on Aug. 23, at a routine inspection, he found seven persons underage drinking either mixed drinks or beer. Three of those persons, ages 17, 19 and 20 have had their driver's licenses suspended. The event was a Jack & Jill shower.

Perchard also told the board that when he asked for the rental agreement for the evening, the person was uncooperative, and the only document shown to him was a piece of paper with a name scribbled on top.

Police Chief Thomas Frane made the recommendation to suspend the license for 14 days instead of the usual 21 days (three days for each person in violation) because of the club's "good record."

Frane said the violations were "clearly offensive" and that under no circumstances can anyone be allowed to drink underage. He said "real horrible results could've happened" and then the first question a judge would ask if an accident occurred would be "where was the last place you drank?"

Saying his message was "loud and clear," Frane said even though bartender Joseph Mula and others working on the floor of the club had "all the training," someone was buying drinks and bringing them to the table.

Frane said his corrective action was made by serious concerns involving underage drinking and the consequences, and added he had "no ax to grind" with the club.

The club's attorney Christopher Ryan questioned Perchard about the violations and then stressed to the license board that the club's good record" should allow them a "reprimand" instead.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman called the club a "very good institution," but said bartenders usually know phony ID's and underage drinking is responsible for many fatal accidents and maiming persons for life.

Chairman Joseph Shea, the club should be "more diligent about rental agreements." He added that the club could appeal to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission, and gave them until Friday to set the dates for the closing.

Fallon Ambulance Opening Two Quincy Offices

Fallon Ambulance Service is opening two offices in Quincy: at 83 Penn St. and 2 Hancock St.

The new locations for the 61-year-old ambulance company are designed to provide immediate emergency medical transportation support for Quincy residents and the facilities the company serves.

Fallon Ambulance was recently awarded a three-year contract to provide 911 municipal and ambulance services for Quincy.

The Hancock St. location, which is slated to open this week, covers 6,000 square feet, holds 20 ambulances, two Advanced Life Support (ALS) and 18 Basic Life Support (BLS), and will house approximately 40 employees.

The Penn St. location, which has already opened for business, is 3,500 square feet in size and houses five ambulances (one ALS and the balance BLS) and 10 employees. Both facilities are staffed 24 hours a day.

Peter Racicot, vice president of marketing for Fallon Ambulance, said the company will schedule a formal groundbreaking for the facilities in the fall.

"We are delighted to be a part of the Quincy community," he said. "We understand that our service is one most people hope they never need. However, there is much more to Fallon than medical transportation, and we encourage our Quincy neighbors to stop by the facilities, say hello and get to know us."

Fallon currently provides 911 service for Milton and backup service for Randolph and Boston. The company is no stranger to Quincy, having been involved in a number of community outreach programs that benefit local residents. One is the partnership with the Charles A. Bernazzani Elementary School in Quincy, where Fallon representatives work with students to teach them about emergency medical care through ambulance tours, instruction in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), and field trips to ambulance headquarters.

Fallon Ambulance also participates in the QUILL (Quincy Independent Living and Learning) program, a non-profit organization that assists adults with developmental disabilities.

Additionally, the company provides free airport-to-hospital transportation for children who have been flown to Boston for medical treatment under the American Airlines "Miles for Kids" program, and this year launched a "Night Safety" program in conjunction with Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week.

Fallon Ambulance Service was founded 60 years ago by James R. Fallon Sr. and remains a family owned and operated business. The founder's son, James R. (Ray) Fallon Jr., and five of his children, are all an integral part of the company's operation. Fallon Ambulance employs 350 personnel, including 80 paramedics and 230 EMT's, and operates 75 vehicles.

In addition to Quincy, the company provides 911 service to Milton and primary backup to Boston and Randolph, as well as medical transportation for a number of nursing homes, hospitals and HMOs throughout Greater Boston. The firm maintains headquarters at 95 Eliot St., Milton, and operates satellite offices in Weymouth and Cambridge.

For additional information about Fallon Ambulance Services, call Racicot at 698-0215.

Proper Home Insulation Makes a World of Difference

News USA

(NU) - Many consumers already understand the value of proper home insulation. The prospect of watching their utility bills decrease is usually enough incentive to invest time and money in an energy-efficient home.

But the benefits of insulation go far beyond dollars and cents for home owners. From an environmental perspective, good insulation can make a global difference.

We've all heard about the effects of global climate change, but do we really understand the potential threat to our environment — and what we can do to help?

Global warming can be caused by a process called the "greenhouse effect." Like sun shining on the glass windows of a greenhouse, warming it inside, reflected heat can become trapped in earth's atmosphere. The main culprit is high levels of carbon dioxide — a naturally occurring gas that also is produced by such human activities as burning fossil fuels.

The more carbon dioxide there is in the air, the more heat is trapped and the higher the earth's surface temperature becomes.

How can you help? By reducing energy consumption — including the heating and cooling of your home.

One of the easiest, most economical solutions to energy efficiency is insulation. It helps prevent the passage of heat through building structures — in during warm weather and out during cold weather.

Nationwide, homes with quality insulation could reduce energy output by about 50 percent.

Proper insulation also provides other benefits — personal comfort, fire protection and better control of sound, pests and moisture.

That's why a leading manufacturer of insulation foam, Convenience Products, has invested 15 years of extensive research and development in polyurethane foam technology. Those advances have led to a line of easy-to-use products, Touch 'n Foam Insulating Sealants.

Realizing that the best ways to prevent global climate change are education and advanced insulation technology, the company is offering consumers a chance to make a real difference around the home with their Air Infiltration Audit Sheet.

The audit can help you rate your home's insulation needs. It provides descriptive aids to help you detect air infiltration in such areas as windows and doors, walls and electrical outlets, heating and cooling systems, pipes and vents.

To get a free Air Infiltration Audit Sheet, or for more information on insulating sealants, call 1-800-325-6180 or write to Convenience Products, Attn. Customer Service, 866 Horan Drive, Fenton, MO 63026.

Did You Know?

(NU) - The typically insulated two-story house loses 38 percent of its heat through cracks in walls, windows and doors, according to a survey conducted by Dow Chemical. Other major sources of heat loss include basement walls (20 percent), frame walls (17 percent) and windows (16 percent).

Need An Appraisal? Call A Qualified Pro

(NU) - Appraisals come in various shapes and sizes, for all types of property. And just as with buying a car, the first step is to narrow down the field.

What kind of property are you having appraised? How will the appraisal be used?

Once you've determined your needs, you can start looking for a qualified appraiser.

Be prepared to describe your needs. A reputable appraiser will advise you of the details and further implications, and will refer you to someone else if they aren't qualified to meet your needs.

Find out if the appraiser has a designation from a major appraisal organization, such as the American Society of Appraisers (ASA). Such designations are evidence of competence and ethical practices.

Designated professional appraisers' fees are competitive, especially considering that reputable and highly qualified appraisers are normally more efficient within their area of expertise.

A less qualified appraiser may take shortcuts with possible detrimental consequences for you.

To locate designated appraisers in your area, call ASA at 1-800-ASA-VALU (1-800-272-8258), or visit ASA's Web site at www.appraisers.org.

McGillicuddy: 'Sound Solutions' Needed To Solve City's Problems

David McGillicuddy, candidate for city councillor-at-large, said at a recent fund-raising event that "sound solutions" are needed to solve Quincy's problems.

McGillicuddy said "new blood" must be added to the City Council in order to provide the city with true progress.

"We need to stop looking to the same people for solutions they don't have," he said. "We cannot expect real progress from recycled politicians. Quincy needs to elect new leaders who will look to the future. People with real experience and real answers. I believe those solutions exist within the community."

McGillicuddy said the major concerns he will address include public education, the revitalization of the Fore River shipyard, the completion of the Quincy Center Concourse and the effective management of Quincy's real estate development.

He also stressed the need to examine the real roots of petty crime within Quincy.

"Theft, vandalism and graffiti are caused by our youth who have too much time on their hands," he said. I have dealt with these issues, first hand, throughout the state organizing programs like National Night Out, Boston Against Drugs and youth peer leader groups. I pledge to you that I will work within our community to give our kids places to go and prevent these crimes before they happen."

McGillicuddy also promised to be a dedicated, full-time councillor.

"I will be out in every neighborhood of this city listening to the concerns of everyone, from our seniors to our school children," he said. "Working together with the people of Quincy, we will show how proud we are of the city in which we live, while bringing the changes you demand."

McGillicuddy is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts with a bachelor's degree in community planning and management. He lives with his wife Linda, with whom he has three children, at 88 Elmwood Ave.

McNamee Seeks Ward 6 Debates

The Committee to Elect Brian McNamee has sent registered letters to five community groups requesting they sponsor a series of debates between McNamee and Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers.

McNamee said this is the second time the groups have been approached by the committee. Prior requests to sponsor a debate before the recent Ward 6 preliminary election were all repeatedly declined, and the one debate scheduled by the Atlantic Neighborhood Center was canceled due to a scheduling conflict cited by the incumbent, he said.

The registered letters were mailed to the Squantum Community Association, Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Beechwood on the Bay, Quincy Citizens Association and Wollaston Park Association.

McNamee hopes to have the series of debates scheduled before the Nov. 2 city election.

Two Special Education Workshops At NQHS

The Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education will participate in two workshops to be presented by the Federation for Children with Special Needs.

The workshops will be held Tuesday, Sept. 30 and Tuesday, Oct. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St.

Raiders Host Falmouth Friday

NQ's Effort Not Lacking In Loss To Stoughton

FOOTBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Despite the 14-6 loss to Stoughton in the season opener last Friday night, North Quincy High School head football coach Ken McPhee had nothing but adulation for the Red Raiders' never-say-die attitude.

"I told the kids after the game, 'I've never been more of proud of a team in a loss than I am tonight,'" he said. "They just left it all on the field and never quit. Losing the game was tough, but I could not question the determination and desire our players showed."

Looking to bounce back and claim their first victory, the Red Raiders (0-1) host Old Colony League opponent Falmouth (0-2) Friday night at 7 at the Stadium. Falmouth was shut out by OCL titan Bridgewater-Raynham, 25-0, last Saturday.

Last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium, the Red Raiders were victimized by Stoughton senior running back Paul McCarthy, who scored both of his team's touchdowns--one an eight-yard run, the other a 60-yard interception return with under a minute to play which iced the game for the visitors.

The Red Raiders had the ball in Stoughton territory four times in the final four minutes, including three times inside the 20-yard line, but managed just one touchdown--a five-yard scoring pass from junior quarterback Chris Bregoli to junior tight end Frank McNamara with 48 seconds to play.

The score trimmed Stoughton's lead to 7-6, and North opted to go for two and the lead. Senior fullback Mike Powers, who had a strong overall game, took the hand-off but was stopped short of the goal line.

"Mike had a whale of a game," said McPhee. "Along with two interceptions, he had three knockdowns, was in on about seven or eight tackles and had about 75 yards of offense. He played out of his sneakers."

North senior Brian Linskey recovered the ensuing onside kick, providing the home squad with one last shot at winning the game. Two plays later, Stoughton's McCarthy raced to the end zone with an interception return that all but dashed the Raiders' hopes.

With 18 seconds remaining, North brought the ensuing kickoff out to its own 40. Starting his first varsity game, Bregoli connected with senior wide receiver Mark Stanton on a 48-yard pass to Stoughton's 12. With time running out, Bregoli's final pass sailed towards the end zone but fell incomplete as a number of receivers and defenders battled for the ball.

Neither squad mustered much offense in the first half until McCarthy capped a 12-play, 70-yard drive with an eight-yard touchdown run in the second quarter.

What impressed McPhee was the performances of senior defensive lineman Mike Douglas, back after missing a year due to injury, and senior center Jim Callahan, starting his first varsity game.

"Douglas played tremendous football and Callahan, who moved over from tackle, played a great game for us," he said. "You can't ask for a better effort from those guys. I was really pleased with how strong they played."

Another highlight McPhee noted was the overall play of North's defense, which limited Stoughton to just seven points.

"I thought the defense played great; they really stepped up and made it tough for Stoughton to get much going," he said. "A lot of the credit goes to Sean Glennon, our defensive coordinator. He got this young group ready and they'll just get better and better."

Said Glennon: "We have a lot of new guys starting, with just four starters back, but they all looked like veterans tonight. I think they're going to be a defense to be reckoned with in the very near future."

Among the standouts Glennon singled out were the defensive tackles, senior captains Kevin Bowes and Brian Wells, along with Linskey, Douglas, Powers and senior cornerback Manny Vasquez.

"Bowes and Wells are tremendous players; they never come off the field," said Glennon. "Linskey's an intense player and Douglas had an unbelievable game. Powers is as hard a hitter as I've seen here and Vasquez was a blanket at the corner.

"We don't have a big defense, but it's a quick, intense, hard-hitting group that just comes after it every play. They're a great group to coach, because the effort is never lacking, not for even one play."

North Quincy Notebook:

Roaming the North Quincy sidelines, keeping track of every play, was none other than Pete Zoia. captain of the 1935 Red Raider squad.

Zoia, who turns 80 years old Oct. 13, has been a lifelong North Quincy supporter whose presence is much appreciated by the North coaching staff and the players.

"He does all he can, and it's great to have him on the sidelines, rooting us on," said McPhee. "He's such an inspiring figure; all the kids love him."

Unbeaten Presidents Face Stiffest Test Saturday At B-R

By LIAM FITZGERALD

If the Quincy High School football team is to defeat perennial powerhouse Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday (1:30 p.m. at B-R), the Presidents cannot allow history to repeat itself.

The Trojans blanked the Presidents, 28-0, in last season's meeting, utilizing a powerful ground attack that accumulated 240 yards. Junior running back Doug Bessette (14 carries, 101 yards, one TD) and senior fullback Sean Lennon (five carries, 86 yards, two TD's), who carried the bulk of the load for B-R, are back for another season.

"They have some talented backs; Bessette is very good and their quarterback (senior Mark Nixon) played well," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella. "That winning attitude sets them apart. They've done it before; they know what it takes to win."

The Trojans, coming off a Division 1A Super Bowl appearance in 1996, lost their season opener but bounced back to trounce Falmouth, 25-0, last Saturday. In the win, Bessette scored on a 14-yard run and had 10 tackles, two sacks, and a safety.

Chella attended the B-R/Falmouth game and offered these observations:

"Falmouth played better in the first half, but B-R came out determined in the second half to win the game, and they did," he said. "They raised the level of their intensity, which is what we have to do when we play them."

"This is a big game, and I feel we have a good opportunity to beat them. The kids are looking forward to it; their confidence level is up. If we execute and make the plays, we'll come home happy. I think we have a team that can do that."

Chella is confident that the Presidents defense will hold up its end of the bargain and contain B-R's formidable backfield--for the most part.

"I think we'll stop them enough on defense," he said. "They key to the game will be how well our offense moves the ball. We need to put points on the board, sustain some long drives and keep the ball out of Bessette's hands."

The Presidents (2-0) geared up for this week's battle by handing host Dennis-Yarmouth a 33-6 defeat last Friday night. Senior tailback Shaun Faherty, who sprained his knee in the first half and did not return, still rushed for 140 yards and two touchdowns to spark the Quincy offense.

"He had a fantastic game," said Chella. "The kid can flat out run. It's nice to have that type of weapon in our arsenal."

Before the half ended, Faherty injured his knee on a running play and sat out the second half for precautionary measures. Chella said Faherty should be ready to play Saturday.

"I talked to him Sunday and his knee was not as sore as it was the day before," said Chella. "We're just going to ice it down and take it easy. I'm sure he'll be ready for the game."

Faherty's first score, an eight-yard jaunt, capped a 65-yard drive and broke a scoreless tie. The extra point by senior Tim Lewis gave Quincy an early 7-0 lead.

Senior fullback Steven Maze added to the Presidents' lead with the first of his two touchdowns runs late in the opening quarter. Lewis followed with the point after and Quincy led, 14-0.

With six minutes left in the half, the Presidents began to pull away as Faherty scored on a one-yard plunge, followed by a Lewis extra point. Senior quarterback Kevin Moore pushed Quincy's lead to 27-0, keeping the ball and scampering 26 yards for a touchdown.

In the second half, Maze and junior tailback Nathan DoRosario picked up the slack for Faherty. An 11-yard run by DoRosario led to Maze's second score, a seven-yard run which gave Quincy a 33-0 advantage.

"We have good depth at running back," said Chella. "I feel confident DoRosario can run the ball and Maze did a great job, too. He gained about 50 yards and also played a solid game at linebacker.

"He was in on quite a few tackles and was one of the reasons D-Y had little success running at the middle of our line."

Quincy's coach was impressed with the performance of the entire defense and credited defensive coordinator

YOUTH FOOTBALL

Apaches, Elks Undefeated; Manets Pick Up First Win

The second week of Quincy Youth Football League action saw the North Quincy Apaches remain undefeated, the West Quincy Elks pull out another squeaker and the Houghs Neck Manets bounce back from an opening-game defeat.

The Apaches improved to 2-0 with a 26-0 victory over the Squantum Storm (1-1). Apaches running back Pat Bregoli opened the scoring early on with a 35-yard touchdown run. On their next possession, Apaches quarterback Charlie Sorrento connected with Joe Fitzpatrick on a 20-yard touchdown pass. Both conversion attempts failed and the Apaches held a 12-0 lead.

Midway through the second, the Storm offense gained momentum and drove deep into Apaches' territory, but the Apaches dug in and held off the first and goal threat. After an Apache drive stalled, the Storm took over and began driving, only to be thwarted by an interception by Ryan Farnham, who returned the ball 60 yards to the Storm 25.

In the second half, Apache linebacker Joe Burke recovered a fumble, setting up a nine-yard touchdown run by Farnham. Sorrento hit Fitzpatrick for the two-point conversion and a 20-0 lead. Bregoli capped the scoring with a 50-yard touchdown romp. Playing well on the Apache line were Scott MacDonald, Ben Bell and Kevin Gaughan.

The Storm's offense reached the Apache red zone on numerous occasions, thanks to the herculean effort of quarterback Tim Seay, who completed 13 of 18 passes for over 200 yards. Tight end Keith Dykens was the recipient of seven of Seay's passes, but the Storm could not convert these completions into touchdowns.

For the second week in a row, the Elks (2-0) provided late-game heroics and edged the Quincy Point Panthers, 8-6. Last week, Elks quarterback Danny Duggan scored the winning touchdown with 18 seconds left to lift the Elks over the Manets, 6-0.

After Kris Kamborian scored on a one-yard plunge to give the Panthers a 6-0 lead, the Elks mounted a late drive, finishing it off with a five-yard touchdown run by Mike Ryan. The Elks' Duggan then faked a hand-off to Ryan and raced around end for the winning two-point conversion with less than minutes left in the game, sending the Elks crowd into a frenzy.

Despite the loss, the Panthers (0-2) received a sold effort from Kamborian, Michael Lorenzano and James LaFleur.

In the Manets' 36-14 victory over the Milton Mustangs, Paul Flynn had a tremendous game, scoring five touchdowns and catching three two-point conversions from quarterback Jordan Virtue.

Playing well on the offensive line for the Manets (2-0) were Brian Chenette, Corey Place, Dave Grogan, Donnie Brooks, Brian Malone, Chris Jacques and Brian Keefe. Dan Galligan, Jason Moore, Paul Picarski and Shawn Munchbach were outstanding in the backfield. Paul McAteer intercepted a pass to halt a Milton drive.

Defensively, the Manets were led by Bill McKeon, Mike Quigley, Robbie Tatten, Bill Reid, Joe Hearn, Andy McWalter, Keith Hartshorn, Bill Brooks and Sean Richardson.

For the Mustangs (0-2), Gaway Cantave scored both touchdowns and had a solid offensive game.

This Sunday, the unbeaten Apaches and Elks clash, the Storm faces the Manets and the Panthers take on the Mustangs.

Improving Red Raiders Seek Second Victory

The North Quincy High School boys' soccer team, although saddled with a 1-7 record through Monday, has been playing very competitively of late and nearly upset a strong Dennis-Yarmouth team Monday.

North Quincy jumped out to a 1-0 lead at 13:49 of the first half, when senior John Barron scored off a nifty combination of passes from sophomore Joe Flynn and senior Joe Miller. Twelve minutes later, senior Matt Norton scored on a diagonal feed from Barron for a 2-0 NQ lead.

D-Y was able to score one goal in the first half, bringing the half time score to 2-1. D-Y got the equalizer nine minutes into the second half and the game-winner with 14 minutes remaining in the game.

Although North had several opportunities to tie the game in the final minutes, the veteran D-Y defense was up to the task and held on to win. Also playing outstanding for NQ were senior back Steve Wilson, junior midfielder Kevin Walsh and sophomores Ricky Loughmiller at midfield and Zack Winderl on defense.

North traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham yesterday (Wednesday) for a 4 p.m. match against the powerful Trojans.

The boys' soccer teams from North Quincy and Quincy High School will play Saturday at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium in the first of two meetings between the crosstown rivals. All are welcome.

"Although both teams are struggling through a difficult Old Colony League schedule," said North Quincy head coach Robert Dano, "the traditional rivalry brings out the competitive instincts of both teams and always features an exciting game."

Next Tuesday, the Red Raiders host Plymouth South in a 4 p.m. match.

Presidents Look To Snap Five-Game Losing Skid

The boys' soccer team at Quincy High School dropped its fifth straight game, a 5-3 loss to host and Old Colony League foe Barnstable Monday.

The Presidents (1-5) met two tough league opponents last week, Plymouth South and Falmouth, and came out on the losing end of each contest.

In the match against Plymouth South, Quincy battled back from a 1-0 deficit with a goal 12 minutes into the game by junior Jim Sullivan. Plymouth broke the deadlock with three more goals before the half ended.

Quincy came out strong in the second half, cutting the deficit to 4-2 on a goal by senior captain Jared Downey. But the Plymouth defense shut down the Presidents for the rest of the game. The Plymouth offense added two more goals en route to a a 6-2 victory.

Against Falmouth, the Presidents tallied within the first five minutes of the game on a play by senior captains Downey and Ed Smith just outside the box. Downey managed to score again in the first half, giving the Presidents a 2-0 lead, but Falmouth managed to tie the game before the end of the half.

In spite of the strong goaltending of junior Joe Vallatini and the defensive efforts of juniors Scott Staiti and Marc Garthwait and senior Tom Mann, Falmouth pounded out four goals before the end of the game for another 6-2 loss.

Quincy was slated to host Silver Lake yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m.

Saturday at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, the Presidents will take on crosstown rival North Quincy in the first of two meetings this season. Quincy Youth Soccer players wearing their team shirt and accompanies by an adult will be admitted free.

Next Tuesday, the Presidents travel to Taunton for a 4 p.m. match.

Hospital To Provide Rides To Cancer Walk

Quincy Hospital will provide round-trip bus transportation to the American Cancer Society's fifth annual Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walk on Sunday, Oct. 5.

Buses will leave from the hospital, 114 Whitwell St., between 7:45 and 8:45 a.m. Reservations for transportation must be made by Sept. 29.

Proceeds from the 5.7-mile walk along the Charles River Esplanade in Boston will be dedicated to the American Cancer Society's breast cancer research, education, and patient support programs in Massachusetts.

For reservations or more information, call (508) 584-9600.

Presidents Turn Attention To Beating Rival Raiders

The Quincy High School girls' soccer team battled tough Old Colony League foe Barnstable Monday, but came away with a 2-0 defeat.

Senior Jessica DiBona had a strong game in net for the host Presidents (1-5-1), making 18 saves and giving Quincy the chance to cut into the deficit. Seniors Kelly Raymer and Kara McSweeney turned in strong efforts for Quincy.

Last Thursday, the Presidents fell to host Falmouth by a 7-1 score.

"The score doesn't prove how well the ladies played," said Quincy head coach Robin Welinsky. "Falmouth is an unbelievable team."

Quincy's Marisa Ross put the ball in the net fro well outside the 18-yard line to give the Presidents a 1-0 lead. It took Falmouth 22 minutes to score the equalizer.

"My team has gelled well together," said Welinsky. "We can beat any team in the OCL. There's that much talent on the field."

Last Tuesday, the Presidents again came out on the short end of a 2-0 score, this time by Plymouth South.

"The girls played a great game at home," said Welinsky. "Jessica DiBona only allowed two goals and made 23 saves. She was unstoppable."

Welinsky has been particularly impressed with the performance of senior Becky Mackey, who plays a number of positions for the Presidents and is a team leader.

"Becky is a great player who adds tremendous strength to our team," she said.

The Presidents traveled to Silver Lake yesterday (Wednesday) for a 4 p.m. match.

Saturday at 5 p.m., the Presidents battle North Quincy in the first of two clashes this season. Next Tuesday, Quincy hosts Taunton in a 4 p.m. match.

NQ Loses Battle To D-Y

The girls' soccer team at North Quincy High School dominated host Dennis-Yarmouth from start to finish, but suffered a frustrating 1-0 defeat Monday.

"We controlled the play all game," said North head coach Paul Bregoli. "That's why this loss is so tough to take. We had 12 shots to their two, but their keeper was excellent. She was the difference in the game."

A controversial non-call early in the second half cost the Red Raiders (4-3-1) a golden opportunity to break the scoreless tie, said Bregoli.

"Laurie Flynn was pushed down in the area right in front of the net, but the referee did not make the call," he said.

The game remained deadlocked at 0-0 until the 19:30 mark of the second half, when the Dolphins' Vivian Siempos netted the game's only goal.

Playing strong two-way games for North were Flynn, Betsy Stone, Kellee Conley and Katie Koch.

Last Thursday, the Red Raiders romped over Taunton, scoring four first-half goals and adding seven more in the second for an 11-0 triumph.

Kellee Conley and Marybeth Feeney both netted two goals and Flynn, Stone, Ashley Murphy, Caitlyn O'Donnell, Jill Nicholson, Stacy Szcesuil and Jen Conley all notched one goal for North.

Keeper Kristen Bowes combined with Powers for North's fourth shutout.

The Red Raiders were slated to host Bridgewater-Raynham yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m.

Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium, the first of two meetings between the North Quincy and Quincy squads will kick off at 5 p.m. Next Tuesday, the Red Raiders visit Plymouth South for a 4 p.m. match.

Unbeaten Presidents Face B-R

(Cont'd From Page 18)

Bob Keuther and assistant coach Bill Reardon with getting the team prepared.

"The defense was outstanding and has been in both games," said Chella. "Bob and Bill, who also worked with the defense, have done an excellent job getting the kids ready.

"Our defense does a nice job of taking away what other team do well offensively, and it all goes back to the preparation. Those coaches deserve a lot of credit for their hard work, which is paying off in the games."

Quincy High Notebook:

The 2-0 Presidents need only win three more games to better last season's victory total. Quincy was 4-6 in 1996.

Following this weekend's clash against B-R, Quincy is home against Taunton (Oct. 3) and Plymouth South (Oct. 10) Those two OCL squads have combined for three losses and a tie through the first two weeks of the season.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Are you a music lover? Do you enjoy concerts? If so, have you noticed that the man who plays the cymbals may not appear to have a very important part in an orchestra, but a symphony without the discordant clang of the cymbal somewhere in it would lack much of the majesty it was intended to have?

Have you ever noticed how cymbal players sit motionless throughout a number until nearly the end? . . . Then, as all the instruments are swelling into a grand crescendo, the cymbalist rises, poises his cymbals, and just at the right moment crashes them together and sends a peal of brass across the mounting harmonies of the orchestra. The cymbal does not make a tone; it creates a loud dissonance, but It thereby makes all the other harmonies significant.

And such is the function of disharmonies in life. They make the harmonies more significant. Pain, disappointment, hurts, and loss - the Clash of cymbals in our lives - makes us remember and appreciate the times when our lives were more harmonious.

School Safety Tip For Youngsters

To help stay safe and healthy this school year, McGruff the Crime Dog says:

- Work out a safe route to school with your parents. Choose the quickest way with the fewest street crossings, intersections, vacant lots, field, and other places where there aren't many people around.
- Walk to and from school with a friend, neighbor, brother, or sister. Don't go by yourself.
- Be sure you know your home phone number, address, the numbers of your parents' work or another trusted adult. Know how to use 911 for emergencies.
- Never talk to strangers or accept rides or gifts from strangers. Remember, a stranger is anyone you or your parents don't know well or don't trust.
- If you bike or skateboard to school, wear a helmet. And don't forget to lock up your bike wherever your leave it.
- If you're home alone after school, check in with a parent or neighbor as soon as you walk in the door.
- Let parents and friends know if you stay late after school. Get permission first if you want to play with a friend instead of going home.

If you see anyone doing something that makes you uneasy or you think isn't right--a stranger hanging around the school playground, a bigger kid bullying younger children, vandalism or graffiti for example--tell your parents, a teacher, or another trusted adult. That helps McGruff Take a Bite Out of Crime.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's a good week for rest and relaxation. Plan an enjoyable outing with family and friends. The next few weeks promise to be hectic, so take advantage of this quiet time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Someone close to you is being a bit of a braggart. Focus on your goals and set about achieving them quietly. This weekend, catch up on your reading.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be careful of rushing into early behind-the-scenes financial ventures. Consult with your significant other first, or you risk missing helpful insight into the situation.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An early start this week helps you tremendously. Bigwigs on the job are impressed with your enthusiasm. Ultimately, you are rewarded financially.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Be wary of taking advice you didn't solicit. You are capable enough to make the correct decision. Others could be misleading you without even realizing it.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Plan to add new fixtures or a paint job to your home. It's a good week to join a club or group activity. You are charismatic and at the forefront.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Make a long-overdue phone call to a neglected friend. You're blessed with wonderful charm and insight that lifts your spirits tremendously.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Keep your temper at bay, especially in the early part of the week. Doing so helps you be more productive. Those around you are impressed with how articulate you can be.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Take inventory at home, and make sure you are prepared for all potential emergencies. Take safety precautions, and be sure family members know what to do. A cultural pursuit is satisfying this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A minor confrontation could be in store on the home front. However, by week's end, all works out. Traveling for business purposes is not a good idea.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll be receiving a surprising invitation for a very exclusive affair soon. Be sure to clear up your schedule to attend this event. Finances are looking up.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You and a business partner could be at odds over an important decision. It's best to listen to new ideas. Put off any expansion endeavors.

LEGAL NOTICE

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT
NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING

A Design Public Hearing will be held by the Massachusetts Highway Department to discuss the proposed construction of the Quincy Center Concourse (Section 1) in the City of Quincy.

WHERE: 2nd Floor Meeting Room
Quincy City Hall
1305 Hancock Street
Quincy, MA 02169

WHEN: Thursday, October 9, 1997 @ 7:30 PM

PURPOSE: The purpose of this hearing is to provide the public an opportunity to become acquainted with this proposed roadway construction project. All views and comments made at this hearing will be reviewed and considered into the final design to the maximum extent possible.

PROPOSAL: The proposed project consists of the construction of Section 1 of the Quincy Center Concourse (QCC). The project will include the construction of a new 62 meter (200 feet) multi-span bridge over the MBTA rail corridor and adjacent parking lot, the reconstruction of 270 meters (900 feet) of Burgin Parkway, 150 meters (500 feet) of Granite Street Connector and 135 meters (450 feet) of Parkingway. It will also include installation of new traffic signals at the Burgin Parkway/QCC and the QCC/Parkingway intersections as well as pavement markings and signing.

A secure right of way is necessary for this project. Acquisitions in fee and permanent or temporary easements will be required. The City of Quincy in cooperation with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is responsible for acquiring all needed rights in private or public lands. Policies concerning land acquisitions will be discussed at this hearing.

Written views received by the Department subsequent to the date of this notice and up to five (5) days prior to the date of the hearing shall be displayed for public inspection and copying at the time and date listed above.

Written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements made at the public hearing regarding the proposed undertaking are to be submitted to Thomas Broderick, P.E., Chief Engineer, Massachusetts Highway Department, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, Massachusetts, 01226. Such submissions will also be accepted at the hearing. The final date for receipt of these statements and exhibits will be ten days after the public hearing.

Plans will be on display for one half hour before the hearing, with an Engineer in attendance to answer questions regarding this project.

By virtue of a Judgement entered by the Superior Court of Norfolk County (Docket No. 96-2037) in favor of Patricia Page et als, Trustees of Ocean Cover Condominium Trust v. Hon Pui Chan and Siu Kwan Li establishing a lien pursuant to G.L. c. 183A, Sec. 6 on the real estate known as Unit N. 410 of Ocean Cove Condominium and located at 677 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy, Massachusetts, for the purpose of satisfying such lien the real estate will be sold at Public Auction at 11:00 A.M. on October 9, 1997 at the office of the Norfolk County Deputy Sheriff, 630 High Street, Dedham, Massachusetts. The premises to be sold are more particularly described as follows: the unit ("Unit") known as No. 410 in the Ocean Cove Condominium at 677 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, a Condominium established pursuant to Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A, by Master Deed dated December 24, 1986 recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Book 7380, Page 264 ("Master Deed") which Unit is shown on floor plans of the building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed and on the copy of the portion of the plans attached hereto and made a part hereof, to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section 9 of said Chapter 183A. Said Unit is conveyed together with: 1) An undivided .1630 interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium described in said Master Deed attributable to the Unit. 2) the exclusive right to use any balcony or patio adjoining the Unit and to which the unit has access. 3) The right to use one parking space in parking area on an assigned basis. 4) All easements, rights, restrictions, reservations and provisions set forth or referred to in the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust of Ocean Cove Condominium Trust recorded with the Master Deed, and the first unit deed of the Unit. Being the same premises conveyed to Hon Pui chan and Siu Kwan Li by deed recorded with said Deeds Book 7923, Page 254.

Terms of Sale:

1: Non-refundable certified check for $2,500.00 to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of the auction.

2. The balance of the purchase price to be paid within thirty days of the sale.

3. Sheriff's Foreclosure Deed to be issued to purchaser upon payment in full of sale price. The deed shall convey the premises Subject to, and with the benefit of, any restrictions, easements, improvements, assessments, encumbrances, liens or claims in the nature of liens which are, by operation of law, conveyed with the premises.

4. No representation is or shall be made by Seller as to the status of any mortgage.

5. Other terms to be announced at the sale.

The sale is pursuant to a Judgement entered by the Brookline, a copy of which may be viewed at the office of Attorney Michael Merrill, One Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02108, 523-1760, attorney for the Seller, by appointment.

Michael W. Merrill, Attorney for the Trustees of Ocean Cove Condominium Trust.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a one day permit to the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, 1416 Hancock St. to hold its seventh annual Harvest Family Festival Oct. 19 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Rain date is Oct. 26.

•Allowed the transfer of ownership of the Bean Routine, 405 Hancock St. from Michael Condon to Dorothy Briggs Aronson. Chairman Joseph Shea said questions about using the same name as another Bean Routine in Quincy Center will be discussed at a meeting with Condon.

•Granted a permit to Major Robert Klenk of The Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., to conduct a fundraising drive at various locations in the city for their Christmas needs. Councillor-at-large Paul Harold told the board that the Salvation Army relies on the drive because they do not conduct dances or raffles.

•Voted to restrict hours of operation at the A.M.R. ambulance company, 365 Washington St. from 9 p.m. to 7 a.m. following complaints from neighbors.

•Placed on file complaints regarding Point Plaza on Washington Street. Only one out of four vendors attended the meeting. After a discussion with Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, Shea and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman will visit the vendors in the small strip and review on or before Oct.. 28

•Delayed the issuance of a license to George's Automotive, 15 Liberty St. for a auto repair shop license because the owner has been operating for two weeks without permits. After reading a letter from Ward 4 Councillor Mike D"Amico reagarding violations, owner George Karam was told to close up shop until city codes are met.

•Granted an extension of premises of G.J. Coddington, 1250 Hancock St. to the Atrium to serve beer & wine at the Breast Cancer Marathon

DPW Highway Division Expansion Proposed

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city is planning to examine the possibility of adding more personnel to its Department of Public Works.

On Monday night, the City Council unanimously passed a resolution requesting that Mayor James Sheets study the feasibility of expanding the size of the department.

Specifically, the resolution singles out the need for additional manpower in the DPW's Highway Division, suggesting an increase from six to nine people.

Sheets said at press time he will have DPW Commissioner David Colton study the feasibility of the expansion proposal and have him bring in a recommendation.

"I always think the DPW can use more people," said Sheets. "But it always comes down to dollars. Still, I think it's a very legitimate request. We will look at it, and we will look at it very seriously."

Kolson's resolution, which was passed without discussion, reads in part:

"This request is made in view of the fact that the need is growing while the staff members have been dwindling. While performing their best and gallant efforts in pouring asphalt and making repairs to streets and sidewalks, employees assigned to do these tasks have been reassigned to other tasks.

"The City Council is cognizant of the mayor's need to prioritize funding for all municipal needs. However, if the funds could be earmarked to increase the personnel of the highway staff, the city could meet the challenge of needed public works improvements at a faster pace."

DON'T FORGET TO SLEEP

Have you been feeling more forgetful lately? Does your mind suddenly blank out at the easiest question, as if someone had flipped its switch to the "Off' position? Before you sign up for the Alzheimer's clinic, check yourself on how much sleep you've been getting. Evidence continues to mount that chronic sleep deficiency can have a powerfully negative effect on short-term memory and general mental alertness. This can happen to people who are simply too busy to put in enough time in bed, as well as to people who suffer — often without knowing it — from sleep apnea, a condition in which breathing stops for a few seconds during sleep.

P.S. Sleep apnea is usually treatable. Once a solid sleep pattern has been re-established, memory problems often disappear.

It is amazing what a difference a little bit of sleep can make in your overall well-being. Take care of yourself! At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we specialize in heart disease. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. You find that we care about you and it shows in everything we do.

More Training For School Bus Drivers, Monitors

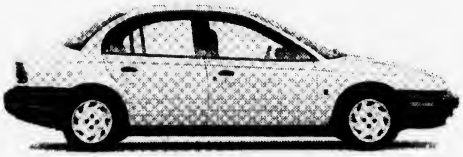
while Anna sat alone in the bus.

The monitor was picked up later in the afternoon and the bus was taken to the Lincoln-Hancock School and St. Mary's School before the monitor realized around 2:45 p.m. that Anna was part of the Point-Webster group. She was identified by a school identification tag around her neck.

The driver then took Anna back to Point-Webster where the principal called her mother and then drove her home himself. She was reportedly shaken, but unharmed.



Free Smoking Cessation Hynosis Program At Hospital

Manet Community Health Center is offering a free hypnosis session for smoking cessation at Quincy Hospital Wednesday, Oct. 22 from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Education Center at Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St.

Susan Holden-Dodge, M.S.W., certified in Chemical Dependence and licensed hypnotherapist, will begin the program with an interactive group session discussing nicotine, weight gain, and other concerns and fears encountered when trying to quit smoking. It will be followed by a hypnosis session and further discussion. Comfortable clothing is suggested.

Advance registration is not required for this free program. For more information, call the hospital's Public Relations Department at (617) 376-4020.

Sheets: 'A Great Day For The City'

Old Colony Line Hailed As 'New Era'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Old Colony Railroad opened to the public in Quincy and a number of other South Shore communities this week, ushering in what Mayor James Sheets has called "a new era" for the city and the region.

The $537 million, state-funded Old Colony line began running trains through its 13 stations--including one that runs parallel to the Quincy Center MBTA Station--on Monday.

Sheets, who made his comments prior to a special ceremony held last Friday for community officials, members of the press and other railroad supporters--who were treated to a first-time ride to Boston's South Station, where the ceremony was held--said he expects the railroad to both make traveling easier for South Shore commuters and boost tourism in the city by providing easier access to Quincy.

He added that for the first time, the city will linked to two other major tourist communities in Massachusetts: Plymouth on one end of the Old Colony line and Boston on the other.

"I think it's a new era," said Sheets. "I think transportation is a key today, and it brings people closer together. I also think the railroad will have a real impact economically.

"This is something we worked for very hard.

Will Pay Entire Cost Of Recreational Facility

City To Receive $54 Million, Fill For Golf Course

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city is slated to receive $54 million and 7 million cubic yards of fill to be used to construct a planned West Quincy golf course/recreational facility.

Mayor James Sheets and state officials made the announcement at a press conference yesterday (Wednesday) at City Hall. If all goes according to plan, the project will be completed by 2002.

Sheets said the Massachusetts Highway Department is paying Quincy the $54 million to take the fill off the state's hands. The money will pay for the entire West Quincy project, he said.

"We're thrilled," Sheets said of the news. "We think it's going to be one of the most attractive golf courses in Massachusetts. It will be located at one of the highest points in the city, and the view is spectacular.

"It's a win-win situation. This means the city won't have to spend any bond money on the project and it won't have to be included in the city budget."

The city has been trying to secure the fill for more than two years.

By taking the fill, Quincy will save the Central Artery/Tunnel "Big Dig" project in Boston more than $30 million in costs for soil disposal. The 7 million cubic yards is the entire amount of fill available from that project, the mayor said.

The mayor signed a contract agreement with the state for the money and fill yesterday. The fill is to begin arriving in the city within 21 days, and the preparation work was expected to begin yesterday, according to Sheets.

The project in West Quincy, which will be called the Quarry Hills Recreation Complex, will include an 18-hole golf course, driving range, clubhouse, several soccer, Little League and softball fields; restored hiking and cross-country skiing trails with connections to the Blue Hills Reservation and historic quarry sites; picnic areas, and parking. Totaling nearly 350 acres in green open space, it will be located at the site of the former landfill off Ricciuti Drive.

The driving force behind the golf course/recreational facility is Quincy-based Quarry Hills Associates, a limited partnership formed for the specific purpose of developing the West Quincy site for the project.

Sheets said the actual construction will be done by the Boston-based McCourt Construction Co. and the engineering by Sverdrup Civil Inc., also in Boston. Quarry Hills will manage the project.

An engineer and a certified public accountant chosen by the city also will oversee progress of the project as well as the finances involved. Quarry Hills will pay for both services, according to the mayor.

The city, as part of a 50-year lease with Quarry Hills Associates, will receive 10 percent of the net income derived from the recreational complex, which will be owned and operated by

Wanted For Armed Robberies

THESE TWO SUSPECTS are responsible for five armed robberies in Quincy. They are also believed to be involved in other robberies in Braintree, Weymouth, Abington, Hingham and Brocton.

Main targets of these individuals are liquor stores, gas stations and convenience stores. Quincy robberies have occurred in the evening between 7:15 p.m. and 10:56 p.m.

Three other incidents were reported in Quincy in which it is believed that robberies were going to occur, but didn't because of customers entering the businesses.

A Task Force is being established by police departments on the South Shore to share information that might lead to the arrest of these suspects.

These suspects should be considered armed and dangerous. If you have any information on them, contact Lt. Thomas Casey at the Quincy Police Detective Bureau, 745-5725.

For descriptions, see Police Log Hot Spots, Page 25.

Quincy is the only community that was not originally part of the Old Colony plans, but we fought for it, and I think this will affect our spirit and our attitude. This is a great day for the City of Quincy."

Two trains arrived in Quincy Center at approximately 9:09 and 9:23 a.m. respectively last Friday to transport city officials and others to South Station, a ride of approximately 20 minutes.

Officials on hand for the ceremony held by the state Department of Transportation and the MBTA touted the Old Colony line as something that will benefit both the South Shore and the entire state.

James Kerasiotes, chairman of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority and former state transportation secretary, commended Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci for his part in making the project a reality.

Cellucci said, "This is a great day for the South Shore community and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," and praised members of the state Senate and House of Representatives, including Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy, for their efforts on behalf of the railroad.

State Secretary of Transportation Patrick Moynihan said, "This is the manifestation of a promise the (former Gov. William) Weld/Cellucci administration made to the South Shore. It's something very much to be excited about."

Boston Mayor Thomas Menino also expressed his enthusiasm.

"It's great to have this service restored from the South Shore to the City of Boston," he said, adding that compared to commuting by car, the railroad "is not so hard on the nerves, and not so hard on the environment."

Nuria Fernandez, deputy administrator for the Federal Transit Administration, spoke briefly, saying Boston and the South Shore are "lucky" to have a service such as the new railroad.

PASSENGERS GET acquainted with South Station prior to last Friday's grand opening ceremony for the Old Colony Railroad.

MBTA General Manager Robert Prince added, "We worked very hard on this project to account for the needs of the South Shore. We are ready to augment the lives of those on the South Shore, who are ready to embark on a new era."

Another part of the ceremony included former state Sen. Ned Kirby of Whitman, one of the railroad's strongest advocates in the 1980s, who carried four spikes from the original Old Colony Railroad that closed in 1959. Kirby presented the spikes, which he had previously painted gold, to Cellucci, Moynihan, Kerasiotes and Prince.

In addition, Sheets and officials from the other communities that have the new Old Colony stations pinned the names of their cities and towns on a map of the railroad route during the ceremony.

The Old Colony Railroad currently includes two separate lines: the Plymouth/Kingston Line and the Middleborough/Lakeville line.

The Plymouth Kingston Line includes stops at Kingston, Halifax, Hanson, Whitman, Abington, South Weymouth, Braintree and South Station.

Stations on the Middleborough/Lakeville Line will be located at Lakeville, Bridgewater, Campello (Brockton), Randolph/Holbrook, Quincy Center and South Station.

The most controversial of the railroad's three lines, the Greenbush Line, is still in the design phase.

The Greenbush Line still needs federal and state environmental permits. It also faces a federal lawsuit filed by the Town of Hingham, one of five towns along the proposed line, which is trying to block the MBTA from running the railroad through the town's center.

Moynihan, however, has said the T will win both the permits and the lawsuit.

According to an MBTA spokeswoman, daily tickets for the Old Colony Railroad are $2 in Quincy and may be purchased at any Tedeschi's convenience store.

Monthly passes for Quincy residents are $64 and may be purchased at the MBTA's North Station, South Station and Back Bay Station, she said.

For more information, call the MBTA at 222-5000.

Oct. 20 Target Date For Shipyard Financing

The U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) has set a target date of Oct. 20 to approve a financing package that would help revive the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point.

The announcement was made Monday at a meeting in Washington, D.C. arranged by Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy.

MARAD has negotiated a number of issues related to the shipyard project with city and state officials over the last two years and has trimmed the list of items to be settled to three.

"All of the major issues have been resolved," said Mayor James Sheets, who attended Monday's meeting. "There are a few details that need to be worked out, but that's understandable. It's a very complex project."

Both Sheets and Doron Ezickson, a lawyer with McDermott, Will & Emery in Boston who represents shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil, expressed confidence a deal with MARAD will be reached by Oct. 20.

Emmanouil, who also owns Swampscott-based Massachusetts Heavy Industries, says he has contracts to build six double-hulled tankers for an overseas transport firm and that work will create 1,000 jobs at the shipyard and hundreds of new jobs for subcontractors.

However, Emmanouil says he needs MARAD to approve $54.5 million in loan guarantees so he can borrow money to refurbish the shipyard and buy high-tech shipbuilding machinery.

Separately, Intermare Navigation S.A., the firm buying ships from the shipyard, is requesting $240 million in loan guarantees so it can borrow money to pay for the ships.

MARAD agreed on Monday to consider the modernization loan guarantees separately from the guarantees needed for the ships. Considering them as a single package would have delayed the project.

The three issues MARAD wants to resolve are:

•What assets the shipyard would include in a collateral package that would be seized if it defaults on loans. MARAD wants the collateral to include a portion of the shipyard that lies in Braintree, but Emmanouil wants to use the property as collateral for other parts of its financing.

•The schedule for repayment of interest on loans to the federal government.

•Details of a reserve fund, which could total around $6 million, to cover cost overruns and other unforeseen financial needs in modernizing the shipyard.

If the three issues are not resolved by Oct. 20, according to one source, the approval date would be delayed by one week or MARAD would issue a document that says the loan guarantees are approved, pending the resolution of any outstanding issues.

Sheets and other officials have expressed optimism that the shipyard, which has been closed since 1986, will reopen sometime next year.

Marina Bay Project Public Hearing Oct. 6

The City Council will hold a public hearing on a proposed Marina Bay development Monday, Oct. 6 at 7:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The proposal has been made by Thorndike Development Corp. of Braintree through its affiliate, M.C. Properties Limited Partnership. A Planned Unit Development (PUD) permit is needed for the project.

The 152-unit plan calls for 48 single-family homes, 42 townhouses and 62 residential flats to be built on a 20-acre tract off Victory Road. A pedestrian promenade and a village green also are included in the project, which has been dubbed The Landing at Marina Bay.

The City Council has the final say on the project, which has received a favorable recommendation from the Quincy Planning Board.

A Thorndike plan for 268 condominiums at the same site was rejected by the City Council last year.

Tests Political Waters In Quincy Visit

Flynn On Governor Bid: 'I Really Want To Do It'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Ray Flynn fondly remembers coming to Quincy in his youth and participating in sports like basketball, football and baseball.

This week, the former mayor of Boston and ambassador to the Vatican returned to the city with a different competition in mind: politics.

Flynn visited several local spots Tuesday testing the waters for a possible run for governor next year. He told The Quincy Sun that the working class of cities like Quincy will determine whether he will seek the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1998.

"I'm going to spend a lot of time in this area. It's an area where I have a lot of roots. I played ball down here. I'm going to go around the state, (like) southeastern Massachusetts, the western part of the state and see whether or not the working class people are looking for someone who can really fight for them, protect their interests in Washington and protect their interests at the State House. That's what I know best.

RAY FLYNN

"I come from a working class family. I know the pressures that average people have in paying the bills. I think I can identify with them. I'm not from some fancy school of government where people were born with silver spoons in their mouth. I've worked hard for everything I've got."

So far, Flynn says the response from people has been positive.

"The people really feel that there's no voice for working class people in Massachusetts or in our national government. They're looking for somebody they can identify with, someone who understands their issues, their concerns, their problems. I'm getting a lot of blue color people, working class people. They're encouraging me.

"They (the working class) want to work hard and support their families but they want a decent salary, they want a decent wage. They don't believe there is anyone out there fighting for them. That's what I'm hearing."

Flynn recently returned home to Massachusetts after serving four years and two months as US ambassador to the Vatican. He says he'll decide if he'll be a candidate for governor by the end of the year.

"I'm going to move around the state as much as I can. I've been away for four years. I haven't set a time. I'm just going to work very, very hard. It'll be sometime this year.

"I really want to do this in the worst way. I want to get in there."

While Tuesday's visit to Quincy is one indication Flynn is running, there are

Patriotic Program At Adams Site

The Adams National Historic Site will hold an interactive program on Columbus Day, Monday, Oct. 13 at the Adams Birthplaces, 133 and 141 Franklin St., Quincy.

The free all-day event will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Visitors, who will portray Patriot refugees fleeing British-occupied Boston, will investigate Colonial lifestyles, help with farm chores, gather provisions, and practice military maneuvers with the captain of the local militia.

Participants will enter a drawing to win a silhouette portrait of themselves by artist Courtney Skinner, who will portray a traveling "shadow portraitist" who toured the countryside in early America. Edwin Page will portray Elisha Skinner, an 18th century doctor who will share his knowledge of medicine.

Refreshments will be served. Space is limited. For reservations, call 770-1175.

Voting And Megabucks

The odds of it happening are probably about the same as you winning Megabucks 1,000 times in a row.

Give up?

It's having every registered voter in Quincy actually vote on election day.

Despite the odds against it happening, City Clerk Joseph Shea--by law-- will have a ballot on hand Nov. 4 for every single registered voter in the city.

Just in case that miracle of miracles should happen and everyone turns out to vote.

In the preliminary election Sept. 16 there were contests in only Wards 1, 3 and 6 where there were a total of 24,724 registered voters.

Of the 24,724 only 3,673 voted while 21,051 stayed home.

Total registration in the city at that time was 50,517.

That number should increase by the Nov. 4th final election.

Deadline for registering is Wednesday, Oct. 15. The Election Department at City Hall will be open until 8 p.m. that day.

Shea hopes there will be a much larger voter percentage turnout Nov. 4 than there was Sept. 16.

He'll have a ballot ready for everyone--just in case.

KEVIN COUGHLIN has added a home-made touch to his campaign for a school committee seat.

COUGHLIN

Coughlin has personally built 90 green and white campaign signs and is now busy getting them placed around the city.

Building 90 signs wasn't very hard for him to do. Not after practically rebuilding his Small St. home from four rooms to nine.

VIN SCARNICI, who manages the election campaigns of School Committeewoman Christine Cedrone, was one of the active bidders at the Quincy Historical Society auction the other night.

SCARNICI

CEDRONE

One of the popular items on the block was a miniature replica of City Hall from Abigail's Crossing autographed by five mayors: Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Frank McCauley and James Sheets.

Scarnici couldn't resist it and, you might say, got a little carried away in the bidding. In fact, he got so carried away he didn't realize one of the other bidders he was competing against was Christine. Whenever she or anyone else bid, he topped it. And finally won the prize.

But he didn't have it for long. He wound up presenting it to Christine.

"You might say," Christine smiled, "it was an early Christmas present."

GEORGE PARKER of the Yellow Cab Co. in Quincy, never wants me to mention this. But, I'm going to do it again, anyway.

PARKER

For 21 years now, George has been quietly and generously helping the fight against muscular dystrophy.

It all began back in 1976 when The Quincy Sun became the Quincy-South Shore pledge center for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon.

George came in that first year with two checks--a $400 personal one and a $400 company one.

And, for 10 years, it was an annual ritual. In those 10 years, the pledge center and committee raised over $1 million thanks to nice people like George.

Because of space limitations, the pledge center is no longer at The Sun, although we do sponsor special MDA events. The fact the pledge center is no longer here hasn't stopped George from giving.

He just keeps coming each year with those two $400 checks.

This year, he did it again.

We figure that he has donated something like $16,800 to help the battle against muscular dystrophy.

George doesn't want anyone to make a fuss over him. But, he'll have to forgive us. We just like to note there are still nice people out there. And George is one of them.

MILESTONE: Frank Kearns, also known as the other mayor of Quincy, is celebrating his 85th birthday. And he looks--and acts--like he has found the Fountain of Youth.

KEARNS

Frank's formula: he doesn't drink or smoke and stays busy.

He attends the 7 a.m. Mass daily at Sacred Heart Church and then goes swimming at a pool.

He stays active as a Quincy Housing Authority commissioner, a director of the South Shore Elder Services, a director of the Quincy Council on Aging and a member of the Fair Housing Committee.

And in between all that, he is personally involved in volunteer work as an advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor.

And that's why he was selected as The Quincy Sun's "Citizen the Year" in 1991.

Happy birthday, Frank. And many more.

DAN FLYNN, real estate magnate, auctioneer and man-about-town knows how to raise money in a hurry. At a recent meeting of the Quincy Rotary Club of which he is vice president, he had every member who is or was in the Navy, pay a buck which goes to charity.

FLYNN

He then announced that Jerry Dacey, the well-known banker, and equal man-about-town, had to also cough up a buck fine because he was a cabin boy on the Mayflower.

They used the occasion to come up with a unique memento: an Old Colony commemorative cigar.

THIS IS A 1924 real photo postcard view of the old Wollaston Depot on the Old Colony Railroad. This view from the Beale Street bridge shows three waiting taxis. Notice one is horse drawn. This Victorian style station with its handsome clock tower was one of the more architecturally ornate stations on the Old Colony. The old Whitman Center station that is still extant had a similar design. They demolished this station to make way for the Red Line. The postcard was one of a series published by Henry Frink of Quincy.

Wants Granite Ball Moved To West Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Seven decades ago, as an anniversary gift to the city, the Granite Cutters' Union of Quincy cut, fashioned, and polished a beautiful eight-ton granite ball.

The granite for the ball came from a West Quincy quarry, and the cutting and polishing was done by artisans in South Quincy stone sheds and polishing mills. The ball graced the side lawn of City Hall for a dozen years, and then, to the dismay of many granite workers, was moved to its present location at the end of Washington Street in Quincy Point, where no quarrying or granite work ever took place, and with dangerous pedestrian accessibility.

Now a rejuvenated park on Copeland Street in West Quincy memorializes what was once the city's chief industry for over a century with a seven-foot statue of a granite worker. Included in the park are memorial bricks, granite benches and plaques, a grand arbor, and beautiful flowers that have attracted hundreds of people. Making a beautiful park in their honor is the least that should be done for the thousands of granite workers who put Quincy on the map.

It would be a fitting tribute to Quincy's granite workers and their families to have the granite ball restored and moved from its Quincy Point location and placed in the West Quincy park that memorializes them. It would be appropriate and educational for people to see in the same park not only a statue of a granite worker but an example of his talented craftsmanship.

Certainly there are politicians and others who feel the ball should never be moved from its present location. But to the fine citizens of Quincy Point whom I had the privilege of serving as a Pollard School teacher for 10 years, I respectfully ask....wouldn't it be more appropriate for the Fore River circle to have a small ship or anchor as its centerpiece?

The granite ball is an exquisite reminder of a giant industry that once proudly flourished for over 150 years not in Quincy Point, but in West and South Quincy. It should be placed in the Granite Workers' Park, close to the quarries and stone sheds from where it was hand-fashioned so that its beauty may forever reflect the talent and dedication of thousands of West and South Quincy granite workers.

Appreciates Harold's Account Of Visit With Mother Teresa

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It was wonderful to read the article in The Quincy Sun on former Senator and present City Councillor Paul Harold's account of his visit to India and particularly about his meeting with Mother Teresa in Calcutta. It was so well written and timely. The reader could almost sense being there with him and Mother Teresa.

I recall vividly, after Councillor Harold's return from India, I asked him if he would come to the church I am a member of to present some of his slides and talk about his trip. Without a moment's hesitation he said, he would be happy to.

His program presentation gave us the opportunity to "visit" with words and pictures depicting life in India. He gave us the opportunity to experience India through the eyes of a person who is truly interested in its people, their country, their customs and the many hidden places most tourist would never find.

I believe, Paul, as the International Visitor Service Director and a State Senator had also a mission, and that he humbly and unselfishly keeps up that mission as a great humanitarian even today without fanfare.

The Wollaston Beach Tent Was A First Aid Station

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Regarding your always welcome op-ed column of "Yesterdays" as well as Tom Galvin's "Scenes From," I must take exception to the caption of Sept. 11's "Scenes."

As a former resident of East Elm Avenue as well as a displaced Quincy person, I must tell you that the tent on Wollaston Beach, with its accompanying Red Cross flag, was a First Aid Station.

It figures, doesn't it? In later years, a building on the boulevard near the corner of Davis and Bromfield Streets served the same purpose. I do not believe there were any lifeguards in those long-ago days.

I enjoy The Sun and look forward to many more reminders of years past.

'Jim Crow' Author At Crane Library Oct. 7

Historian Mark Schneider, author of the recently-published "Boston Confronts Jim Crow, 1890-1920" will discuss his book Tuesday, Oct. 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Schneider's talk will be illustrated with slides, and books will be available for purchase and signing.

Schneider's study of three groups of Bostonians--Brahmins, African Americans and Irish--unveils the city's various responses to the promise of equality and the reality of heightened discrimination throughout the country. The book weaves a tapestry of personalities and politics that had repercussions for decades to come. Black and white photographs illustrate the text.

Schneider returned to college at age 40, earning a master's degree in history at the University of Massachusetts in Boston, and went on to earn his doctorate at Boston College. In addition to teaching history at Lesley College, he works for Amtrak.

Two Duos To Perform At Raffael's Oct. 8, 15

MEDICARE FOOTS THE BILL

If there is one thing that everyone in the national debate on health care would probably agree on, it is that it is all terribly complicated. Medicare rules and regulations are just one part of the picture, but for many older Americans in particular, they are often the most confusing part. For example, a common misconception is that Medicare is good only for surgery, not for routine care or other medical procedures for the feet. In fact, Medicare will pay for a wide range of podiatric services, including even such things as trimming nails and removing corns in some cases. Nothing these days is simple, but don't neglect foot care because of uncertainty about insurance or Medicare coverage. Talk to your podiatrist.

P.S. A podiatrist is a doctor who cares for the foot and ankle, able to prescribe drugs and perform surgery.

If foot pain continues for more than a few days it should be attended to by a podiatrist, a doctor who cares for the foot and ankle. We practice "state of the art" podiatry, geared to prevention as well as treatment. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18), (773-4300). All medical coverage is accepted and we assist you with filling out the insurance forms.

Woodward, Central Students Win $5,000 For Butler Pond

Students at The Woodward School and Central Middle School recently combined to win $5,000 for the ecological restoration of Butler Pond as part of their ecological and science courses for two academic years.

The effort, directed by Woodward Science Department Chairman Cheryl Casey, Bill McWeeney and Brian Flaherty of Central Middle School, Quincy Public of Public Works Commissioner David Colton and Program Manager Michael Wheelwright, and Terry Bastian of Waterflowers began as a class project and quickly became a shared school and community experience.

Fleet Bank of Massachusetts sponsored a contest throughout the state looking for community service projects. An application, with a detailed description of the Woodward/Central project, was submitted and selected as second place recipient of a $5000 award. The donation from the bank will be used toward the continued improvement of the pond.

Students were presented the check from members of the Boston Celtics and participated in a basketball clinic at The Woodward School.

The pond is located directly behind Central Middle School. The Woodward students are continuing the project again this year.

THE CHINA SYNDROME

Hong Kong Flu, Beijing Type A — now that the flu season is upon us once again, names like these will probably start showing up in the news. Did you ever wonder why strains of flu often have Asian names? The reason is that every year about this time new strains of flu migrate west from Asia, especially from China. Vaccine scientists who track these bugs have two theories for the Asia connection: 1) China, in particular, is meticulous about identifying and reporting new strains of flu, and 2) Asia produces an exceptional number of new viruses every year. Among the possibilities for these flu mutations are crowded living conditions, as well as rural contamination from livestock.

P.S. The elderly and people with certain medical conditions are often advised to get flu shots before the season begins. Ask your doctor!

Keeping yourself in good health with the proper nutrition, enough rest, and routine exercise is your best fortification for your immune system. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to help. We are at 700 congress St., Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS.

'Capping Off Ceremony' At Fr. Bill's Saturday

A "Capping Off Ceremony" for the newly-expanded Fr. Bill's Place will be held Saturday at noon at the homeless shelter, 38 Broad St., Quincy.

The ceremony will mark the completion of the erection of steel for the new addition to the shelter. The work, a major step in the construction of the addition, was the result of a coordinated effort among the private and public sector and organized labor.

The steel is being erected through the donated labor of the Ironworkers Local 7. The steel, valued at over $80,000, is being donated by Doral Steel and Can-Am, a Canadian company based in Easton. The cranes and rigging are being donated by Shawmut Crane and Rigging. Present for the ceremony will also be Roofers Local 33, who will be constructing the roof the following week.

Fr. Bill's Place is a shelter and full human service agency for homeless adults. The long-needed expansion is meant to increase the capacity for homeless women, to add a "wet shelter" to serve chronic addicts and alcoholics, and to provide additional space for the many services offered by the shelter.

The project is a collaboration between the South Shore Building Trades Council and its various union members, the City of Quincy, and numerous companies in the construction industry. The constituent member unions of the South Shore Building Trades have contributed thousands of hours of work to the project.

"It's just a bunch of good guys wanting to do something good," said Jack Murphy, president of Doral Steel of the willingness of so many people to help.

Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Parish in Quincy Center and one of the founders of the shelter 10 years ago said, "This effort means many more people off the street and moving out of homelessness. There is no way we could have done this without the help of the unions, companies and City of Quincy and the South Shore Community."

A small reception will follow Saturday's ceremony.

Festival Committee To Meet Oct. 8

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee will meet Wednesday, Oct. 8 at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF ABS

The Highway Loss Data Institute (a nonprofit research group funded by insurance companies) reported early in 1994 that anti-lock braking systems (ABS) were not preventing crashes. Further research by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety helps to explain HLDI's findings. The fact is that researchers have concluded that half of the owners of cars with ABS do not know how to use it. Most importantly, ABS requires steady, firm pressure on the brake pedal; no pumping of the brake pedal by the driver is necessary. In addition, owners of cars with ABS should not see it as a license to drive irresponsibly. ABS is not an anti-skid system. It is an anti-lock system that prevents the wheels from locking and permits drivers to steer their cars during hard braking on slippery surfaces.

HINT: ABS will not significantly reduce stopping distances on dry surfaces, nor will it prevent cornering skids or power skids.

For all your automotive needs and wants, come to LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. We look forward to putting our years of training and experience to work for you and your vehicle. From a simple lubrication and filter change to maintaining such complex systems as ABS we are here for you. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. You'll find us conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550. The tours, which are being presented by the Mass Bay RRE and Metropolitan District Commission, will be held at 1 p.m. on Oct. 5 and 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Oct. 25 and 26.

Participants will explore the remnants of the first chartered commercial railway in the nation, which was located in West Quincy and East Milton.

Sites that will be visited on the guided, limited capacity, three-hour van tour (some walking is included) are the preserved 1826 railway terminus at Bunker Hill Ledge, several extant segments of the old right-of-way, several quarries with picturesque views, the 1830 double-track incline, the stone Neponset River wharf, and several structures significant to the granite, iron and railroad industries in Quincy.

Participants will meet at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center. Pickup will also be available at the Cedar Grove MBTA Station at 8:30 a.m.

Pre-registration is required. For more information, call Vic Campbell at 282-6713 weekdays from 1 to 5 p.m.

COUGHLIN

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Dear Voter

All of us have a stake in the education of our children as their future and our own depends on it. My three children are wonderful reasons for me to be involved but my concern is for more than my children. That's why I've worked with children in the court system for nearly twenty years and volunteered in the community as a coach, cub scout leader, PTO and Parent Advisory Council member.

My wife Domenica, a former high school teacher and a licensed child care provider, and I devote our lives to children. Like you, we believe there is no more important task than caring for and educating all our children.

I humbly ask you for your support so that together we can continue to advance improvements in our schools and the best interests of our children.

Thank you,

Kevin

Josiah Quincy House Now National Landmark

Congressman Bill Delahunt announces that the Josiah Quincy House, an historic structure in Wollaston, has been officially designated as a national landmark.

Delahunt, who had pressed for its designation since last spring, joined National Park Service officials in touring the structure Sept. 22 to underscore its historic significance and its potential to help boost the region's tourist economy.

"The designation of the Josiah Quincy House as a national historic landmark is a fitting compliment to the properties that comprise the Adams National Historic Site," said Delahunt, a member of the House Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands.

"Taken together, they afford both the historian and the tourist insight into the lives of several of Quincy's--and the nation's--most important historical figures," he added.

In a letter last March urging the National Park Service to approve the designation, Delahunt called the Quincy home "an outstanding example of American Colonial Georgian architecture with integrity of materials, design, and workmanship."

The House has been relatively unaltered since it was built in 1770, unlike many comparable houses of its era. Several features, such as the monitor roof and the entrance portico, are rare examples of these architectural forms.

On the building's history, Delahunt wrote: "The Quincy family, several generations of which resided in the House, made significant contributions to the political, economic, educational and cultural life of the nation. Josiah Quincy was a neighbor of John Adams, a supporter of the revolution and friend of many of its leaders, including George Washington and Benjamin Franklin. His son Josiah II followed in his father's footsteps as a skilled writer and orator for the revolutionary cause. As a summer resident of the home, Josiah Quincy III continued the family tradition of public service, as mayor of Boston and president of Harvard University. Included among the guests at the Josiah Quincy House during his residence were John and John Quincy Adams, Lafayette, James Monroe and Daniel Webster."

JOSIAH QUINCY HOMESTEAD

The property, built in 1770, is now part of the National Park Service's Historic Landmark Program, the purpose of which is to focus attention on properties of exceptional value to the nation as a whole, rather than a particular state or locality. The designation also offers federal grant and tax incentives for rehabilitation. It also ensures the ongoing assistance of the National Park Service.

The final decision on designation was made by the National Park System Advisory Board, after review of public comments.

Flynn On Governor Bid: 'I Really Want To Do It'

other less subtle signs that he'll be a candidate. For instance, green and white bumper stickers declaring "Ray Flynn Governor '98" have been seen on cars around town.

Flynn downplayed the stickers as a sign of support from friends.

"There were a number of my friends who were waiting for and hoping that I'd be coming back as US ambassador to the Vatican and get back into politics. I'm getting a lot of encouragement from people. There's a lot of grass root supports. Unions, church groups, neighborhood organizations, civic organizations, political people, average people. That's where I'll get the base of my support."

Flynn was asked about another potential candidate: former Cong. Brian Donnelly who is finishing up his stint as US ambassador to Trinidad. Flynn said he and Donnelly have not talked about the former congressman's future political plans.

"Brian and I are very good friends. He and I will always be on the same team. He's a very special friend."

Flynn said his accomplishments as mayor of Boston from 1983 to 1993 have him "well-prepared" for the challenges as the state's chief executive.

"When I first got elected, Boston had a huge deficit, the bond rating was below investment grade, police stations and fire stations had been closed, firefighters and police officers had been laid off, our schools were in receivership, and our housing authority was in receivership.

"When I left almost 10 years later, we (Boston) had the highest bond rating in the city's history. We had consecutive years of balanced budgets, we had the highest number of police officers and firefighters on the job and we built a number of very important projects. Twenty-five percent of the entire economy in Boston in its history was generated during that period of time that I was mayor.

"I have a record of creating jobs in the private sector. But more importantly than that is the fact that a lot of the people that I see and hear mention there's a certain elitism that exists in politics today. People don't really understand working class people. They don't understand that while the economy may be good, there are a lot of people who are not benefiting all that significantly from the economy."

Flynn said he met one man at the Egg and I restaurant Tuesday morning. The man and his wife work three jobs to support three children.

"They are working longer, they are working harder and their salaries collectively are not able to keep pace with the pressures and demands of paying the bills and putting kids through school, paying the car payments and paying the mortgage.

"While the economy is good for people down on Wall Street, the economy is not as good for a lot of people that some of these wealthy individuals tell us that it is," Flynn said.

Flynn considers himself a political underdog. He was then asked whether he could raise enough money to be elected governor.

"Europeans think that government is for sale in America, that it's going to the highest bidder. You have the influence of money in politics; it's very, very damaging.

"I think money is corrupting politics in America today. I think it's having too much of an influence. I'm not going to be able to raise the money that some of these other (candidates) are going to raise and quite frankly I don't want to. I don't think the governorship of Massachusetts or for any other state is for sale. It shouldn't go to the highest bidder.

"My base of support will come from people who work for the gas company, who work for the Edison company, who work for a living, have average pay and good families. It'll come from blue collar people."

Senior Citizen Safety Zones Durkin Meeting Topic Oct. 9

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin will hold a meeting on Senior Citizen Safety Zones on Thursday, Oct. 9 at 11 a.m. in the City Council Office at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Durkin will discuss ways of establishing such zones through legislation and combating speeding on Clay St. in Wollaston.

Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, Sen. Michael Morrissey, and Reps. Michael Bellotti and Stephen Tobin have been invited to attend.

the partnership. Sheets said the city will use the money it receives for its other recreational facilities and parks.

Sheets said during the first two months of construction--scheduled to begin yesterday--the Quarry Hills project will clear and prepare the West Quincy site for construction activities and complete additional work to ensure safe and environmentally sound fill transport, receipt and site management. The work will include:

•Installation of environmental protection measures, including erosion and sediment controls, noise barriers, dust controls and protection of historic and archaeological resources.

•Construction of a new I-93 southbound off-ramp for direct truck access to Ricciuti Drive and the Quarry Hills site and providing of improved access for all traffic to the Furnace Brook Parkway interchange.

•Rehabilitation and upgrading of Willard Street.

•Widening and rehabilitation of Ricciuti Drive to provide dedicated truck lanes.

•Setting up of facilities and safeguards for receiving fill, soil testing, and truck cleaning.

Construction is expected to be operating at full schedule before the end of the year and will last for approximately four years. Quarry Hills Associates expects to have the recreational facility ballparks operations in June 1999 and the golf course and remaining facilities completed and fully operational by 2002.

The work will take place around the clock and, for the most part, six days a week. Work will take place Monday at 7 a.m. through Saturday at 11 p.m., 24 hours a day. There generally will be no work on Sundays or holidays, although exceptional situations may require work on those days.

Construction of the new I-93 southbound off-ramp will require blasting of ledge. The work will begin next Monday and continue for two weeks. Blasting will take place daily at 4 and 11 p.m.

Further details about the work is expect to be given to nearby residents and the media as soon as possible.

Richard Coughlin Named Realtor Of The Year

Richard Coughlin, owner/broker of the firm of Coughlin & Company of Weymouth was named 1997 Realtor of the Year by the South Shore Association of Realtors at recent award ceremonies at Barker Taverns in Scituate.

Coughlin received the honor for his outstanding contributions and dedication to the Realtor Association and the real estate profession. A member of the association since 1982, he has been on the Board of Directors since 1988, as well as a member of numerous other committees including Make America Better, Education and Video, Nominating, Grievance, Equal Opportunity, Professional Standards, Strategic Planning, Board Orientation, Government Affairs, and Multiple Listing Service.

Coughlin, South Shore Association 1997 board president, has been a state director and member of the State's Professional Standards Committee.

He has been very active in community activity for the Town of Weymouth, where currently serves as a member and past president of Weymouth Music Parents Association; has served on the Fair Housing Commission and Affordable Housing Committee, is past president of the Weymouth Republican Town Committee, a regular participant in Quincy Community Action's First Time Home Buyer Program, and a frequent guest host and Regular Election Analyst for Cox Communications (now Media One) Viewpoint show.

Present at the awards banquet were his wife, Cheryl, their two children, Jamie and Tim, his mother, Eva; and other family members, friends, and business associates. Over 140 members, guests, and friends were in attendance.

As local Realtor of the Year, Coughlin's name will be placed in nomination for receipt of the Massachusetts Realtor of the Year Award to be presented at the Massachusetts Association of Realtors Convention to be held in Boston.

Smoke Detectors the Key To Saving Lives in Fires

News USA

(NU) - Smoke detectors won't prevent a fire from breaking out in your home. But if fire strikes, they can provide the early warning necessary for you and your family to escape and survive.

In fact, the chances of surviving a residential fire nearly double when a working smoke detector is present.

The statistics on fire make a very strong case for smoke detectors. According to the United States Fire Administration, a division of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, no smoke detectors were present in 43 percent of fatal fires studied. Moreover, 90 percent of all fire deaths involving children occur in homes without working smoke detectors.

Research indicates that one-third of all smoke detectors in U.S. households do not operate due to dead or missing batteries. This may explain why approximately 35,000 Americans are killed or injured in residential fires every year.

"Our message is simple. Install smoke detectors and keep them maintained. It's one of the simplest and most important safety steps you can do for your family," says U.S. Fire Administrator Carye Brown. "The prevention steps you take today may save a life tomorrow."

The USFA offers these simple steps to ensure your smoke detector will protect you and your family when you need it most:

- Have smoke detectors installed on each level of your home.
- Replace the batteries at least once a year.
- Keep your smoke detectors clean by vacuuming over and around them regularly.
- As with any electrical product, smoke detectors wear out. Replace your smoke detector at least every 10 years.

Firefighters caution against disabling smoke detectors when cooking. Should your smoke detector alarm as a result of cooking fumes, clear the air with a towel or fan but do not remove the batteries. If you take out the batteries, you may forget to replace them.

A different location for your smoke detector may be necessary if it repeatedly alarms because of cooking fumes.

"The United States still has one of the highest fire death rates in the industrialized world," says Brown. "While we have been making great progress over the years in reducing fire deaths and injuries, we still have a long way to go. Having working smoke detectors installed in your home is your best protection against fatal fires."

A Sure Cure For Toliets That Won't Shut Off

(NAPS)—It often starts with a gurgle that won't stop until you jiggle the handle. But that won't truly fix a sneaky but wasteful leak that leads to bigger water bills.

You could even be wasting thousands of gallons due to a virtually silent leak. Here's how to easily reveal it: remove the tank lid, then flush. As the tank refills, add several drops of dark food coloring to the tank water. Wait at least 20 minutes. If any trace of color appears in the toilet bowl, you have a leak.

Why not tackle the troublesome toilet now, during National Toilet Repair Month?

If your toilet won't shut off until you jiggle the handle, you have a wasteful leak.

Toilet tank leaks are America's most common household plumbing repair according to Fluidmaster, the world's leading repair parts manufacturer. They say too many homeowners settle for a quick fix when they would benefit far more from a toilet "tune-up."

With little effort, non-professionals can perform a toilet tune-up by installing a new fill valve, flapper, tank lever/handle and water supply connector. It takes just over an hour and uses four replacement parts found in almost any hardware store or home center for a total cost of $20 or less.

A toilet tune-up is a wise use of time since the tank is already empty for even a single-part repair. It's a step beyond a minor repair, but the reward is years and years of quiet, efficient flushes.

South Shore Habitat Events Raise $12,000

South Shore Habitat for Humanity (SSHH) raised $12,000 through two recent fundraising events.

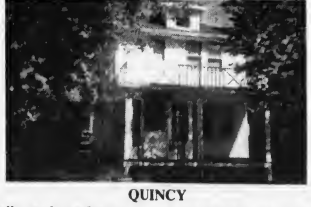
The Hike for Humanity was held Sept. 20 at the Blue Hills Reservation. More than 150 hikers walked trails of varying difficulty for the non-profit group dedicated to building homes with low-income South Shore families. Hikers' pledges added up to $9,000.

That money, along with the $3,000 raised at the Sept. 24 golf tournament held at the Lakeville Country Club, will help to fund Habitat's current building projects.

SSHH is currently building in Marshfield, Whitman and Sharon. Starting in November, the organization will begin construction on three of 10 homes to be part of the Granite Village subdivision in Quincy. One of those homes will be built by all-woman crew.

SSHH also has recently obtained deeds to land in Rockland and Pembroke, where houses eventually will be built.

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is a ecumenical, Christian organization dedicated to eliminating substandard housing on the South Shore. To date, SSHH has built 13 homes with families in need.



Habitat is not a giveaway program. Selected families must work 500 hours building their own or additional homes. The homes are sold to the families through long-term, no-interest mortgages. The money received through mortgage payments is recycled through a Fund for Humanity, which is used to build additional housing.

For more information about Habitat, call 843-9080.

Bragg Addresses Issues

School Committeewoman Jo-Ann Bragg, who is seeking re-election Nov. 4, recently discussed issues important to education at a Candidates' Night in Houghs Neck and at several neighborhood gatherings throughout the city.

Bragg said she draws upon her 15-plus years of involvement as an active parent in every level of the school system--she has worked on many issues over the years, including the fight to re-open the Wollaston and Beechwood Knoll Schools, building additions onto the Bernazzani and Parker Schools, and building the new Marshall Elementary School.

Bragg outlined three key issues that are central to her candidacy: "Improving the maintenance of our school buildings, using technology to enhance our curriculum and making our schools safer."

Former president of the Citywide Parents' Council, she created and led the first Citywide Parents' Council Maintenance Subcommittee in the 1980s, which toured all of Quincy's school buildings and listened to staff about their concerns.

"I have fought for better maintenance of our schools. Little by little things have improved but much more needs to be done," Bragg said.

Bragg said she supports creating a 10-year master maintenance plan and currently serves on the Mayor's School Building Assistance task force, whose mission is to create that master plan.

"We need to address the system as a whole, figure out what needs to be done, determine which are the most critical areas, and set a year-by-year plan into action. This will include making all our buildings handicap accessible," she said.

Quincy is about to experience the largest infusion of computers and technology capabilities in its history. All schools will soon be able to share information with people all over the world. This summer and fall, school buildings are being wired to accommodate computers in every classroom, along with nearly 1,000 Internet connections. Over $150,000 has been spent on technology training for teachers, and hardware has been ordered.

"Quincy has received over $235,000 in a state grant to be used for technology," Bragg said. "This is the largest given to any city or town in the Commonwealth. On top of a $1.6 million bond passed by the City Council in 1996, this will put Quincy way ahead of other communities. We need to continue moving forward on this track."

Bragg also serves on the School Committee's Health and Safety Subcommittee, which is reviewing ways to make Quincy schools safer, and working with Mayor James Sheets to implement improvements.

"Students and everyone who works in or visits our schools need to feel they are in a safe environment so all efforts can be focused on education," she said. "I have supported increases in our security staff and equipment, and created a system wide CPR/First Aid Policy, making free training available to all staff, including coaches. In the last four years, hundreds have been trained and the program has been expanded to students.

"These are the issues I see as essential to moving our children's education forward into the next century."

Low-Income Residents Eligible For Red Cross Training Program

Low-income (AFDC) South Shore residents are eligible to register for a 12-week American Red Cross training program that offers a dual certification as a nurse assistant and home health aide and job placement for successful graduates.

The course, which is limited to 12 people, begins Monday, Oct. 20 and will meet Monday through Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until Jan. 16 at the Quincy Red Cross Office, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Residents from Quincy, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Halifax, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Kingston, Marshfield, Middleborough, Milton, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth, Plympton, Randolph, Rockland, Scituate and Weymouth are eligible.

The Red Cross is able to offer the course because of a contract awarded by the South Coastal Career Development Administration. Interested applicants must meet with a client services representative at the South Coastal Office.

Red Raiders Visit Ply. South Friday

Turnovers, Missed Tackles Haunt NQ In Loss To Falmouth

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Shoddy tackling and costly turnovers resulted in the North Quincy High School football team's 40-12 loss to Falmouth last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Red Raiders, 0-2 for the first time under head coach Ken McPhee, seek their initial victory Friday night at 7 when they visit Plymouth South in an Old Colony League battle.

"I told the kids, 'We've got eight games to turn this around,'" said McPhee, in his 16th year as NQ's head coach. "We're not as bad a team as we've shown so far. We've done some things right, but mistakes have cost us a couple of games."

In the OCL defeat by Falmouth (1-1), the Red Raider defense was unable to contain running back Jamal Branch, who broke numerous tackles en route to a four-touchdown performance. Branch (191 all-purpose yards) scored on runs of 37, 33, 15 and 46 yards.

"That was probably the worst defensive game we've played since I've been coaching here," said McPhee. "We were in position to make the plays, but we just didn't tackle anyone, and you can't expect to win doing that."

North junior quarterback Chris Bregoli (7-for-14, 90 yards), under pressure and forced to roll out most of the game, threw the first of his four interceptions midway through the first quarter. Five plays later, Branch raced 37 yards up the middle for his first touchdown and Isaac Hendricks booted the extra point for a 7-0 Falmouth lead.

On the ensuing kickoff, Jason Turner provided North with excellent field position with a 47-yard return. On the drive's second play, Turner (17 carries, 122 yards) was sprung free by a Matt Kane block and raced down the left sideline for a 42-yard touchdown. The extra point try by Mike Powers sailed wide left as Falmouth clung to a one-point advantage.

Early in the second, Branch juked and deked out Red Raider defenders for a 33-yard scoring romp. Hendricks' extra point pushed Falmouth further ahead, 14-6.

After an interception, Falmouth drove 90 yards on six plays, culminating in a 15-yard scoring run by Branch. Falmouth led, 20-6, at the half.

On its first possession of the second half, North moved the ball 84 yards for a touchdown that cut the deficit to 20-12. Among the drive's highlights were a 34-yard catch by Mark Stanton and a 19-yard run by Turner, who capped the drive with a 9-yard scoring jaunt. North opted for the two-point conversion, but Turner was stopped short of the goal line.

Branch put the game out of reach just before the third quarter ended, breaking tackles in the left flat and racing across the field en route to a 46-yard score.

Bregoli's third and fourth interceptions resulted in two late Falmouth touchdowns.

"Our offense moved the ball well a bunch of times," said McPhee, "but we made mistakes and broke down."

RED RAIDER TAILBACK Jay Turner, who rushed for 122 yards in North's loss to Falmouth last Friday, races 42 yards for the first of his two touchdowns.

YOUTH FOOTBALL

Just one team--the North Quincy Apaches--remains undefeated through the third week of action in the Quincy Youth Football League.

The Apaches (3-0) and Houghs Neck Manets (2-1) battle Sunday as part of a tripleheader that begins at 1 p.m. at Milton High School's field. The other games pit the West Quincy Elks (2-1) against the Milton Mustangs (0-3), and the Squantum Storm (1-2) against the Quincy Point Panthers (1-2).

This past Sunday, the Apaches handed the Elks their first loss, 24-14. Apache running backs Pat Bregoli (two touchdowns) and Ryan Farnham led the ground attack behind solid blocking by linemen Joe Sudak, Scott MacDonald, Neil Gavin, Gabe Parsons and Chris Marinelli.

In the second quarter, Bregoli raced 30 yards for a touchdown and quarterback Charlie Sorrento hit Joe Fitzpatrick for the two-point conversion. Following an Elks fumble, Sorrento passed to Bregoli, who scampered 50 yards for his second touchdown. Sorrento carried the ball in for the two-pointer and a 16-0 lead.

In the second half, the Elks scored their first touchdown but missed the conversion, making the score 16-6. The Apaches added to their lead when Sorrento rushed for a touchdown, then hit Farnham for the two-pointer and a 24-6 lead. The Elks went on an impressive drive in the fourth quarter for their second touchdown and made the two-point conversion, but got no closer.

Playing well defensively for the Apaches were linebackers Joe Burke, Charlie Vidoli, Dennis Thomson and MacDonald, while Sudak, Sorrento and Kevin Gaughan all turned in strong efforts on the defensive line.

The Elks ground attack was paced by the slashing inside running of backs Scott Kelly, Dan DiNardo and Mike Ryan, who ran behind the line of center Chris Sullivan, Brian Gately, Matt Tupe, Norman Yen, Chris Kerr and tight ends Pat Duff and Sean Bovert.

In other action, the Manets hung on to beat the Squantum Storm, 12-6. The Manets got on the board first when Paul Flynn raced 60 yards for a touchdown. Danny Galligan also had big

Presidents Host Taunton Friday

Bessette, Trojans Overpower Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Stopping explosive Bridgewater-Raynham running back Doug Bessette was the unenviable task facing the Quincy High School football team last Saturday.

The Presidents held Bessette and the potent Trojan offense in check early, but three third-quarter touchdowns sparked the Trojans to a 35-13 home victory.

Quincy (2-1) will look to bounce back and pick up an OCL victory Friday night at 7 when it hosts Taunton (0-2-1). The Tigers have scored just 15 points in three games while allowing 81.

"I think we have a good chance of defeating Taunton," said Chella, "but we have to play well throughout and keep our mistakes to a minimum, because they do have some athletes and are capable of beating us."

Chella said he reminded the team about what happened against Taunton last year, when Quincy visited the Tigers and had six turnovers in a 15-13 loss.

"We went down there thinking we had the superior team, then we turned the ball over six times, including an interception return for a touchdown," he said. "We gained 360 yards of offense, but it didn't matter, because we lost the game."

Against B-R, Quincy got on the board first, taking a 6-0 lead into the second quarter. Jim Quigley recovered a fumbled punt at Trojans' 47-yard line. Quarterback Kevin Moore then connected with Bryan Dunn on a 36-yard pass play for a first down at B-R's 11. Faherty's two-yard scoring run, his fifth of the season, gave Quincy the lead--temporarily.

"I though we stayed with them for a half, and I was impressed with our offense which gained 200 yards in the first half," said Chella. "But it's tough to contain a runner like Bessette for too long, and he came alive in the second and third quarters."

Bessette (16 carries, 225 yards) erupted for second-quarter touchdown runs of 72 and 59 yards to send the Trojans (2-1) into the half with a 14-6 lead.

Bessette's two first-half scores were a sign of things to come as he added touchdown runs of 29 and 13 yards in the third quarter.

"He is the best back in the OCL," said Chella. "You leave just a little opening and he explodes through it. He doesn't need much room. If you're out of position, he's pretty much gone."

Sandwiched between Bessette's third-quarter scores was a 54-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Mark Nixon to Abe Bascon.

"They just wore us down in the third," said Chella. "They pounded the ball inside over and over, using their strength on the offensive line to overpower the defense. They have some big athletes on the offensive line and used them to their advantage."

Quincy's Tom Kelly closed out the scoring with a 10-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter.

VOLLEYBALL

Improving Red Raiders, Presidents Clash Tonight

Following sluggish starts, the North Quincy and Quincy High School girls' volleyball squads have been on a roll lately, setting the stage for an entertaining showdown when the Red Raiders host the Presidents tonight (Thursday) at 7.

Both teams tuned up with matches yesterday (Wednesday). North visited Plymouth South for a 4 p.m. match and Quincy hosted Silver Lake at 4 p.m.

The Presidents, who lost their first three matches, rebounded to claim victories last week over Durfee, Taunton and Falmouth.

"We are playing better as a team, but it's still a question of consistency," said Quincy head coach Tom Henderson. "When we play well, we can play with anybody. When we don't play well, we can't beat anybody. It's that simple."

Henderson viewed tonight's match against North Quincy as a stepping stone for the Presidents, who have not beaten the Red Raiders in seven years.

"I hope the girls will be geared up for this one," he said. "We haven't won a match against them since 1990, so that may be a psychological hump we need to get over.

"As a coach, you stay positive and try to convince them they can win, but they have to believe in themselves and each other. I think it'll be a good match; if we play the way we have been and work as a team, we should have a chance to win."

In a 2-1 victory over Falmouth, the Presidents were paced by senior Erin Barry (14 kills, 10 digs) and Mary Chenette (five kills, 10 digs). Quincy won the match, 15-13, 8-15, 15-11.

Quincy had an easy time of it against Taunton, sweeping the Tigers in two games, 15-2, 15-1. Colleen Nichol had three kills for the Presidents.

Barry (13 kills, five digs and two blocks) and senior Danielle Robertson (nine digs, two service aces) paced the Presidents to a 2-1 triumph over Durfee. Quincy won, 15-7, 6-15, 16-14.

Meanwhile, the Red Raiders have won their last two matches, including a three-game victory over powerful Medway, and are looking forward to facing their crosstown rivals.

"This is a big one for us," said North Quincy head coach Jim Rendle. "I think it'll be a great match, because of the natural rivalry and because we're two very equal teams. However you slice it, the match should live up to its billing."

Monday, the Red Raiders knocked off Medway, 2-1, with a 12-15, 15-7, 15-6 triumph. North was sparked by the strong serving of junior Alexis Miranda and senior Katie Sweetser.

"This match was huge for a number of reasons," said Rendle. "We played very well against a big, strong team and got better with each game.

"We're really starting to come around and play as a team. You need a strong team effort to beat a squad like Medway and we got it. I'm pretty enthused; this was a real positive win."

At the net, sophomore Katie Jellison led the Red Raiders with 11 kills. Junior Angela Scott added nine kills and sophomore Jessica Lorman contributed two blocks and four kills.

"Megan O'Donnell played her best match of the year," said Rendle. "She had 26 assists and seven kills, playing a major role in this win."

Rendle also commended the efforts of the back row defense, which included senior captain Kerry Skehan, Kim Huerth and Allison Haddad.

In a sweep of Silver Lake, the Red Raiders' standouts were seniors Kelly Fernandez (eight service points) and Jenny Nielson (five kills). North won the match, 15-10, 15-5.

gains running the ball.

The Storm threatened to score but the Manets' defensive line held its ground. The Manets' Donnie Brooks blocked two punts, one of which was recovered by Dan Durocher for a touchdown and a 12-0 lead.

The Storm cut the deficit to 12-6 with a touchdown and were on the verge of scoring again with some long passes downfield. However, the Manet defensive line of Brian Chenette, Flynn, Jordan Virtue, Brooks, Andrew McWalter, Paul Picarski, Shawn Richardson, Michael Sullivan and Sean Munchbach stopped the Storm at the Manets' 5-yard line when the game ended.

In other action, the Panthers played a solid all-around game to earn their first win, knocking off the Mustangs, 28-12. Panthers quarterback Michael Lorenzano scored a touchdown and passed for two more. Kris Kamborian threw a key block to allow Lorenzano to race 73 yards for the first score.

The Panthers' James LaFleur caught a TD pass, Mike Regen also scored and Joey Viola recovered a fumble to set up a score. Mark Chella rushed for a touchdown and also scored a two-point conversion.

SOCCER

Woodward Soccer Opens With Three Tough Defeats

The Woodward School soccer team opened its season with losses to three strong teams--Holbrook, Chapel Hill and Thayer.

In a 4-1 loss to Holbrook, Janet McNamara scored the Woodward goal, assisted by Stacy Queripel. Tough goalkeeping by Holbrook prevented Woodward from making a comeback. Strong efforts for Woodward were turned in by goalkeeper Audrey Ferguson, Lori Mickiewicz, Elizabeth Modestino and Caitlin Barry.

In earlier action, Woodward lost to an older and more experienced Chapel Hill squad, 7-0. Standout players for Woodward were co-captain Stephanie Queripel, Alex Dunn, Stacey Queripel and Elizabeth Modestino.

Woodward opened the season against Thayer and put the pressure on early when Stephanie Queripel scored in the opening minutes. Thayer rallied to tie the game, then scored the game-winner with five minutes left to play to win, 2-1. Emily Gordon and Jamie Sabine scored for Thayer and goalkeeper Katie Fisher played well for the winners.

Strong games were played by Woodward's Lori Mickiewicz, Meaghan MacTaggart and Janet McNamara.

Recreation Dept. Offering Two Different Exercise Classes

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct two different exercise classes Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School gym, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Classes will be offered at 6:15 p.m. and 7:15 p.m. and will begin Tuesday, Oct. 7 with registration.

The 6:15 p.m. class, "Good Healthy Fun," is an aerobics class for every fitness level designed to strengthen heart and lungs, burn fat and firm muscles.

The 7:15 p.m. class, "The Bodies Sculpting/Muscle Conditioning" is a one hour total body workout designed to target all of the major muscle groups. The class will tone, firm and strengthen the whole body.

Both classes will be taught by Kelly Stewart, a certified aerobics instructor.

Registration for the program features two separate options for payment. A $30 one time fee for all classes, from Oct. 7 to Dec. 18, or a $3 fee for each individual class, payable at the time of the class. Those in the 7:15 p.m. class may also participant in the adult swim which starts at 7:55 p.m. in the pool located in the same building.

For more information, call 376-1394.

Janice Deagle Of Quincy To Compete In National Equestrian Finals Friday

Janice Deagle, an equestrian from Quincy, will compete in the 1997 Ariat National Adult Medal Finals to be held Friday at the Capital Challenge Horse Show in Washington, D.C.

Deagle is one of 30 riders to qualify through a national point standings list for this national equitation competition. She trains with Carl Catani and Abby Greer of River Wind Farm in Pembroke.

The finals are designed to test the rider's control and equestrian skills with emphasis on smoothness and harmony of horse and rider.

NQ's Stone Strikes Again In 5-0 Win Over Quincy

SOCCER

By LIAM FITZGERALD

History repeated itself when the girls' soccer teams from North Quincy High School and Quincy High School clashed last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The last time the two rivals met was in the 1996 season finale, when North Quincy forward Betsy Stone, then a sophomore, netted both goals in a 2-0 victory over the Presidents.

This time around, Stone notched two goals (her fifth and sixth of the season) and also had an assist as North again shut out Quincy, 5-0, in Old Colony League action.

"I feel we dominated this game," said North Quincy head coach Paul Bregoli. "All the girls played well and made some big contributions. Betsy came up big with a couple of goals that put it out of reach.

"(Senior forward and tri-captain) Laurie Flynn was phenomenal and (senior defender) Erin Tormey and (senior forward) Marybeth Feeney both made some nice plays."

North Quincy (5-3-2) controlled the play early, keeping the ball in Quincy's end. Flynn broke the scoreless tie 10 minutes into the game, taking a pass from Stone and blasting a shot that eluded Quincy's starting keeper, Jessica DiBona. The goal was Flynn's seventh of the season and placed her third in the OCL in scoring (seven goals and four assists for 11 points).

The Red Raiders added to their lead when sophomore center midfielder Ashley Murphy lofted a high shot that DiBona leapt for, got her hands on but could not keep out of the net. The goal, Murphy's fifth, gave North a 2-0 advantage with 13:30 left in the half.

Early in the second half, North went up 3-0 when Stone put a rebound past keeper Jen Grogan, who replaced DiBona after the first half for Quincy (1-7-1).

Crisp passing by the Red Raiders resulted in their fourth goal. Controlling the ball at the Quincy end, Flynn crossed the ball towards the net, where Stone headed it in for her second goal.

North junior keeper Kristen Bowes, who recorded her fifth shutout, squashed Quincy's best chance to score with 18 minutes to play. Quincy freshman halfback Katie McEvoy carried the ball alone down the left side, only to have Bowes come up with a slide tackle to clear the ball away.

The game's final tally came with 3:20 left when North sophomore forward Caitlyn O'Donnell tapped it by Grogan as a number of players battled for the ball out front.

As the game drew to a close, North nearly added to its lead, but Grogan came up with save after save to deny the Raiders another goal.

"Jen's a good, all-around player who made a very big save at the end," said Quincy head coach Robin Welinsky. "That last shot was a goal for sure if she didn't knock it away."

Despite the loss, Welinsky praised her players for the effort and determination they showed on the field.

THE GIRLS' SOCCER team at North Quincy High School jumped out to a 5-3-2 recordthrough 10 games, thanks in large part to the efforts of talented senior tri-captains, from left, Laurie Flynn (forward), Kristen Keohane (midfielder) and Katie Koch (defender). At right is North's head coach Paul Bregoli, who has received significant contributions from his entire squad.

"I though we played exceptionally well," she said. "We hustled throughout and were much stronger in the second half. I told the girls they had nothing to be ashamed about. We have a lot of talent on this team, and I'm proud of all the girls."

Welinsky cited the top-notch performances of senior tri-captains Kara McSweeney (sweeper), Leanne Martin (center halfback) and Marisa Ross (outside halfback), senior outside halfback Kerry Duffy, senior defender Becky Mackey, senior halfback/forward Laura McEvoy, freshman halfback Katie McEvoy, sophomore Kelly Raymer and junior Julie Gibbons on outside defense and senior Michelle Boncek and junior Kim DiBona, stoppers.

Quincy, which lost to Silver Lake earlier in the week, played Taunton Tuesday. Today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., Quincy visits Dennis-Yarmouth and next Monday at 4 p.m., the Presidents host Bridgewater-Raynham.

The Red Raiders earned a 2-2 tie against league-leading B-R last Wednesday, battling back from a 2-0 deficit with two second-half goals. North scored on a throw-in from Flynn to senior Leela Shankar, who passed off to Murphy for the score. Five minutes later, the Red Raiders got the equalizer on a similar play, from Flynn to Stone to Murphy.

North was back in action Tuesday at Plymouth South and hosts Falmouth today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. Next Monday at 4 p.m., North visits Barnstable and next Wednesday at 4 p.m., North travels to Silver Lake.

NQ Rallies From Two- Goal Deficit, Ties Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Two second-half goals enabled the North Quincy High School boys' soccer team to tie Quincy High School, 2-2, last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North Quincy senior midfielder John Barron, who injured his right ankle in the first half but returned to action, notched the game-tying goal with 16 minutes to play.

With the ball bouncing in front of him, Quincy keeper Joe Vallatini came out to beat Barron to the ball, but Barron controlled it, maneuvered around Vallatini and deposited the ball into the wide open net.

"John had rolled his ankle earlier, but got it taped up and gave us a huge lift," said North Quincy head coach Robert Dano. "He was probably hurting a bit, but he's tough and he really came through for us."

Senior forward Bill Norris, who earlier cut North's deficit to 2-1 on a tough-angle goal, nearly gave the Red Raiders (1-8-1) the lead on a few occasions, but Vallatini came up strong to preserve the tie.

"We had so many chances, and to come up with just two goals is a little disappointing," said Dano. "But it was nice to see us come back and play a lot better, a lot more aggressive in the second half."

The Presidents (1-6-1) also had their own opportunities to re-take the lead, but three late corner kicks and a header by junior midfielder Jim Sullivan were all turned away.

While impressed by his team's overall performance, Quincy head coach Ray Papile pointed out a second-half letdown that opened the door for a North Quincy comeback.

"We got a couple of goals early, but we broke down for about six or seven minutes in the second half and let up mentally," he said. "When you play North and go ahead early, there's a tendency to let down, and I think we did a little."

Early in the first half, Quincy took the upper hand on a penalty kick goal by senior co-captain and forward Jared Downey less than three minutes into the game.

Five minutes later, Quincy junior defender Scott Staiti lofted the ball into the area, where senior co-captain and midfielder Eddie Smith headed it into the net for a 2-0 Presidents' lead.

"Jared and Eddie are our leaders; I can't say enough about them," said Papile. "Jared just plays his heart out every game and Eddie is a talented player who scored a great goal on that header."

Playing aggressive soccer, Quincy had a few more scoring opportunities in the half but could not convert them into goals. Downey launched a blast from outside the area, but North keeper Robbie Bell snared it out of the air.

"I thought Robbie played his best game ever," said Dano. "He robbed them a number of times and kept us in the game. He deserves a lot of credit."

Later in the half, Vallatini twice outleapt Red Raiders for the ball, preventing North from getting on the scoreboard. On a subsequent rush by NQ's Norris, Vallatini moved forward to cut down the angle and blocked Norris' scoring attempt.

"I thought Joe played a great game in net," said Papile. "He made some incredible saves and stepped up when they had the momentum in the second half."

Quincy was back in action Tuesday at Taunton. Today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., Quincy hosts Dennis-Yarmouth, then visits Dedham Friday at 4 p.m. Next Monday at 4 p.m., Quincy travels to Bridgewater-Raynham, then hosts Dedham next Wednesday at 4 p.m.

North hosted Plymouth South Tuesday. Today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., North visits Falmouth. Next Monday at 4 p.m., North hosts Barnstable and next Wednesday at 4 p.m., North travels to Silver Lake.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

"The realization that there are other points of view is the beginning of wisdom. Understanding what they are is a great step. The final test is understanding why they are held." - Charles M. Campbell

Yes, it is often difficult to understand why people do or say certain things. You have to try to be dispassionate and objective, difficult as that may be, and not let yourself become hurt or offended. Ask yourself, "Why did he say that?" "Why did he do that?"... When you understand peoples reactions, then by the use of patience and good will you can often heal their hurts and resentments.

It is a sad fact that many people sometimes go through life misunderstanding associates, friends and family. Much misunderstanding is due to the fact that a few drops of kindly understanding are not allowed to fall into the cups that would be brimming with happiness if a little understanding were present. Couldn't it be said that a little understanding can go a long way toward solving most serious situations?

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Pay closer attention this week to the younger members of your family. Some of them could be suffering emotionally. Your attention makes a world of difference.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Participating in group activities isn't favored early in the week. Concentrate instead on your future. Honesty in your assessment leads to further success.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You come to a decision about a romantic dilemma that has been on your mind for some time. The turning point leads the relationship in an exciting direction this weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Keep news of a family member's financial problem confidential. Do all you can to help, short of lending your relative money. This could lead to problems.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You are at odds with your loved one, who is preoccupied with a problem that has nothing to do with you. Don't press the issue. The weekend promises a fun social engagement.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some surprising news comes from a confidant. However, don't act too quickly. Patience is the key with this bombshell.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Stop procrastinating! Get that project off the back burner. Your efficiency turns it into a rousing success. Once the project is complete, you can relax over the weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You have a new outlook on life and restored self-confidence. This helps you attain what you have been looking for. Creative thinking helps accent romantic harmony this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Something that's been troubling you is resolved. Private talks with those involved provide the best route for success. Pay attention to details.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's a busy time, both at work and at home. However, after all of your chores are completed, you feel a deep sense of accomplishment. An associate has some eye-opening information.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You have great confidence in yourself and make things happen swiftly as a result. Your business acumen is sharp, so apply your instincts to the task at hand.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Make exciting plans for an evening get-together. However, make sure that you practice common sense. Remember — no driving if you've been drinking this weekend.

JUDY FARMER

Judy Farmer, a 30-year resident of Quincy, has joined The Bank of Canton's Quincy Banking Center as regional lending manager.

Currently working at the main office in Canton, Farmer will move to the Quincy Banking Center as soon as it opens in the early fall. She will deal with residential lending and has extensive experience working with first-time homebuyers.

"The decision to buy a house is often a very difficult one, so I try to make the mortgage process go as smoothly as possible," she said. "Every homebuyer is different, and I enjoy working to create different mortgages that are catered to each individual's needs."

Most recently from the Bank of Braintree, Farmer brings 15 years of mortgage banking experience in the Quincy and Braintree areas to her new position. She is an affiliate member of the South Shore Association of Realtors and serves on its Banking Committee.

Through Quincy Community Action, a non-profit organization, she has facilitated workshops and seminars for first-time homebuyers, and was recently awarded a plaque from the Quincy Planning Department for her outstanding service and dedication to low and moderate-income families.

Farmer, an active member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, also serves on the Cerebral Palsy Annual Auction Committee.

The Bank of Canton, a 165-year-old community bank on the South Shore, has a respected history as a mortgage lending leader.

David Nagle Senior V.P. At Boston Investment Mortgage

DAVID NAGLE

Boston Investment Mortgage Co. in Quincy has promoted David Nagle to senior vice president of mortgage origination.

The company recently moved to a new state-of-the-art headquarters at 32 Chestnut St. The facility has enabled the addition of the staff and services and the growth of the company's reputation as the area's quickest, most efficient, and most innovative mortgage originator.

Nagle received a master of science degree in management from Cambridge College and an associate of science degree from Northeastern University in Boston. He began his career with New England Telephone/NYNEX where he rose from technician to director of market development for the New England area before retiring in 1995.

Nagle lives in South Boston, where he is involved in a number of church and civic organizations, with his wife Joan and three daughters.

Katherine Hesse On Mass. Bar Foundation Board

Atty. Katherine A. Hesse of Quincy has been named a member of the Board of Trustees of the Massachusetts Bar Foundation.

Hesse is a partner in the Quincy law firm of Murphy, Hesse, Toomey and Lehane. She is a graduate of Smith College and Boston University Law School and is a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association and the Boston Bar Association.

She also serves on the Board of Directors of St. Coletta's of Massachusetts, the Cardinal Cushing School and Training Center and St. John of God Hospital and is involved with the Women's Business Connection and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The Massachusetts Bar Foundation is a charitable grantmaking organization, the philanthropic arm of the Massachusetts Bar Association, that finances programs which improve the administration of justice and provide civil and legal services for the poor.

Adams Site Seeking Temporary Laborer

The Adams National Historic Site is accepting applications through Oct. 10 for temporary employment as a laborer.

The position would be six months full-time or part-time, not to exceed 1,039 work hours within one year only.

The Adams Site includes the birthplaces of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, the Adams Peace Field estate which includes the "Old House," home to the two presidents and their decedents; a visitor center and, through a cooperative agreement, interpretative programs at the crypts of the presidents in United First Parish Church.

The position is located in the Buildings and Utilities group of the Maintenance Division at the Adams Site. The incumbent will report directly to the facility manager, and will be required to work at other sites or at sites with cooperative agreements.

To be eligible for temporary employment, applicants must be U.S. citizens, 18 years of age, and aware of the physical efforts and working conditions. To apply, submit a OF-612 Optional Application for Federal Employment or resume with proper documentation required for a federal position. Complete the Supplemental Experience Statement.

Applications must be received by Oct. 10 and should be sent to: P.O. Box 531, Quincy, MA 02269. They may be obtained by contacting the Administrative Office at 773-1177 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

LEGAL NOTICE

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT
NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING

A Design Public Hearing will be held by the Massachusetts Highway Department to discuss the proposed construction of the Quincy Center Concourse (Section 1) in the City of Quincy.

WHERE: 2nd Floor Meeting Room
Quincy City Hall
1305 Hancock Street
Quincy, MA 02169

WHEN: Thursday, October 9, 1997 @ 7:30 PM

PURPOSE: The purpose of this hearing is to provide the public an opportunity to become acquainted with this proposed roadway construction project. All views and comments made at this hearing will be reviewed and considered into the final design to the maximum extent possible.

PROPOSAL: The proposed project consists of the construction of Section 1 of the Quincy Center Concourse (QCC). The project will include the construction of a new 62 meter (200 feet) multi-span bridge over the MBTA rail corridor and adjacent parking lot, the reconstruction of 270 meters (900 feet) of Burgin Parkway, 150 meters (500 feet) of Granite Street Connector and 135 meters (450 feet) of Parkingway. It will also include installation of new traffic signals at the Burgin Parkway/QCC and the QCC/Parkingway intersections as well as pavement markings and signing.

A secure right of way is necessary for this project. Acquisitions in fee and permanent or temporary easements will be required. The City of Quincy in cooperation with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is responsible for acquiring all needed rights in private or public lands. Policies concerning land acquisitions will be discussed at this hearing.

Written views received by the Department subsequent to the date of this notice and up to five (5) days prior to the date of the hearing shall be displayed for public inspection and copying at the time and date listed above.

Written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements made at the public hearing regarding the proposed undertaking are to be submitted to Thomas Broderick, P.E., Chief Engineer, Massachusetts Highway Department, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, Massachusetts, 01226. Such submissions will also be accepted at the hearing. The final date for receipt of these statements and exhibits will be ten days after the public hearing.

Plans will be on display for one half hour before the hearing, with an Engineer in attendance to answer questions regarding this project.

City Flu Clinics To Start Oct. 25

The Quincy Health Department announces the schedule for flu clinics for Quincy residents over 18 years will be held from Oct. 25 through Nov. 7.

This year's flu shot contains the strains A/Bayern, B/Wuhan and B/Beijing to provide immunity against the types of flu which have been circulating in the past year and thought to be most likely to occur in the United States this winter.

Because influenza vaccine contains only non-infectious viruses it cannot cause influenza.

Annual vaccination against influenza is recommended for:

•Adults and children with long-term heart or lung problems including asthma.

•Residents of nursing homes and residents of other chronic care facilities who have chronic medical conditions.

•Persons over 65 years of age.

•Adults and children who have required regular medical follow-up or hospitalization during the preceding year because of chronic metabolic diseases (including diabetes mellitis, renal dysfunction, blood disorders or immunosuppression.)

•Children and teenagers (6 months to 18 years) on long term treatment with aspirin who, if they catch the flu, may be at risk of getting Reyes Syndrome.

•Health care workers.

•Women who will be in the second or third trimester of pregnancy during the influenza season.

•Household members of those providing home care to anyone in the above high-risk categories.

•Persons providing essential community services.

•Anyone who wishes to reduce his/her chances of catching the flu.

Persons who should not be vaccinated:

•Persons who have had anaphylactic reactions, hypotension, shock, urticaria, wheezing, laryngospasm (swelling of mouth or throat) to eggs or other components of the influenza vaccine.

•Persons with acute febrile illness should not be vaccinated until their temporary symptoms have abated.

Flu vaccine will only be given to Quincy residents 18 years and older. All others are advised to check with their family physician.

Shut-ins should call the Quincy Health Department, 376-1275 to arrange for a home visit by the Public Health Nurse.

Flu Clinics Schedule

The clinics schedule:

Saturday, Oct. 25: North Quincy High School (atrium), 318 Hancock St., 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 30: Squantum Elementary School (gym), 50 Huckins Ave., 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Tuesday, Nov. 4: Atherton Hough School (gym), 1084 Sea St., 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Thursday, Nov. 6: Drohan Apartments, 170 Copeland St., 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Friday, Nov. 7: Atlantic Neighborhood Center (Shuster Building), 11 Hayward St., 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Colonial Federal Savings Co-Sponsoring Budget, Money Management Program

Dedham Institution for Savings, in conjunction with Colonial Federal Savings Bank, will sponsor a Budgeting and Money Management Program Tuesday, Oct. 21 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd.

The program will be presented by the Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Massachusetts.

Topics will include, but not be limited to, setting up a realistic budget, money management techniques such as tracking expenses and setting up a schedule for bill payment, working with creditors to deal with adjusting payment due dates, and settling short and long-term financial goals and techniques for reaching these goals.

Registration is limited. Call Dedham Savings at (781) 329-6700 or (800) 462-1190, ext. 811 for reservations.

Complimentary refreshments will be served.

Free Screenings To Assess Children's Development

Free developmental screenings for children age 3 and under will be offered by Step One Early Intervention in Quincy throughout the month of October.

Through play and interaction, Step One professionals will assess with parents whether or not their children are reaching appropriate developmental milestones in any of the following areas: communication skills (such as receptive and expressive speech and language), cognitive skills, sitting, walking and feeding skills and personal and social development.

The screening schedule:

Oct. 9, South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St.; Oct. 16, Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.; Oct. 23, Ward 2 Community Center, 16 Nevada Rd.; and Oct. 30, Germantown Community Center, Snug Harbor. All screenings will be from 1 to 4 p.m.

Step One Early Intervention, a program established over 20 years ago by South Shore Mental Health, is both home and center-based and served Quincy, Randolph and Milton.

Public Hearing Thursday Night

Council For Concourse Landtakings

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Landtakings necessary to make way for the first phase of the planned Quincy Center Concourse have been backed by the City Council's Finance Committee.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton and representatives from Earth Tech Engineers made a presentation about the landtakings Monday night prior to the committee's unanimous favorable recommendation. A formal council vote will be taken at a later date.

The state-funded, $9.1 million roadway will link Hancock Street with Burgin Parkway in Quincy Center. The Massachusetts Highway Department will hold a public hearing on the project tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Plans for the concourse will be on display for 30 minutes before the hearing, with an engineer in attendance to answer questions regarding the project.

Following is a list of property owners released Monday night who will be affected by the landtakings and the amounts they will be paid by the state:

Boston City Properties (Star Market), $31,316; Trustees of 126 Granite Street Trust (TJ Maxx), $31,469; Atlantic-Quincy Realty LLC (Settles Glass), $139,683; Atlantic-Quincy Realty LLC (Paperama), $62,987; Hancock Park Limited Partnership, $2,600; Ruben A. Grossman Trust, $1,800.

Colton said officials close to the project have been in "constant contact" with area business and

Over 30-Year Period

$63.5M To Be Spent For City Water Pipes Overhaul

The city is planning to spend $63.5 million over 30 years to fix and replace Quincy's water pipes.

Beginning with Penn's Hill in South Quincy, the project includes every neighborhood in the city, according to Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton.

By the time the work is finished, he said, 160 miles of aging lead and cast-iron pipes, or 70 percent of the city's mains, will be cleaned and relined or replaced with cement-coated iron pipes.

Colton said the work should be started as soon as possible because of the serious nature of the problem.

On Monday night, the City Council agreed with that notion by passing a resolution introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi. The resolution supports a related executive order from Mayor James Sheets, who has proposed a $7.95 million bond issue for the first phase of the work.

The council will take a formal vote on the bond issue at a later date.

Colton said only a few major water-system improvements have been made since the 1970s. Although water mains are expected to last 50 years, the average age of Quincy's lines is 68 years, he said.

The system averages 36 major pipe breaks a year, and last year the DPW got 231 complaints about the quality of water or low water pressure, he added.

Colton said low water pressure and weakened lines have become a potential problem for firefighting in some areas, especially Houghs Neck and Penn's Hill.

Colton said more than one-third of Quincy's lines were installed in the 1920s or earlier. Those on Billings Road in North Quincy were laid from 1893 to 1910. Lines along the Southern Artery date from 1894 to 1957.

The city's oldest lines still in use, along a half-mile section of Hancock Street in Quincy Center between Adams and Elm streets, were laid in 1883.

By comparison, the city's sewer system is in good shape due to millions of dollars of improvements in the 1980s, according to Colton.

The 30-year water-system plan is based on a study Weston and Sampson Engineers of Peabody conducted in the city.

The work will be done in five-year phases, Colton said. The first phase, which will begin in the spring with a $1.2 million improvement of the Penn's Hill subsystem, will cost $9.6 million.

Work from 1999 to 2002 will include improvements in Houghs Neck, Squantum, Hospital Hill, Montclair, and along Robertson Street and Ricciuti Drive. The order in which other areas are done will be decided in the future, Colton said.

The $7.95 million bond issue that will pay for most of the project will be paid for by increases in the city's water rate, he added.

Colton said the first bond issue will cover $6.95 million in city spending and a

City To Get $700,000 For Town Brook Dam

Quincy will receive $700,000 to rebuild the Town Brook Dam, announces Congressman William Delahunt.

Delahunt said the money is part of the 1998 Energy and Water Appropriations Bill recently passed by the U.S. House of Representatives.

"These funds will launch the final phase of a larger flood control project of Town River and Town Brook," he said.

The bill also includes $8.5 million for ongoing maintenance and operations of the Cape Cod Canal--as well as a new radar system to monitor nautical traffic there--$1.5 million for dredging Cohasset Harbor, and $296,000 for redredging Green Harbor in Marshfield.

At Penn's Hill

$250,000 For Contaminated Soil Cleanup

The City Council appropriated $250,000 Monday night for the elimination of a contamination problem in the Penn's Hill section of Quincy.

The money was taken from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, whose ward includes Penn's Hill, said the contamination is coming from the site of a 71-year-old water tank dismantled earlier this year.

High lead levels found in the neighborhood soil have been traced to the base of the tank, which had not been used in at least five years, Raymondi said. He explained that sand, debris and materials blown by the wind from the base caused the contamination.

The tank site is located next to the Abigail Adams Cairn.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said the $250,000 will be used to eliminate the problem. Colton noted that the city, consultant Green Environmental of Quincy, and a contractor selected by the city will all play a role in the "complete removal" of all contaminated soil and materials from the area, which will take place as soon as possible.

Raymondi said the appropriation "will have a direct impact on the public health" of the residents of

Ledger Sale To Be Finalized In 3-4 Months

The sale of The Patriot Ledger to the owners of The Enterprise of Brockton is expected to be finalized in three to four months.

Plans are to continue publishing the two regional daily newspapers as separate entities.

"There are no thoughts of combining the two newspapers," Patriot Ledger Editor William Ketter said Tuesday when asked by The Quincy Sun.

Ketter said the two newspapers will probably have a cross-over advertising agreement to take advantage of what will be a new combined daily circulation of approximately 125,000.

The Saturday Weekend issue of The Ledger and the Sunday Enterprise reportedly will be able to offer a combined circulation of 155,000 to advertisers.

Ketter said plans are to modify the existing presses at The Ledger's plant, adding new units that will give the newspaper four-color photograph capabilities. The Enterprise already has it.

He said plans also call for a new computer system, new mail room and new delivery trucks among other improvements.

K. Prescott (Scott) Low, publisher of the 160-year-old Patriot Ledger whose family has been the owner for four generations, announced the sale last week.

Low said that a letter of intent had been signed for the sale of the Ledger and Memorial Press Group to Newspaper Media LLC of Brockton saying "it is the best fit for growing and strengthening our commitment to the employees, the readers and the communities we serve."

Newspaper Media LLC is owned by Frank E. Richardson, president of F.E. Richardson & Co., a New York City based capital investment firm and by James F. Plugh, publisher of The Enterprise.

Newspaper Media LLC was selected over several other interested bidders including the Boston Herald and Fidelity.

Newspaper Media LLC is purchasing the George W. Prescott Publishing company which includes the Ledger, its Quincy printing plant and office in Crown Colony, the Memorial Press Group of Plymouth that includes nine weekly newspapers and a commercial printing division for speciality publications.

The sale price was not announced but estimates are that its is between $60 million to $70 million.

Newspaper Media LLC was selected from among 11 media companies that

Two For, One Against At Marina Bay Condo Hearing

A proposed Marina Bay condominium development received both support and opposition at a lightly-attended City Council public hearing Monday night.

Following a brief presentation by the proponents of the project, two people spoke in favor of the plan and one in opposition. A fourth said he did not oppose the project but voiced some concerns.

Among those voicing support was Steve Dunleavy, president of the Marina Bay Neighborhood Association, who said the current proposal is far more acceptable to area residents than the proponents' previous plan for a larger development.

"We haven't heard any opposition to this plan--at least, from Marina Bay," he said.

Tom Palmer of Milton, a member of the Neponset River Watershed Association, said while he is not against the project he hopes that certain issues regarding potential pollution problems and needed road improvements are addressed. He suggested that if the council grants a project permit without addressing those issued, an appeal might be filed.

In addition, Squantum resident Jens Thornton said he opposes the plan, mainly because it does not include a holding basin for rainwater runoff. He said that will jeopardize a nearby bird sanctuary local environmentalists are trying to preserve.

Still, Atty. David Mahoney told the council that the proponents have worked with local residents and others to address a number of issues and there is much more support for the new plan than the one they previously put on the table.

The proposal has been made by Thorndike Development Corp. of Braintree through its affiliate, M.C. Properties Limited Partnership. A Planned Unit Development (PUD) permit is needed for the project.

The 152-unit plan calls for 48 single-family homes, 42 townhouses and 62 residential flats to be built on a 20-acre tract off Victory Road. A pedestrian promenade and a village green also are included in the project, which has been dubbed The Landing at Marina Bay.

The City Council has the final say on the project, which has received a favorable recommendation from the Quincy Planning Board. A vote will be taken at a later date.

A Thorndike plan for 268 condominiums at the same site was rejected by the City Council last year.

Fire Safety Day To Be Held Friday

Council Votes 8-1 For Burma Purchase Ban

By MICHAEL WHALEN

An ordinance that would prohibit the city from purchasing goods or services from companies doing business in the country of Burma received overwhelming support from City Council members and local residents Monday night.

Following a public hearing, the council voted 8-1 to advertise the ordinance introduced by Councillor Paul Harold. A formal vote on the ordinance, which requires the support of a majority of councillors and Mayor James Sheets, will be taken at a later date.

The council also voted 8-1 to have the city's legal department draft a home-rule petition that would extend the ban to all subdivisions in the city, particularly investments in its pension fund.

The petition, which if passed by the council would require the support of the state Legislature, was suggested by Councillor Michael Cheney, who said he felt that it would add needed backbone to the city's stand against human rights violations in Burma.

That stand was supported by 11 people who spoke in favor of the measure at a public hearing earlier in the evening. Not one resident voiced opposition.

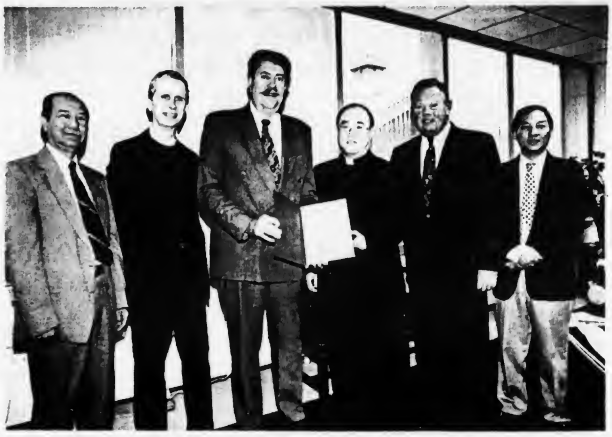
Among those supporting the proposed ordinance was U Win Maung of Weymouth, a Burmese national who said the human rights violations in his country including the shooting deaths of innocent school children. He said "international community support" is needed in order to help put an end to those violations.

"I must speak out on behalf of my people," said an emotional Maung. "Our people are still imprisoned. Our people are being treated like animals."

Others speaking in favor included Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church in Quincy Center and Helen Poland of 1071 Southern Artery, who presented the council with a petition containing more than 1,000 signatures in favor of the law.

The only opposition to advertising the ordinance and drafting the home-rule petition came from Councillor Timothy Cahill.

Cahill did not voice his reasons during the meeting but said later he does not think local government should be dealing with foreign policy.



"We've got enough to keep our plate full on the City Council," he said. "That's an issue for Congress and the national government."

Harold originally introduced the ordinance at the request of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights.

In March, the council unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Harold condemning the human rights violations in the Asian nation.

Harold later told The Quincy Sun in July that

Hospital Foundation Offering Historic Quincy Prints

Prints of "Historic Quincy" are being offered for sale through the Quincy Hospital Health & Education Foundation and proceeds benefit the hospital.

"Historic Quincy" is an original watercolor lithograph by local artist Bill Beyer. Each lithograph is individually signed and numbered by the artist. The painting depicts an array of historic sites in Quincy, such as the U.S.S. Salem, Granite Railway, the Adams birthplace and mansion and many more familiar landmarks. A copy of the framed print is available to view in the Gift Shop located in the main lobby of the hospital.

Prints are available at a cost of $35 unframed, $125 framed. The framed version is available in a choice of two different frames and mats. Proceeds from the sale of prints help to enhance health care services at Quincy Hospital, as the hospital continues to serve the communities south of Boston.

To order a print, or for more information, call Jean Parker at the Quincy Hospital Health and Education Foundation, (617) 376-5495.

Council Chamber Gifts

The City Council chamber will re-open Oct. 20 with a new "old look" giving it pretty much the appearance it had in 1888 when Quincy became a city.

Among the new features will be two Victorian-style chandeliers which are being presented to the city by Councillor Paul Harold in memory of his father and mother, Joseph and Marguerite Harold.

HAROLD

The handsome chandeliers, which have a gas-lamp like look, cost $5,000 each.

"I think they will fit in appropriately with the old-time decor of the chamber," says Harold.

He isn't sure, however, if the chandeliers will be ready for the Oct. 20 re-opening.

"I hope they will be," he says. "But it may take awhile longer before they are ready for installation."

Harold's father was well-known in veterans circles and served more than 40 years as state adjutant of the DAV. He was a veteran of the famed Battle of the Bulge in World War II, receiving a battlefield commission as a second lieutenant.

He was fatally injured in December, 1995, when struck by a car while crossing Sea St. to attend Mass at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Merrymount.

Harold's mother, who died in 1976, worked part-time in the city clerk's office and the city personnel office in the 1960's.

Harold notes that this is the first opportunity since city hall--then a town hall--was built in 1844 to make a memorial gift to City Hall. Other memorial gifts are expected to be made.

The idea of returning the council chamber to the 1888 era was that of Council President Peter Kolson.

KOLSON

The chamber was closed for most of the summer to allow work on the $230,000 project to be carried out.

In addition to a new ceiling, walls, carpeting, and enhancement of the City Seal, the chamber will have moveable seats so that other functions like exhibits can be held there, Kolson said.

The architect was John M. Sheskey and Associates of Quincy. Work was done by the City Department of Public Works and the Paul Rogan Co. of Braintree.

The council chamber is officially Harry W. Tirrell Hall, named for Tirrell who was the city messenger for 62 years from 1889 to Jan. 13, 1951 when he died at age 85.

Old City Hall in which the chamber is located, was designed by noted architect Solomon Willard and completed for occupation Nov. 1, 1844.

Willard received $280 for drawing the plans and supervising the construction.

The building cost exactly $19,115.93 to build which included 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979 the new three and a half story reflective glass addition cost $1.9 million.

Oh, for the gold old days.

DAVE EZICKSON, who gave more than 30 years of dedication and devotion to his students as a Quincy school teacher will be honored at a retirement party, Friday Nov. 14 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd.

EZICKSON

Dave retired earlier this year from the Point-Webster School where he taught the fifth grade. As a teacher he firmly believed students can learn outside as well as inside the classroom. He and his students, for example, are responsible for those interesting learning exhibits at the edge of the Hancock Parking area across from Quincy District Court.

The retirement party will start with a social hour at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m.

Tickets are $40. Deadline for purchasing them is Oct. 29. For more information contact Point-Webster Principal Philip Connolly at 984-8721.

Dave plans to stay active. One of his pet causes is the Salvation Army of which he is a member of the Quincy Temple Corps Advisory Board.

"It's not retirement time. It's reinstatement time," he says.

OUR RECENT COLUMN about Muriel Goudey, one of Quincy High School's most popular ever teachers who died Aug. 29, brings this note from Sybil (Pamplin) Whyte of Utica St., a member of the QHS June, 1932 class:

"Thank you for the nice tribute to Miss Goudey. She was indeed a lovely lady. Although my English teacher was Miss Giles, I got to know Miss Goudey in later years as we enjoyed her company at class reunions.

"It was always an unexpected pleasure to meet her in the supermarket or at some local function.

"When we were in school, it seemed that all the teachers, and our parents, too, were 'old', but as time went on we found out that Miss Goudey was really only 10 years older than us!

"Thank you for the memories."

And, when it came to Muriel Goudey, they were always fond memories.

"Isn't it unusual for a pilot to be afraid of heights?"

The Granite Ball As It Originally Was

THIS QUINCY GRANITE ball was a gift to the City of Quincy on its 300th anniversary from the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association. It was meant to represent their eternal gratitude for the beautiful stone that came from Quincy's native hills. Miss Maxine Louise Swingle unveiled the memorial during Quincy's Tercentenary Celebration on June 25, 1925. She was the daughter of Jonathan S. Swingle who donated the 25-ton block of granite from which they cut the ball. The granite came from the now infamous West Quincy quarry still bearing his name.

Several other companies belonging to the association contributed to finishing the ball that is six feet in diameter and weighs almost 11 tons.

In his presentation speech at the unveiling, Mr. Joseph Walker, president of the association said: "The chief purpose of the memorial is to keep alive the sentiments and feelings of our forefathers, and to foster at all times a high regard for the principles of liberty, to keep open at all times the springs of the mind and the hearts of the people of succeeding generations."

The location of the ball, just outside the window of the city clerk's office, was picked and asked for by the Granite Manufacturers Association and was granted by then Mayor Perley Barbour. Speaking for the city at the ceremony, Mayor Barbour accepted the responsibility for the care and keeping of the ball for all time.

The highly-polished ball of beautiful dark blue Quincy granite attracted everyone who passed by it. Because of the hypnotic reflections that appeared in the mirror finish it soon became known as the "Gazing Ball." It was a particular delight to the youngsters of the city who came throughout the year to Quincy Square to see their faces and the changing seasons reflected in the shining surface.

This 1930s postcard shows City Hall on the left and the long gone Depot Street on the right. In the right background is the old Quincy Center railroad depot, now the site of the new Old Colony and Red Line stations. The new City Hall is in the place of the small building in the center. The lawn and Depot Street are now the site of the Walk of Names which originally was to feature a fountain very close to the site of the ball in this postcard view.

Today the granite ball is just as beautiful and glorious as it was when it was originally created. However, it was relocated over 60 years ago in the gloomy days before World War II to the center of the Fore River Rotary. Unfortunately, it has been separated from the people of Quincy ever since by the circling traffic from the towns to our south.

School Principals Call For Leash Law

By PAUL HAROLD

Oct. 9 - 15
1966
31 Years Ago

Fred Nolan, principal of the Snug Harbor School and president of the association of elementary school principals, called on the city council for speedy action on a leash law for the city.

Nolan said each of the city's 23 elementary schools was plagued with stray dogs in school yards throughout the school day. "The situation is getting worse each year," he said.

There was an ordinance pending before the council for a number of months. Originally filed by Councillor Walter Hannon, it was amended by Councillor John Quinn, who questioned its enforceability.

As amended by Quinn, the ordinance would ban dogs from school property from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

PALMER NEW HEAD OF TAXPAYERS GROUP

William Palmer, sales manager of the North Quincy Garage, was elected president of the Quincy Taxpayers Association at its annual meeting at Ships Haven Restaurant. Other officers were Peter Ruscitto, first vice president; Richard Darr, second vice president; Anthony Losordo, treasurer; and Peter O'Connell, secretary.

Palmer said the five most important issues facing the city were: the need for new schools, better recreation facilities, more commercial development to broadcn the tax base, better traffic and parking facilities and more effective control of crime and juvenile delinquency.

$3.2 MILLION EXPANSION AT ENC

At the annual meeting of the Eastern Nazarene College corporation, a $3.2 million expansion plan was announced.

Included in the five year plan were the construction of new women's and men's dormitories, a gymnasium and the complete restoration of the Mansion building.

It Makes For Strange Elderly Housing

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

According to a front page news story in the Quincy Sun (Applications Available For Naval Terrace Units, Sept. 18), it appears that the application forms for the 48 units at Naval Terrace that will be used for senior housing are now available.

The deadline for submitting the applications is Friday, Oct. 3. Individuals must be at least 62 years old and either have lived in Quincy for at least 10 years or have lived in Quincy 20 of the last 25 years. Preference will be given to veterans, minorities, the disabled and Ward 6 residents.

Rents will be $750 a month and includes heat, rubbish pickup and water and sewer charges. Mayor Sheets feels the rent is a fair price for seniors as it is below market value. The mayor hopes seniors can move in by Novembers. It should take 18 months to rehab Squantum Gardens.

At first glance and on paper it all sounds good but the more I think about it, the less I like it. Naval Terrace? It's hidden. How many people even know where it is? Most of us drive by Squantum Gardens on Quincy Shore Drive. Most of us know that for years these housing units were occupied by naval personnel at the air station in South Weymouth. It always appeared to be good housing for military families. But it also always looked like a federal housing project which it was. Naval Terrace was the better of the two developments but it, too resembles a housing project.

The City of Quincy thinks elderly housing is a great idea for both sites, I disagree. Even after you rehab Squantum Gardens, it like Naval Terrace, makes for strange elderly housing. Naval Terrace are tiny tot housing. Matchbox size and up on a winding and hilly road. Better have a car if yhou''re up there or else have friends who drive. I guess as far you're Squantum Gardens go, everyone forgot that the bathrooms were upstairs, so I guess by the time they're ready in 1999, the bathrooms will be downstairs too.

As far as the rent goes, the mayor says it's fair and below market prices but how many elderly do you know who can afford $750 per month for rent even with heat included? What kind of Quincy elderly is City Hall looking at? Naval Terrace and Squantum Gardens isn't exactly 1000 Southern Artery. It isn't exactly Tobin Towers. And it isn't exactly the River Bay Club. So, what the heck is it and what portion of the elderly population can afford to live there in a $750 a month apartment? And why would they want to? If you're on a fixed income, you can't. And if you can afford to live there, you might was well choose the River Bay Club, eh?

The rent may be below market value but for most of this city's elderly, Naval Terrace and Squantum Gardens is starting to sound like the old Columbia Point housing project with Ritz Carlton rents. The worst of both worlds for older folks looking for decent and affordable housing in their senior years.

How is the city serving the elderly on fixed incomes who look at $750 per month and think it is far too high for them? They'll still be looking for affordable housing while some small group of more affluent elderly even seriously consider this Ward 6 site. However, if the purpose of converting this former naval housing was to help the elderly, the city really has failed in that goal, hasn't it?

Wants Granite Ball Moved

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like very much to see the Granite Ball placed at the Granite Workers Park.

I am a granite worker and of a background of granite workers.

I think we deserve it at the park.

NEW HELP FOR QUITTERS

The tobacco habit is one of the toughest to overcome. For those who really want to kick the habit, however, there are two new tools that just might help. A new anti-depressant drug named bupropion hydrochloride is the first smoking cessation medication to be approved by the FDA that does not contain nicotine. Early testing results have shown that the drug may double the success rate of people trying to quit, with the added benefit of helping control dark mood swings. Another new aid expected to be available soon is a nicotine inhaler that allows smokers to keep on puffing as they wean themselves off nicotine while receiving none of the tar or other carcinogens in cigarettes.

P.S. Smoking has been identified as a major risk factor for many serious diseases, including heart disease and cancer.

Just because you haven't been successful quitting, doesn't mean you should give up. Consult your physician for the latest information on how to go about kicking the habit. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I listen to your concerns. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550.

passing a formal law in protest of those violations is the next step that needs to be taken. He added that passing such a law would be consistent with the positions of both the state and federal governments.

The list of human rights violations in Burma is considerable.

A 1990 election giving 82 percent of the seats in Parliament to a democratic party was ignored by the military junta. The leader of the pro-democracy party in Burma, Aung San Suu Kyi, who was given the Nobel Peace Prize in 1991, has been placed under "house arrest" by the military for six years.

Local human rights activists have said profits from foreign investments go directly to the Burmese government and lead to forced labor and other human rights abuses. The government also has protected drug dealers who sell 60 percent of the heroin on the world market, and child prostitution in that area flourishes, they say.

Massachusetts has passed the first state law in the country prohibiting the state from purchasing goods or services from companies doing business in Burma. Several cities have passed similar laws.

Harold noted that the United States has placed sanctions on Burma for the same reasons.

Some of the U.S. companies conducting business in Burma are Texaco, Atlantic Richfield, Cluett Peabody, Pan American Enterprises, Servcorp and United Technologies Corp.

Many companies in the United States, however, have pulled out of Burma because of consumer pressure. Among those are Liz Claiborne, Eddie Bauer, Disney, Pepsico, Levi Strauss, Heineken, Amoco, and Macy's.

Apple Computer and Hewlett Packard are among the firms that have pulled out of Burma as a direct result of the Massachusetts selective purchasing law.

Q-VOTE Endorses Bragg, Mariano

Q-VOTE, political action committee which represents Quincy citizens interested in promoting quality public education in the city, has endorsed the School Committee re-election candidacies of Jo-Ann Bragg and Ronald Mariano.

Q-VOTE President Kathleen Mitchell of Quincy said the decision to endorse the candidates came after much deliberation by a Q-VOTE interviewing subcommittee. According to the committee, the two incumbent candidates have displayed tremendous dedication and continued perseverance resulting in improved school facilities, programs and technology.

The subcommittee further recommended to its membership that they consider voting for either Kevin Coughlin or Michael McFarland as their third choice. They found these two political newcomers to be eminently qualified and deeply committed to the community.

"The citizens of Quincy are fortunare indeed to have such an excellent field of highly-qualified candidates for School Committee," Mitchell said.

Q-VOTE, which was founded 20 years ago in response to severe educational cuts, forced on Quincy by a series of tax-cutting initiatives. The board will communicate the endorsements to approximately 1,200 supporters of quality public education on its current mailing list.

DON'T LET DIABETES GET YOU DOWN

Foot problems are among the most common complications for people with diabetes. The good news, though, is that there is much an individual can do to make sure feet stay healthy. The key is circulation, and that means exercise. For generally healthy people, walking is an excellent exercise, improving circulation and helping keep the feet fit and flexible. Just observe a few cautions: Walk at a steady pace for as long as possible every day, but stop if pain occurs. Also, do some warm-ups before the walk, including such exercises as heel raises (moving up and down onto tiptoe), knee bends, and leg sweeps (with one hand on a chair back, stand with one leg on a book, swinging the other leg back and forth.)

P.S. Even the most restricted, bed-ridden patients need some form of exercise. Ask your doctor!

If you suffer from diabetes any, even very simple, foot problems should be referred to a podiatrist right away for treatment. Your feet need professional attention just like your teeth, your eyes, and the rest of you. This column is brought to you as a public service. Candidates Night Oct. 16 At Montclair School

The Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association will host a Candidates Night Thursday, Oct. 16 at 7 p.m. at the Montclair School.

Following messages by Acting Association President Howard Crowley and Mayor James Sheets, all candidates City Council (at-large and Ward 3) and School Committee will give opening statements, participate in an question-and-answer period, and give closing statements.

The event, which is open to the public, should conclude around 9:30 p.m. It will be followed by a brief closing statement by Crowley and coffee.

Ward 4 Candidates Night Canceled

The Ward 4 Candidates Night scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 21 at the Ward 4 Community Center has been canceled.

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico has cited a conflict--specifically, a previously-scheduled commitment to the St. Mary's fundraiser on the same date--that will prevent him from attending the community center event.

Jana Johnsen-Harrington, director of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, said there are currently no plans to reschedule the Candidates Night.

D'Amico will face challenger Stephen Hawko in the Nov. 4 citywide election.

Quincy Delegation To Attend Massachusetts Youth Summit

Quincy has organized a delegation to attend "The Massachusetts Summit: The Promise of Our Youth" to be held Sunday, Oct. 26 in Boston.

The delegation will include School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Maura Georges of VISTA and Work Inc., and Melissa Wojcik of Work Inc.

The summit will be an unprecedented bipartisan effort to bring greater resources, attention and focus to improving the circumstances of the state's young people.

At the summit, a diverse group of delegates from the public, private and non-profit sectors around the state will discuss best practices and identify the tools needed to mobilize volunteers in their communities.

In addition to sharing information on best practices, delegates will formulate "community mobilization projects" designed to address the specific needs in each individual community surrounding five fundamental resources: an ongoing relationship with a caring adult or mentor, safe places to learn and grow, a healthy start, marketable skills through effective education, and an opportunity to give back through community service.

The summit is being co-chaired by J. Donald Monan, S.J., chancellor of Boston College and entertainer Bill Cosby.

Maria Droste Services Marks Fifth Anniversary Oct. 21

Mayor James Sheets will serve as the official host as the Sisters of the Good Shepherd at the Maria Droste Services celebrate their fifth anniversary in Quincy Center.

The celebration will be held Tuesday, Oct. 21 from 5 to 7 p.m. at The Quincy Homestead, 1010 Hancock St.

The small counseling agency first opened its doors July 2, 1992, with a very specific mission, to serve the needs of special people who were "falling through the cracks." That charter became even more important during these times of diminishing entitlements and limited managed care mental health provisions.

"It has been God's work," said Sister Joanne Westwater, agency director.

Clinical treatment, provided by Sisters of the Good Shepherd, is given to clients in a warm and nurturing atmosphere. Assisting the sisters are qualified counselors, therapists, volunteers, staff and board of advisors who represent a cross-section of backgrounds and religious affiliations.

Maria Droste Services is designed to serve individuals experiencing difficulties at home, at work, in school, or in personal relationships. Treatment is provided after an individual assessment is made. Each clinical assessment takes into consideration the client's willingness and ability to accept treatment and the agency's ability to respond to his/her individual needs.

In addition to counseling, services offered are spiritual counseling, career planning, tutoring, and massage therapy.

Help is provided regardless of race, creed or national origin. A sliding fee scale is used to determine a person's ability to pay. The Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services was founded on the principle that all people have the potential to grow emotionally. The core of its mission statement commits the entire staff to offering professional services in order to enrich a person's life and contribute to his/her personal and professional fulfillment.

Maria Droste Services is located at 1354 Hancock St. in the Adams Building. For more information about the anniversary event or the agency, call 471-5686.

Harold Proposes Capital Needs Advisory Committee

City Councillor Paul Harold has proposed the establishment of a Capital Needs Advisory Committee to study the short and long-term capital needs of the city.

Harold's resolution calling for the formation of the group was passed unanimously by the council Monday night. The committee, if established, would assess the capital needs of all city departments, including the school department.

Harold said the committee would help keep councillors and others updated on funding needed for various city projects.

"We haven't had an overview of all the projects that are out there," he said.

Harold said the group is also needed because Quincy is currently undertaking major expenditures in capital improvements and purchases, and the priorities set will determine the future borrowing capacity of the city as well as the availability of funds for periods of five, 10 and 20 years.

The resolution calls for the establishment of a 13-member committee, with 10 members, including the chairman, being appointed by the mayor and three by the City Council president. The 13 would serve, without salary, for a period of two years, coinciding with the term of office of the mayor and council.

The committee would meet at least eight times a year and, according to the resolution, "publish its recommendations on May 1 and Oct. 1, both on capital needs, its opinion of the city's borrowing capacity and its recommendations for the length of those borrowings, in reference to borrowing strategies by both the public and private sectors."

Mayor James Sheets could not be reached for comment on Harold's proposal at press time.

Michael Kane Elected Youth Governor Of Massachusetts

Michael Kane of Quincy, a senior at Boston College High School, was recently elected youth governor of Massachusetts.

Kane, along with 250 other high school students throughout the State of Massachusetts are learning, through the YMCA's youth and government program, how real life politics works.

Students are encouraged to begin compaigning before elections in March for their candidates for youth governor, lieutenant governor, house speaker, senate president, senators, and members of the press corps, the culminating model legislative conference,, led by teen leadership, is held annually at the state house in March.

Once the state conference in March is complete, the YMCA of the USA holds two national conferences, the first, the youth governor's conference is held in June in Washington, D.C. Michael Kane, the Boston College High school student and the Massachusetts youth governor will join that delegation. The young governor and his peers will meet with President Bill Clinton, Supreme Court Justices and other government officials.

After the Washington conference, Kane will attend a national affairs conference in North Carolina. Three hundred fifty of the brightest and best youth & government delegates from around the country will discuss bills of national and international concern for one week. Don Changeau, youth senator and senior at Boston College High, will attend the National Affairs Conference.

McNamee Supports Senior Housing At Squantum Gardens

Brian McNamee, Ward 6 City Council candidate, said he supports Mayor James Sheets' plan to put senior housing at Squantum Gardens.

The mayor's office recently announced that in renting apartments at the Squantum Gardens complex, the city will give preference to veterans, local residents, minorities, the handicapped, and Ward 6 residents.

Upon announcing his candidacy over two months ago, McNamee said, he advocated a Ward 6 preference for Squantum Gardens applicants. He said prior to recent public announcements from the mayor's office, no such preferences had been acknowledged as part of the housing plan.

McNamee said his candidacy represents a commitment to restoring focus to core neighborhood concerns such as: ongoing sidewalk and street repairs, traffic safety with sensitivity to the safety of children, police protection and rapid response, timely upgrading of the North Quincy business district, and a better understanding of how development further impacts traffic on the city's streets. He is also an advocate for increasing public input on the future of Squantum Gardens, he said.

McNamee said he supports preservation of open space and has concerns over Boston's continued use of Moon Island as well as the continued pollution of Wollaston Beach when water rates are at an all-time high.

College Fair Oct. 14 At North Quincy High

The guidance staffs of the Quincy Public Schools, under the direction of Marybeth Curran, head counselor at North Quincy High School, will host a Higher Education Night/College Fair Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The event will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the North Quincy High School gymnasium.

Students, parents, and interested citizens from Quincy, Milton, Braintree and Weymouth are invited. College admissions directors from more than 90 colleges and specialty schools will be available to discuss financial aid, programs, and admissions requirements at their respective schools.

The event will provide students and their parents with an opportunity to explore many possible avenues of further education before the choice becomes immediate and critical.

Wilson Emphasize Community's Role In Educating Children

School Committee candidate Tracy Wilson emphasized the community's role in educating children during a recent fundraiser at Amelia's in North Quincy.

"My decision to run for School Committee is an outgrowth of my personal belief in the important role that a community plays in educating its children," she said. "If our children are well-educated, their success will, in turn, contribute to the quality of life for all who live in the community.

"A quality education is the platform from which our children will succeed and from which they and our community will prosper and benefit. The City of Quincy provided me with such a platform."

Wilson, an attorney, attended the Quincy Public Schools in Grades K-12 and continued her education while working full-time, graduating from Westfield State College and the Massachusetts School of Law. She was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar last spring.

"It is my turn to give back to the City of Quincy by working as a School Committee member to ensure that all our children receive the same opportunity that I was given," she said.

Wilson reminded her supporters that public education has been a Massachusetts foundation since the 17th century and paraphrased Hubert Humphrey's observation that "a nation will be measured by how it cares for its young and its old."

She also noted the decades-long decline in student reading, writing, and arithmetic proficiencies.

"The future of our city depends on the education of our children," said Wilson. "We must provide each other and every child with the opportunity for success.

"Primary education in our city must mean more than just receiving a piece of paper upon graduation. An education should prepare our children for life, not merely making a living. As citizens, we must recognize that our children are our future; indeed, they will be our legacy. An educational system must emphasize the classics as well as the computers, and children must be prepared to meet the challenges of 21st century work and life."

Wilson said she understands the value of a good public education and the role a parent can play. She added, however, that she recognizes not every child is so fortunate.

"That is where a solid school system can fill some of that void," she said. "Much of my academic guidance also came from many of my former teachers within the Quincy Public Schools. I will never forget those teachers who made a difference in my life.

"As a product of the Quincy Public School system, I want now to give back to this city as a member of the Quincy School Committee."

Discussing the challenges today to improving the quality of education, Wilson said, "I am a firm believer that there is always room for improvement and creative ideas."

Wilson is employed with the Benjamin Healthcare Center in Boston, where she administers labor and employment practices, negotiates and drafts contracts and policies, and assists with issues of resident and patient rights.

"I am ready to put my education, background, skills and work experience back into this community. I want to make a contribution to one of the most important parts of our government: education.

"Every child deserves a quality education, and I am committed to that goal. If our children are unable to read, write and do arithmetic, they will not be prepared for the demands of our society today. As a School Committee member, I will commit myself to plan not just for today, but also for the future of our children and our community. I want to make Quincy a model community for education."

Clark Chiropractic
Dr. Robert J. Clark

Children, Teenagers & Chiropractic

Many spinal problems seen in adults begin in childhood. The everyday bumps and falls that children and teenagers experience through play, routine activities and sports may lead to spinal misalignment. This may set the stage for scoliosis, "growing pains," and a weakened immune response. Proper spinal hygiene is an important key to better health.

Call today to schedule an appointment and/or request our brochures, Children and the Chiropractic Lifestyle or Scoliosis and the Chiropractic Lifestyle. There is no charge for the initial consultation.

200 Attend Second Annual Quincy Senior Conference

SECOND ANNUAL City of Quincy Senior Conference was recently held at Broad Meadows Middle School. More than 200 Quincy seniors and more than 50 volunteers participated in the event. From left are Quincy Council on Aging Chairman John Noonan, who originally came up with the idea for the conference and Dr. Deborah Klein Walker, assistant commissioner of public health in Massachusetts, who served as keynote speaker. Other speakers included Mayor James Sheets and author Maxine Lyons.

AMONG THOSE ATTENDING the second annual City of Quincy Senior Conference were, from left, Quincy Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley, Senior Asian Outreach Worker Linda Yip and George McCall of American Express Financial Advisors. They are displaying new Quincy Elder Services brochures printed though a grant obtained through the American Express Advice Program. The event was held at Broad Meadows Middle School.

City To Receive $1.2M In Federal Housing Grants

Congressman William Delahunt has announced that the City of Quincy can expect $1.2 million in federal housing grants to rehabilitate local complexes which house hundreds of area seniors.

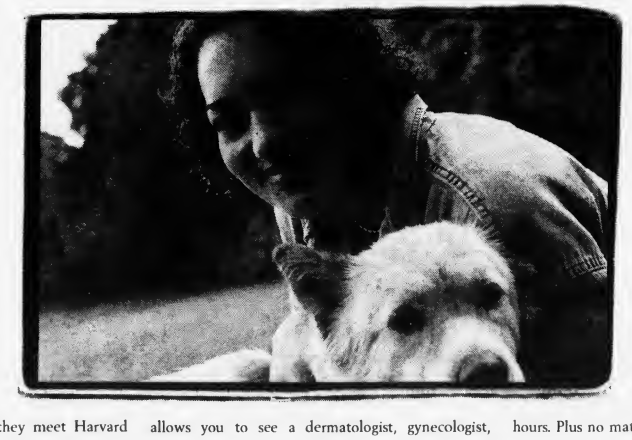
"This money will be used to help ensure, quite literally, that there is a dry roof over the heads of our most vulnerable citizens," Delahunt said, adding that the full award is $1,233,489.

Most of the grant will be used to address structural and disabled-access problems in three buildings: O'Brien Towers, Drohan Apartments and Pagnano Towers. The award originates from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The grant will enable the Quincy Housing Authority to address pervasive leakage problems in the 20-year-old O'Brien Towers facility. The HUD award will make it possible to caulk, re-point and waterproof the eight-story, 275-unit structure.

The 40 senior/disabled-accessible apartments at the three-story Drohan Apartments are also in desperate need of roof repairs.

At 156-unit Pagnano Towers, the grant will mean accessibility for disabled residents and guests. It will provide for an automatic main door, and upgraded restroom facilities.



BROAD MEADOWS Middle School students helped out at the second annual City of Quincy Senior Conference held recently at the school. Standing from left are Linda Stice, executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family; Broad Meadows Principal Anne Marie Zukauskas and Quincy Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley. The event included 15 workshops on various issues of interest to the elderly, including financial planning and fitness.

Making life better is our life's work.

How long does it take to find the right nutritionist, pharmacist, optometrist, internist, dermatologist, psychologist, and perhaps dentist?

As long as it takes to call us.

Finding the right doctor can be a lengthy process. Unless of course, you belong to a Harvard Pilgrim Health Center. As a member, you have access to some of the area's best doctors. In fact, all of our doctors are subject to an extensive credentialing process and undergo annual reviews to ensure that they meet Harvard Pilgrim's high standards of medical excellence.

But of course, what good is it to have great doctors if they're not easily accessible? Our self-referral program allows you to see a dermatologist, gynecologist, psychologist, nutritionist, or optometrist without your primary care doctor's prior approval.

What's more, we give you the flexibility to receive care at any of our 14 health centers, no matter which one your primary care doctor practices at. All are equipped with a lab, pharmacy and x-ray services. And many offer weekend or extended hours. Plus no matter what time of day or night, you always have access to us for emergency care.

To find out more about our doctors or services, please call 1-800-848-HEALTH.

Two Sworn-In As Police Sergeants

Four Quincy residents were among the Massachusetts Maritime Academy freshmen class of 2001 to graduate recently from the cadet candidate Orientation Training.

They are:

Dominic P. Catrambone, 77 Edgewater Drive, John C. Leuchte, 34 Ellington Rd., William D. Nelson, 259 Billings Rd., and John F. Sullivan, 37 Spring St.

The two week training program confronts each candidate with a rigorous schedule of physical and intellectual challenges. During their training, they acquired the skills necessary to become a full time cadet within the regiment, among them: conduct and discipline, fire fighting, sailing/-rowing, shipboard training, watch keeping, and customs and tradition.

They are among 230 members of the class of 2001, which represents one of the largest classes in the more than 100 year old history of the school.

Citizens Bank, Celtics Form Marketing Pact

Citizens Bank and the Boston Celtics have reached agreement on a comprehensive marketing partnership and exclusive banking relationship that will link the two organi-zations in a five-year arrangement.

Citizens was selected by the Celtics because of its record for creating high-impact marketing partnerships, its community reach and its strong commitment to customer service, a Celtics spokesman said.

The customized marketing deal includes a highly-integrated program that will touch all stakeholders for both Citizens and the Celtics including consumers, business customers, the media, employees of both organizations, all communities served by Citizens, and fans.

In addition to the marketing partnership, Citizens will provide comprehensive commercial banking services for the Celtics organization and personal banking services for its employees, including Head Coach Rick Pitino.

Citizens Bank has approximately $5.2 billion in assets, 99 branches and 107 ATMs in eastern Massachusetts and operates commercial banking centers in Boston, Quincy, Wakefield and Hyannis.

Citizens Bank of Massachusetts is a subsidiary of Citizens Financial Group Inc., a $16 billion financial services company with more than 280 offices operating as Citizens Bank in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Connecticut.

Quincy Center Harvest Festival To Be Held Oct. 19

The seventh annual Harvest Festival sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association will be held Sunday, Oct. 19.

The highlight of the event will be the traditional Costume Parade for all children in Grades K-5 which begins at 1:30 p.m. Local merchants and artists will judge the costumes and award several prize trophies in several categories. Children who did not receive a registration blank in school can call 471-3232 to register.

Other competitions also are planned. Those in attendance can bring a painted pumpkin to the "Pumpkin Patch," a scarecrow to the "Crow's Nest," or an apple treat to "Munchy Manor."

Music will be provided by The Eighth Crossing. There will also be clowns, face painting, karate demonstrations, pony and kiddy rides, special food treats, and artists and vendors.

Hancock St. will be closed to vehicular traffic for the day in order to provide a safe open market venue for the day's activities. For more information, call 471-3232.

YMCA Building Dedication Ceremony To Be Held Oct. 15

The South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center will hold a Building Dedication Ceremony featuring the unveiling of its completed renovations and addition Wednesday, Oct. 15 from 4 to 5:45 p.m.

Sean McDonough, well-known New England sports announcer, will serve as special guest emcee.

In addition, a Volunteer Award Ceremony will be held to honor the 1997 Youths of the Year, Tara DeSisto and Brian Johnson; the Benjamin J. Hodgkinson Adult Volunteer of the Year, Ed Shaffer; and the recipient of the South Shore YMCA Spirit Award, Joe Monahan.

First-Time Homebuyers Series To Begin Oct. 14

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., an approved MHFA first-time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop series beginning Oct. 14 and continuing on Oct. 16, 21 and 23.

The four workshops will be held at The Tufts Library, 43 Broad St., Weymouth, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Attendance at all four is mandatory to qualify for the different mortgage options available through the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within a budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Cost is $36 per household.

For more information and registration forms, call Debbie Kidd at 479-8181, ext. 115.

The workshop series is sponsored by the City of Quincy and the Department of Housing and Community Development.

Oct. 16 Fundraiser Planned For 'House That Jill Built'

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is planning a kickoff fundraiser for one of the eight to 10 homes it is building in Quincy Point as part of the Granite Village subdivision.

The home, which has been dubbed The House that Jill Built, will be built by an all-female crew.

The fundraiser will be held Thursday, Oct. 16 from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. Entitled "Raising the Roof," it will be a cocktail party/dance/silent auction.

In addition to raising a portion of the $57,000 needed to build the house, the event will give Habitat volunteers and friends and Jill Built supporters the opportunity to meet in a social setting and discuss Habitat and its plans in Quincy.

Music will be provided by A Sound Investment. Hors d'oeuvres and drinks will be served. Items to be auctioned include Boston Ballet tickets to "Romeo and Juliet," Bruins and Celtics tickets, and handmade crafts.

Tickets are $25. For tickets or more information, call 843-9080.

Making The Most Of Your Home Improvement

(NAPS)—The home improvement industry is booming throughout the nation, as today's homeowner is choosing to remodel instead of buying new. In fact, by the year 1999, consumer remodeling will skyrocket to $112.3 billion annually, according to the Home Improvement Research Institute.

If you're planning on giving your home a "facelift" this year, consider the following tips, brought to you by the "outdoor building experts" who produce Kodiak® preserved wood, an innovative new outdoor building product:

• Determine how long you plan on living in your home. Unless you plan on staying there for years, try to make improvements that not only add comfort and convenience for you now, but also increase your home's future resale value. For instance, a deck typically recoups 71 percent of its original construction cost.

• Consider how the addition will hold up over the long term. Choose quality building products that will look good years from now. This is especially important when choosing outdoor building products. Some products, such as Kodiak lumber, even come with a lifetime limited warranty to ensure they will hold up against the elements.

• Study your local real estate market to be sure you're making improvements that homebuyers want and will pay for. In a recent survey by the National Association of Home Builders, 83 percent of potential new home buyers surveyed said they would like their new home to have a deck off the back of the house, including 29 percent who said a deck was "essential". Other renovations rated high for their return on investment include bathroom and kitchen renovations, as well as interior remodeling.

Decks prove to be valuable additions because they increase a home's value.

• Understand that while you may think certain additions are an asset to your home, others may not. Examples include swimming pools, hot tubs and sliding glass doors. Potential buyers may not see past the maintenance work required with pools and spas; and sliding glass doors may be perceived as a risk where security is a concern.

• Be informed and know what you want before getting started. Talk with friends who have recently completed similar projects, or consult remodeling publications. Create a photograph file of styles of kitchens, decks, and bathrooms that you like.

• To keep maintenance to a minimum—not only for you, but also for the next owner of your home—choose materials that are easy to clean and care for. This is a key reason why homeowners choose Kodiak preserved wood. It is treated with a two-step, patented process that provides color saturation throughout the wood, not just on the surface. By having the color saturated throughout the wood, maintenance becomes easier, as periodic staining is not required.

• Manage your money and develop a working budget. During a remodeling project, most homeowners will add items as the project develops. A reserve equal to 10 to 20 percent of what you expect to spend should cover these changes.

• If hiring a professional, interview several builders, landscape and building architects and interior designers. Look at their portfolios and talk with friends and colleagues for referrals. Also keep in mind that many lumber yards offer expert design assistance and pre-cut lumber packages for decks.

Kodiak preserved wood is available at select, independent retailers where fine wood and deck care products are sold. For the name of the Kodiak dealer in your area, call 1-800-K-KODIAK.

French, Sliding Glass Doors Can Add Value To A Home

Q. Before adding either French doors or sliding glass doors to my home, what are their benefits?

A. No matter which kind you add to your home, both have their benefits that will likely add value to your home.

Sliding glass doors are beneficial for a number of reasons. Because they usually take up a huge portion of a wall, sliding glass doors allow generous and warm rays of sunlight into your home. Also, they don't take up any floor space when opened, because they slide on their own track. For added security, new versions of sliding glass doors have improved locking systems as well.

French doors, however, are a safe bet also. Just as you can have added security with sliding glass doors, you can install a dead-bolt lock on your French doors. Also, this style allows you to choose a decorative glass, if desired, for a more fashionable appearance. And if you have children, French doors may be easier to operate for the little ones.

Anthony Agnitti Installed As Kiwanis Club President

Local businessman Anthony "Tony" Agnitti was recently installed as the new president of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy during ceremonies held at the Common Market, West Quincy.

Agnitti, owner of Agnitti Insurance Agency., Inc., Agnitti Property Management & Development and the soon to open Mando's Italian Bistro in Quincy Center, will lead the club during the service organization's 74th year.

Other officers installed were Robert Bosworth, editor of The Quincy Sun, president-elect; George Nolan, a certified public accountant with Steve Mansfield and Co. of North Quincy, vice president; James Mullaney, a CPA with Mullaney and Mullaney of Wollaston, treasurer; and Robert Bunstein of Fabricated Steel Products Co., Inc. of Wollaston, secretary.

Serving on the Board of Directors for the coming year will be John Farmer, Richard Sweeney, John Keohane (all one-year terms); Renee Buisson, Frederick Costello, John McGillivray and Aldo Saluti (two-year terms).

Two long-time members, Leo Darr and James Stearns, were recognized for their membership in Kiwanis for 40 years and 35 years respectively.

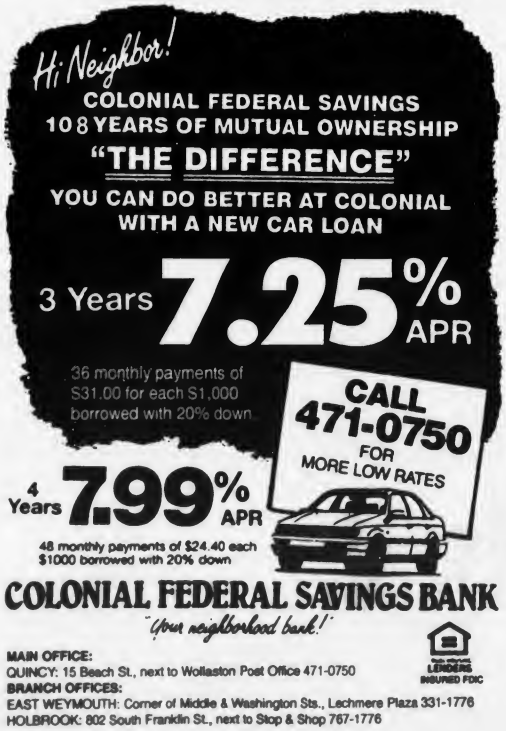
Tom King, a vice president with Citizens Bank, was recognized for his year as president. He will serve the club as immediate past president for the coming year.

Agnitti has been active in Kiwanis and in the community.

As a member of the Quincy Kiwanis Club, he has served as vice president, secretary, a director and co-chairman of the scholarship committee. He joined the club in November, 1991.

Locally, Agnitti has served as a member of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board, chairman of the Quincy Business Council and chairman of the South Shore Business Expo. He is also a member of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, South Shore Economic Development Pact and Kids' Vote of Massachusetts.

Agnitti graduated from Norwich University Military College of Vermont with a bachelor of science degree in business. He is a certified insurance councillor and licensed insurance advisor.



Agnitti and his wife, Marietta, have two sons: Anthony, age 4, and Armando, 8. They live in Braintree.

Sheets Studies Details Of Shipyard Loans

Mayor James Sheets traveled to Washington, D.C. on Monday for several hours of follow-up work on a final agreement expected to deliver $54 million in federal loan guarantees for the revitalization of the Fore River shipyard.

Only a week after U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy and federal officials set an Oct. 20 closing date for the loans, the mayor returned to study details of the deal with Kennedy's staff and the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD), the agency which will issue the loan guarantees.

Sotirios Emmanouil, owner of the shipyard, is seeking the MARAD loan guarantees to reopen the shipyard for tanker construction.

MARAD gave Emmanouil a letter of commitment for the first set of loans to modernize the shipyard, which closed in 1986 after the departure of General Dynamics.

Although the final agreement for the loans is to be closed Oct. 20, MARAD has yet to decide on another $230 million in loan guarantees for the construction of six double-hulled tankers.

Kennedy has said he expected MARAD to approve the loans after Emmanouil receives the first $54 million in guarantees.

Emmanouil has said his first contracts could bring 1,000 jobs to the shipyard and additional construction may result in as many as 2,000.

Chretien Supports DNA Screening Of Violent Criminals

Larry Chretein, candidate for state representative, announces his support for legislation to take DNA samples from violent criminals in order to establish a statewide database that can be used to provide evidence in future cases.

The DNA testing would apply to convicted sex offenders, murderers, and other violent criminals. According to state officials, 6,500 sex offenders and violent criminals incarcerated would be subject to the DNA testing, as well as 2,700 convicts on parole, and an unspecified number of criminals on probation would also be subject.

Chretien said, "It has been routine for a long time to take fingerprints of convicted criminals. Now, the science of DNA analysis has come so far that we should also give law enforcement officers this valuable tool. Many crimes can be solved with the aid of DNA evidence.

"If this bill passes, authorities will be able to look at the computerized database of DNA samples to help identify perpetrators. This will help us to catch repeat offenders. Hopefully, it will provide a deterrent effect also."

Massachusetts is one of just three states in the nation that does not yet allow the taking of DNA samples from criminals. By passing the legislation, which is sponsored by Sen. Cheryl Jacques, the state will receive $172,000 from the federal government to help offset the cost of setting up the computerized DNA database.

Chretien added, "As time goes one, we have to take advantage of new ways to fight crime. Combining the power of computers which the science of DNA testing makes all the sense in the world."

THE REPLACEMENT BATTERY

A car's battery should last three to four years. When it does go dead and a replacement battery is needed, it is usually worth the extra cost to purchase a sealed maintenance-free recombinant battery. This type of battery does not have any vents and no water can be added. Other types of batteries (vent cap and low maintenance batteries) release oxygen at the positive plates and hydrogen at the negative plates. In maintenance-free batteries, virtually no hydrogen is release during charging. Oxygen that is released from the electrolyte at the negative plates chemically recombines with the negative plates. Because there is no cell gassing, there is no need to vent the battery and there is no corrosion at the terminals.

HINT: Usually, there are telltale signs that a battery is about to fail.

FALL CAR CARE

Have Car Inspected When Lease Expires

Leasing has become a popular way of acquiring a vehicle. For those who face the decision regarding turning the vehicle in at the of a lease vs. taking ownership, Car Care Council offers a suggestion: invest in a comprehensive inspection by an independent expert before the lease has expired. This is especially important in the case of a high mileage vehicle.

A vehicle with 50,000 miles or more may need maintenance and repair work that can add hundreds of dollars to the cost of acquisition. The check list should include such parts as drive belts, brake pads, filters and fuel ignition system components.

While few, if any, of these components will need attention on most lease-end vehicles, the possibility of excessive wear or damage does warrant a close inspection.

Even in early stage of a lease, a damaged rubber CV boot, for example, can soon lead to expensive repairs. Car Care Council offers a pamphlet that includes a comprehensive check list

Engine Timing Belt Can Be A Ticking Rubber Time Bomb

If you drive a car that's less than 10 years old, there is an excellent chance you are driving with a ticking rubber time bomb under the hood.

By ignoring this out-of-sight, out-of-mind, "maintenance free" component, catastrophic side-of-the road failure is not a question of "if" but of "when."

Most of us are familiar with the rubber belt used to transfer power from the engine to the cooling fan, alternator, power steering pump, and air conditioner. In most cases, these belts can easily be inspected periodically for fraying or excessive wear, and are relatively easy to replace. If they do not break, you can usually still make it to the repair shop or a telephone.

But many vehicles are equipped with another belt, the engine timing belt, that is not easily viewed. If neglected, it can cause far more damage than any of the other belts.

Timing belts keep the valves, pistons, and other internal engine parts properly synchronized. The good news about rubber timing belts is that they don't actually stretch, which means there is no need for periodic adjustment. The bad new is that they eventually will weaken and break.

The Car Care Council advises that the "cost" of a broken belt can be much more than simply being stranded on the side of the road. Many of today's high-tech engines are manufactured to such extremely close tolerances, that a broken timing belt will allow the pistons to hit the valves, bending them and possibly destroying the pistons or even the complete engine as a result.

Timing belts often fail from the inside out, making visual inspection somewhat unreliable. This is why vehicle manufacturers recommend replacement of timing belts, typically every 60-90,000 miles, although this varies among manufacturers. Timing belt replacement intervals can easily be found in your owner's manual, or any garage or dealership service department can look it up for you.

Timing belt replacement is a simple procedure for trained technicians. This once every four or five years investment is a small price to pay considering the alternatives, because when it comes to keeping your internal engine parts internal, timing is everything!

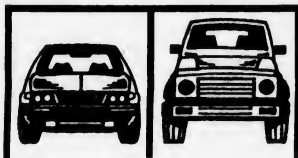
What Do You Know About Car Care?

"All I know is to turn the key to start it."

"Brake fluid? What brake fluid? My husband checks that, I think. Shouldn't he?"

Sound familiar? These excuses typify how some people explain their neglect of preventive maintenance which leads to mechanical trouble.

As a step toward filling that void in public awareness, editors of the Car Care Council have compiled a book of 110 multiple-choice questions and answers on this subject. Their objective: to reduce maintenance neglect in the interests of highway safety, fuel efficiency and reduced vehicle emissions.



To receive the Car Care Quiz Book, send a check or money order for $5.95 to: Car Care Council, Dept. Book, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Presidents Host Ply. South Friday

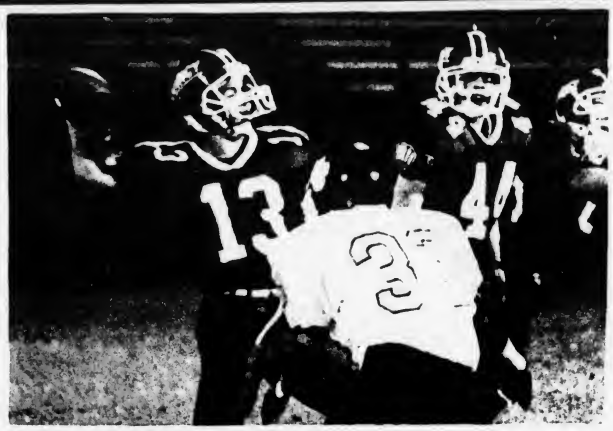
Faherty's Career Best Among Highlights Of Quincy's 27-6 Victory

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Continuing its hot start, the Quincy High School football team earned its third victory in four games, romping over Taunton, 27-6, last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Presidents (3-1) were sparked offensively by senior tailback Shaun Faherty, who rushed for a career-high 199 yards on 28 carries and his sixth touchdown of the season. Another big contributor was and senior fullback Steven Maze, who caught four passes for 54 yards and compiled 30 yards on the ground on five carries, including two touchdowns (his fourth and fifth of 1997).

"Both those guys were immense for us," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella. "We don't even feature one back, so for Shaun to gain almost 200 yards is incredible. He also has over 500 rushing yards in four games and has developed into a strong, powerful running back."



"Steve's done a great job, too, catching the ball and running the ball. He's a heady kid who also does a heck of a job at middle linebacker. He's like an additional coach on the field, a definite asset to our squad."

QUINCY SENIOR FULLBACK Steven Maze celebrates one of his two touchdowns during the Presidents' 27-6 victory over Taunton. Maze scored on runs of 15 and six yards as Quincy won for the third time in four games.

Quincy looks to match last season's win total when they go for their fourth victory Friday night at 7 against visiting Plymouth South (1-3). Though the Panthers have lost both their road games and have struggled early on, the Presidents aren't about to take them lightly.

PRESIDENTS' SENIOR QUARTERBACK Kevin Moore unleashes a pass as Taunton's John Carr (33) moves in to break up the play. Looking on is Quincy tailback Shaun Faherty (44), who rushed for a career-high 199 yards on 28 carried and scored his sixth touchdown in the victory.

"They're a tough defensive team and their offense features a couple of kids who are capable of putting points on the board," said Chella, referring to the Close brothers, Justin and Adam. "They can sneak up on you if you let them, and we're definitely not at the point where we can take anyone lightly."

Another player Chella and his staff will keep an eye on is Panther linebacker Brian Carloni, whose uncle, Mike, was a linebacker and captain for Quincy in the mid-1970s.

"I coached Mike when he was here and he was a talented player," said Chella. "This kid is cut from the same mold."

Against Taunton, the Presidents' Faherty set the tone early with a 29-yard return on the opening kickoff. Later in the drive, Maze galloped 41 yards to the Taunton 2-yard line, but the play came back on a clipping call. Faherty single-handedly regained the yardage with four carries for 48 yards, including a 38-yard romp down to the 2.

On third and goal from the 1, senior quarterback Kevin Moore (5-of-10 passing for 71 yards) followed his blockers into the end zone for a 6-0 lead.

The Presidents then contained Taunton on its first possession, taking over at the Tigers' 34 when a bad snap prevented Taunton's punter from getting a punt away. Quincy went right to work on the ground, with Maze rumbling up the middle for a 15-yard touchdown. The score pushed Quincy's lead to 12-0 and concluded the scoring in the first half.

Taunton (0-3-1) cut into the Quincy lead in the third quarter when quarterback Ryan Colton connected with a wide open Jay Dumont over the middle for a 24-yard touchdown pass. The scoring toss, which followed a sack by Steven Wiltshire and two straight incompletions, came on a fourth-and-17 play with 4:37 left in the quarter. Quincy's Dan Nichol blocked the extra point as the Presidents retained a 12-6 lead.

Quincy quickly dashed any hopes Taunton had of a comeback by scoring 26 seconds later, on a 47-yard touchdown run by Faherty. Quincy's Bryan Dunn set up the scoring run when he found a seam and returned the kickoff to the Taunton 47. Maze increased Quincy's lead to 20-6 when he scored on the two-point conversion rush.

Not quite done, Maze scored his second touchdown on a six-yard run with 21 seconds left in the game, capping a six-minute, 12-play, 58-yard drive. Mike Turner kicked the extra point to close out the scoring.

Manets Edge Apaches; Elks, Panthers Also Win

YOUTH FOOTBALL

The fourth week of the Quincy Youth Football League saw the North Quincy Apaches fall from the ranks of the unbeaten and into a three-way tie for first place with the Houghs Neck Manets and the West Quincy Elks.

This coming Sunday's tripleheader at Veterans Memorial Stadium features games between the Apaches (3-1) and Squantum Storm (1-3), the Elks (3-1) and the Milton Mustangs (0-4), and the Manets (3-1) and Quincy Point Panthers (2-2).

This past Sunday, the Manets edged the Apaches, 22-21, in an exciting, back-and-forth battle.

The Apaches dominated the first half, taking a 15-0 first half lead. Apache running back Pat Bregoli rushed for a 20-yard touchdown and caught a 55-yard pass from quarterback Charlie Sorrento. Dave Rochon took the pitch from Ryan Farnham for the two-point conversion on the first TD, then Rochon kicked the extra point following the second TD.

In the third quarter, the Manets came alive when Paul Flynn returned a kick 25 yards into Apache territory. A few plays later, quarterback Jordan Virtue connected with Shawn Richardson for a 30-yard touchdown and Flynn cut the deficit to 15-8 with a run up the middle for the two-point conversion.

The Manet defense, spearheaded by linemen Brian Chenette, Donnie Brooks, Andy McWalter and Joe Hearn, forced the Apaches to punt. Again, the Manets drove down the field, with Flynn catching a 10-yard touchdown pass. The conversion failed, though, and the Manets still trailed, 15-14.

The Apaches responded with an impressive drive that was sustained when Bregoli passed to Sorrento on a fake punt and gave the Apaches a first down in Manet territory. Sorrento scored on a short run with two minutes left to play for a 21-14 lead, but the conversion try failed.

In the fourth quarter, Virtue pitched to Flynn on a sweep, and Flynn raced 70 yards to the end zone for his second touchdown. The Manets went for two, with Virtue hitting Richardson for the conversion and a 22-21 lead. It turned out to be the game-winning score when Danny Galligan intercepted an Apache pass and pitched it to Virtue, who ran it back 30 yards to seal the Manets' hard-fought victory.

The Manets' offensive line of Bill McKeon, Paul McAteer, Bill Reid, Dave Grogan, Dan Durocher, along with center Brian Chenette and Shawn Richardson, played outstanding football throughout the game.

For the Apaches, turning in solid performances were Joe Burke, Scott McDonald, Kevin Gaughan, Dennis Thomson and Kevin Holleran.

In other action, the Elks continued to impress as they cruised past the Mustangs, 28-6. In control throughout, the Elks moved the ball on their first drive as Scott Kelly ran 10 yards for a touchdown. A conversion pass to Chris Kerr pushed the Elks' lead to 8-0.

The Elks scored on their next drive as Mike Ryan ran the ball into the end zone. The Elks recovered the ensuing onside kick and a few plays later, Dan DiNardo reached paydirt. The Elks took a 22-0 lead into the break.

Milton scored its only points early in the second half, before the Elks closed out the scoring on a Jeff Quinlan TD reception from John Chevalier. Sparking the Elks' offense was the running of quarterback Dan Duggan and the blocking of first-time starters Norman Yuen, Matt Tierney and Tom Mulganti.

In other action, the Panthers turned in a solid performance on both sides of the ball en route to a 28-0 triumph over the Storm.

The Panthers were led by another two-way standout performance by quarterback Michael Lorenzano, who opened the game with a 65-yard touchdown run. The impressive Panther line of Kris Kamborian, Keith Ryan, Matt Frangipane, Matt Hodges and Matt Ramponi opened holes all day. Mike Regen, Mark Chella and Steve Pizzi did the bulk of the groundwork.

James LaFleur played a strong game on the receiving side and also stood out on defense for the Panthers. Steve Ramponi sparked the defense, especially in the second half.

Staunch Defense Lifts Raiders To First Win

North Quincy Visits Barnstable Friday

By LIAM FITZGERALD

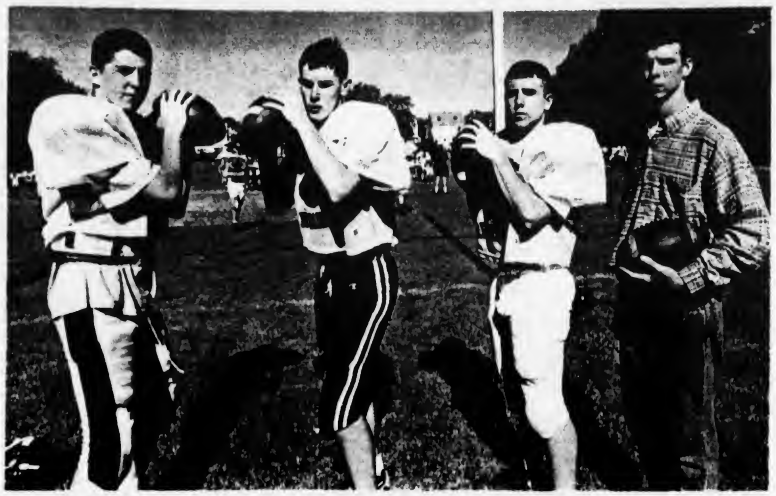
While the offense struggled to put points on the board, the defense turned it up a notch and sparked the North Quincy High School football team to its first victory last Saturday.

The visiting Red Raiders held on to beat Old Colony League foe Plymouth South, 7-6, to avoid losing their first three games.

"This was an ugly win, but we desperately needed to get one under our belt," said North Quincy head coach McPhee. "It was very important we won this game, because otherwise we'd be 0-3 and in a lot of trouble."

The game, originally slated for last Friday night, was moved to Saturday afternoon because the lights at Plymouth South's field had not yet arrived.

North Quincy (1-2) looks to reach the .500 mark when it visits OCL opponent Barnstable (2-2) Saturday at 7 p.m. Barnstable has fared better on the road than at home in 1997, winning two of three games, while dropping its one home tilt.



"They're a good team, though not as strong as in the past," said McPhee. "It's a pivotal game for us. We aren't happy with what's happened so far, and we need to play well and get a win."

"It'll be a rough one, and by no means are we thinking we can just walk onto the field and win. We have a long way to go and we need to put it all together--offense, defense and special teams--if we're going to come home with a W."

In the victory over Plymouth South (1-3), the Red Raiders moved the ball downfield throughout the first half, but could not reach the end zone. Meanwhile, the stingy North defense did not allow the Panthers to cross the 50-yard line, keeping the game remained scoreless at the half.

"We had a lot of opportunities to score, but we squandered them," said McPhee. "Mark Stanton made some big, big catches, Frank McNamara did a nice job and Chris Bregoli played well, too.

"On the other side, our defense picked up the slack and held them in check. They (the Panthers) only crossed the 50 once, and that wasn't until the fourth quarter."

The Red Raiders opened the third quarter with an eight-play, 62-yard drive, highlighted by the running of senior tailback Jay Turner (21 carries, 111 yards) and an 18-yard completion from junior quarterback Bregoli to senior tight end McNamara.

Senior wing Manny Vasquez then broke the scoreless deadlock with an 18-yard touchdown run, following the blocks of offensive linemen Chris Robinson and Kevin Bowes. Senior Mike Powers kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

After the Red Raider defense forced the Panthers to punt, North drove the ball to Plymouth South's 14 but turned the ball over on downs.

As the fourth quarter began, Plymouth South relied on the ground attack of brothers Adam and Justin Close, who combined for 42 yards on three rushes to bring the Panthers to the North 42.

Three plays later, Panther quarterback Steve Moyer connected with Adam Close for a 32-yard pass and a first down at North's 4. On the next play, Justin Close ran it in, cutting North's lead to 7-6. Opting to go for the two-point conversion and the lead, the Panthers were denied when Moyer's pass was swatted away by Powers.

The teams traded punts on their next two possessions before North took over at the Plymouth South 27 with 1:30 left to play. The Red Raiders used the clock to their advantage, letting it run down to the final 10 seconds before giving up the ball. Time ran out for the Panthers, and North returned home victorious.

10th Fowler House '5' Road Race Monday

Now in its 10th year, the annual Fowler House "5" Road Race in Quincy promises to be bigger and better than ever, said race organizer Bill Rizzotti.

The 5-kilometer race, slated for next Monday, Oct. 13, will begin and end in front of the Fowler House, 1049 Hancock St., Quincy. Walkers will start at 10 a.m., runners at 11 a.m.

"Every year, it seems to get steadier and better, and since it's the 10th annual race, I'm doing all I can to make it a memorable one," said Rizzotti. "It's a nice, enjoyable day and everyone involved has a good time. It's a community thing, and a lot of local people turn out to make it a success, which I'm grateful for."

Proceeds from the race will be split down the middle, with one half benefiting the South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens in North Weymouth and the other half benefiting Parkview Homes in Framingham.

"That's the main thing--helping these handicapped children," said Rizzotti. "That's why we started this race to begin with. We've helped these places out from Day 1, and will continue to do so as long as we can.

"I've actually gotten a lot of phone calls from people who are handicapped and want to be in the race, and I tell them to come on down, we'd love to have you involved."

While the previous two races each raised $4,400 for the two agencies, Rizzotti believes this year's event can break the $5,000 mark.

"I'd love to raise $5,000 this year; that would be nice," he said. "Hopefully, we'll get a nice day and a lot of people will come out for it. Then we'll reach that amount."

Last year's race drew approximately 250 participants, a number Rizzotti said could be eclipsed come Monday morning.

"I'm expecting about 250 to 275 participants, but we may get 300," he said. "We usually get 100 to 125 prerace applications, then the number doubles the day of the race. But as of this past Monday, I had over 100 prerace applications and the race is still a week away."

Weather plays a vital role in how many participants sign up the day of the race.

"We haven't had any rain for the previous nine races," said Rizzotti, "and I'm praying we don't have any for this one, either."

Applications are available at the Fowler House, the South Shore YMCA and local gyms. Cost is $10 for pre-entry, $12 the day of the race. For more information, call 773-9000.

The first 200 people to sign up receive a free T-shirt. All participants are invited to partake in the post-race food and refreshments in the parking lot behind the Fowler House. Wanna Bagel on Hancock St. in Quincy Center will donate 200 bagels the morning of the race.

NQ Girls' Cross Country Runners Excel In Vermont

North Quincy High School girls' cross country head coach Geoff Hennessy recently took six girls to the Thetford Trails run held at Thetford Academy, the oldest public school in Vermont.

The Thetford Trails run, one of the major invitationals in the Northeast, drew over 1,500 boys and girls from eight states who participated on a 5-kilometer challenging course.

North Quincy was paced by Lynda Wilson who placed 20th overall with a time of 20:33. She was the second fastest sophomore in the entire meet. Other NQ finishers were Sarah Houghton (81st, 22:20); Kelly Rose O'Brien (100th, 22:54), one of the top freshmen in the meet; Genevieve O'Brien (115th, 23:30); Nancy Gardner (25:46) and Shirley Wu (27:48).

The field was divided into several heats based on time, with Gardner and Wu running in slower sections and finishing midpack in those races.

The girls spent the night in a country inn that was over 150 years old. Several parents also made the trip up north.

"This will be annual affair, and we'll bring even more people next year," said Hennessy. "This was as 'first-class' an event as it could be. The entire community came out to support it. In Vermont, cross country running approaches the kind of status that volleyball has here in Quincy--it's a big deal."

Wilson was excited as her time surpassed her best time at Pageant Field, despite the fact that Thetford was much more difficult.

"Everyone thinks Bearcage Hill at Franklin Park is tough," said Wilson. "Thetford Hill was like three Bearcage Hills, but it's good to get beat by the best. It makes you appreciate where you are and keeps you focused."

North ran against Taunton Tuesday and hosts Dennis-Yarmouth Friday in a meet which is expected to be a battle.

Barra Shines At Two Judo Tournaments

Traveling with the Massachusetts State Judo Team, Christopher Barra of 99 Bigelow St., Quincy, recently competed in a pair of judo tournaments.

A junior at North Quincy High School, Barra competed in the 31st annual American East Coast Judo Championship in Newark, N.J., one of the premier competitions held annually in the eastern part of the country.

In the modified double elimination event, Barra advanced to the finals of the 16-year-old 160-pound class as the lightest competitor in the division. He scored and won mostly with a series of hand throws and submission strangles. In the championship match, he was well ahead when he was caught napping by Charles Boston and thrown with seoi-nage (shoulder throw) less than half a minute before time was to expire. He lost on points for his only setback of the day. Due to the double elimination format, he did not get another chance and had to settle for second.

In a smaller tournament near Hartford, Conn., Barra avenged a Bay State Games loss by defeating Radu Brestyan, last year's Israeli Junior National Champion and now a teammate of Barra's. Barra cleanly threw Brestyan with a left side marote seoi-nage (two-armed shoulder throw) for the win. Brestyan had an excellent day overall and placed just behind Barra in their weight class.

Barra, along with several other members of the judo team, will travel to the National High School Championships in Montana next March. Barra studies under instructors Bill Stevens and Tom Comerford at the L Street Judo Club in the Curley Recreation Center in South Boston and at Rich Angelo's Karate Studio in Everett with Rick Meara.

Woodward Soccer Earns Victories

The Woodward School soccer team improved to 2-3 with two recent victories over Montrose.

In a 4-2 triumph over Montrose, Quincy fell behind early, then tied the game with a goal by Kathleen Hester, assisted by Stacey Queripel. Woodward then took the lead on an unassisted goal by Stacey Queripel, and padded its lead with a goal by Ryan Kelley (Hester assist) and an unassisted goal by co-captain Stephanie Queripel.

Montrose was only able to score one more goal in the second half as Woodward received great efforts from goalkeeper Danielle Gatto, Alysa Snyder, Lori Mickiewicz and co-captain Jessica Boothby.

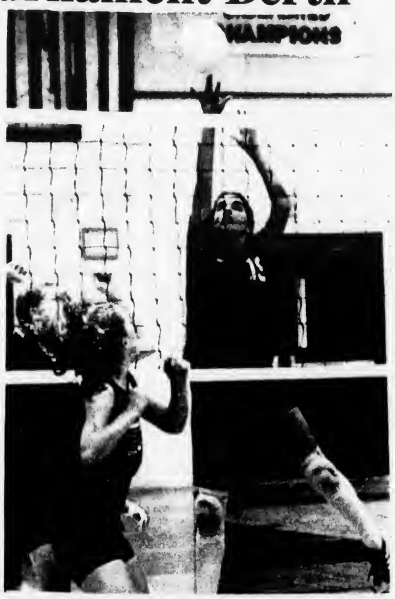
In earlier action, Woodward edged Montrose, 3-2, for its first victory of the season. Hester, Boothby and Janet McNamara and Jessica Boothby each netted a goal and Stacey Queripel added two assists. Contributing strong efforts for Woodward, which dominated the game, were goalkeepers Gatto and Kelley.

Raiders Three Wins Shy Of Tournament Berth

Dropping its first match after four straight victories, the North Quincy High School girls' volleyball team looked to get back in the win column yesterday (Wednesday) in a 4 p.m. match against visiting Falmouth.

Heading into yesterday's match, the Red Raiders (7-5) were three wins shy of a tournament berth. North hosts Dennis-Yarmouth Friday at 4 p.m., visits Braintree next Monday at 4 p.m. and hosts Plymouth North next Wednesday at 4 p.m.

"We have a couple of matches this week against teams we beat on their court (Falmouth and D-Y), and now they're coming here," said North Quincy head coach Jim Rendle. "We should be able to beat them here. If we do that, we'll focus on clinching a tournament berth next week."



This past Monday, the Red Raiders fell, 2-0, to host Milford, one of the strongest teams in the state. The game scores were 15-9, 15-13.

"Milford's traditionally a very strong team and this year's no different," said Rendle. "We played in a very difficult situation, on the road against a team that had never beaten us, and they were pumped up for the match.

"There were a lot of signs, music and fans, and maybe our younger players were a bit intimidated. We got off to a real slow start and were never able to recover."

Among the bright spots for North was the solid overall play of seniors Kerry Skehan and Megan O'Donnell.

In the first of two clashes with their crosstown rivals from Quincy, the host Red Raiders were in control throughout en route to a 2-0 victory. North won last Thursday's showdown, 15-6, 15-12.

RED RAIDER JUNIOR Angela Scott returns a shot during North Quincy's 2-0 victory over visiting rival Quincy last Thursday. The two squads meet again Oct. 25 at Quincy.

"I was real pleased with this win," said Rendle. "I thought it would be a close, close match but it really wasn't. Jess Lorman played above and beyond her years of experience, neutralizing Erin Barry, who is a great player for Quincy. She blocked Barry a few times and was a big plus for us."

Lorman, a sophomore, finished with six kills and four blocks and seniors Katie Sweester and Skehan played strong defensively for the Red Raiders.

"We played really great defense; we didn't let the ball hit the floor," said Rendle. "I think we wore them down. They were never able to score too much. Megan also gave another real good effort, and her experience is really starting to show. She stepped up her level of play and was a big help."

Last Wednesday, strong serving was the key ingredient in the Red Raiders' 2-0 victory over host Plymouth South. In the 15-3, 15-10 triumph, senior Jenny Nielson (six service points) and sophomore Katie Jellison (nine service points, 11 kills) sparked the offense, while junior Kim Huerth (eight digs) paced North defensively.

'Incredible' Defense Keeps Raiders In Tourney Hunt

SOCCER

In its last three games, the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team has scored a total of one goal. That's the bad news.

The good news is the Red Raiders (5-4-4) came away with two ties and just one loss in that span.

"The offense is in a bit of a drought, but that'll correct itself, because we have the talent and they've proved they can put it in," said North Quincy head coach Paul Bregoli. "The effort and the focus are there and we're playing tough, but we're just not scoring."

On the other side of the field, Bregoli bestowed praise on his nearly impenetrable defense, which in 13 games has yielded just 13 goals, seven of which came in two early losses.

"I can't even begin to say how pleased I am with how the defense has played," he said. "They've been tremendous and have really picked it up.

"Kristen Bowes has become more confident in goal and the backline of Katie Koch, Rachael Powers and Jen Conley has been simply incredible."

Needing two victories (or four points) to clinch a tournament berth, the Red Raiders looked to take one step closer to reaching that goal yesterday (Wednesday) in a 5 p.m. game at Silver Lake, the first-place team in the Old Colony League. Next Tuesday at 4 p.m., the Red Raiders visit Taunton.

In recent action, North battled host Barnstable to a 0-0 tie Monday, despite numerous second-half scoring chances. The shutout was the sixth of the season for junior goalkeeper Bowes.

North's defense limited Barnstable to just one scoring opportunity in the first half. That opportunity nearly resulted in a goal.

"If it wasn't for Jen Conley, we would have been down 1-0," said Bregoli. "The ball was going in the net, and she came across the area and kicked it away."

In the second half, senior co-captains Kristen Keohane and Laurie Flynn narrowly missed scoring chances as North kept the pressure on the Barnstable keeper, who made numerous saves to keep the game scoreless.

Bregoli was impressed with the strong performances of freshman Kellee Conley and senior Leela Shankar.

Last Thursday, the Red Raiders dropped a 1-0 decision to visiting Falmouth.

Falmouth scored the eventual game-winner just 15 minutes into the game. Again, North missed out on a few chances to get the equalizer or even overtake the Clippers.

"We had some great opportunities, but we're just not finishing the plays," said Bregoli. "Our best opportunity came when Ashley Murphy blasted a shot from 40 yards out that froze their keeper but sailed about six inches above the crossbar."

Five minutes into the game, North junior Dorothy Cronin suffered a mild concussion and was taken to a nearby hospital. She did not return to the game but did play in Monday's tie.

"That was a huge loss, because she's such a valuable player at the stopper position," said Bregoli. "Thankfully, it wasn't too serious and she's back playing. In her absence, Liz Bennett and Leela Shankar came on and played great soccer."

Koch and freshmen Jen Conley and Stacy Szcesuil also turned in strong outings.

Last Tuesday, the Red Raiders visited Plymouth South and came away with a 1-1 tie.

"We came out flat in the first half, but Bowes made some huge saves in the half to keep us in it," said Bregoli. "Their only goal came

MEN'S 50 AND OVER champion Joe Ryan, right, and finalist Leonard Ciavarro, display their awards.

CAPTURING THE WOMEN'S doubles title were Eileen Eleey, left, and Sheila McIntyre. They defeated Gail Trafton and Moya Christie to claim the title.

WOMEN'S SINGLES CHAMPION Elizabeth Ryan, right, and finalist Moya Christie display their awards. It was Ryan's second straight singles victory.

City Tennis Tourney Champions Crowned

The 27th annual Quincy Tennis Tournament, co-sponsored by the Quincy Municipal Credit Union and the Quincy Recreation Department, recently concluded at the Russell Park Tennis Courts.

Tremendous tennis was played by all the finalists, with some familiar faces and some new faces clinching victories.

Joe Ryan continued to amaze spectators with his consistent baseline style and captured two more singles titles this year. Ryan defeated Paul Vespaziani in the men's 35 and over singles and Leonard Ciavarro in the men's 50 and over singles, giving Ryan over 20 tournament titles.

Vespaziani and Ciavarro also had a great two-week run. Vespaziani captured the Lionel "Shine" Buckley Cup by defeating Ryan for the men's singles crown and Ciavarro made it into two finals and one semi-final due to his outstanding play.

Elizabeth Ryan, one of the finest young female players in eastern Massachusetts and a standout singles player at North Quincy High School, won her second women's singles title in a row with a win over the talented Moya Christie.

Elizabeth also reached the finals of the mixed doubles with her father, Joe Ryan, but lost to the husband and wife duo of Peter and Aileen Eleey. The Eleeys played flawless tennis all week with exceptional net play which resulted in their second straight William F. Ryan Cup. Aileen then paired up with Sheila McIntyre to defeat Gail Trafton and Christie in women's doubles.

The men's doubles draw had many new faces this year, with four new players battling it out for the championship. Mike Kenney and Rob Shetler topped the strong team of Ngwe Cheong and Mann Fai Tam to capture the title.

Another standout, Eldon Tam, knocked off defending champion Joe Holland to win his first championship, the 16 and under title. In a the men's "B" singles final, Jose Mateu outlasted Richard Meade to win the second singles crown of his career. A special thanks goes out to all the participants for their great play and outstanding sportsmanship.

Recreation Director Barry Welch praised longtime Tournament Director John Franceschini and Assistant Michelle Drury for their overall management, and Quincy Municipal Credit Union's Board of Directors for their support of the community in their second year of sponsorship.

MIXED DOUBLES CHAMPIONS Eileen, left, and Peter Eleey display the William F. Ryan Cup they won by defeating the father and daughter team of Elizabeth and Joe Ryan, right, who display their finalist plaques.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You may be signing an important contract in the near future, and you'll also defuse tension with a competitor. Distant matters prosper this week, but keep peace with the family over the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You'll have more money at your disposal soon. This week, you'll be very productive on the job, but you'll need to utilize tact with a difficult co-worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A new cultural interest will fascinate you. Also, a new adviser will enter your life. Enjoy social visits this weekend, but avoid a romantic spat with that special someone.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The weeks just ahead bring major business developments. This week, you may have the urge to redecorate. Don't let weekend tension escalate into an argument.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A cycle of increased popularity begins for you this week. You'll want to do something different this weekend regarding entertainment. However, avoid a tendency toward impatience.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A humanitarian interest takes up more of your time than you'd anticipated this week. An early-week inspiration leads to big things in the long run. Be tactful with superiors.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You'll be more sure of yourself once you receive the okay from a big-wig about work plans. A new start is just what you need. The accent is on teamwork, so don't force issues with a friend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Chances to improve your income are just around the corner. A new approach leads to career gains this week. This weekend, you don't see eye to eye with your mate.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your ability to communicate your ideas is tops this week. As a result, you reach important agreements. Use patience with loved ones, but enjoy social opportunities this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You're involved with home improvements for the most part this week. Persistence leads to a career success. Avoid squabbling about money over the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll have more time to spend with children or a romantic interest this week. Happy social developments are on the horizon as well. This weekend, pay attention when you're behind the wheel.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This week brings new insights about a financial concern. A cycle favorable to your work interests begins. Something at home could upset you over the weekend.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

In planning your estate, how can your set a fixed amount for your funeral costs - thus assuring that your heirs won't spend more than you would consider reasonable for such services?

One answer appears to be in pre-need or 'advance' plans. Today, pre-need plans are an important part of the funeral business. These plans can be used anywhere in the country and are fully protected. There are several advantages to a pre-need plan. One of the main advantages, of course, is to 'lock in' the expenses of funeral arrangements. A person who purchases a plan at today's costs can be assured that funeral services of the same level and quality will be supplied at the time of death, even if that is many years into the future.

If considering advanced planning or inquiring about funeral service options, we at Deware Family Funeral Homes are available at any time to talk to you about the options. And remember the decision will be yours. Satisfying your needs and desires is always our main consideration. We will answer all questions honestly and frankly and in the strictest of confidence. At no obligation, of course...

Giuseppe Parlavecchio, 89
Barber For 55 Years In U.S., Italy

A funeral Mass for Giuseppe "Joe" Parlavecchio, 89, of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Thomas More Church, Braintree.

Mr. Parlavecchio died Sept. 30 in Braintree Rehabilitation Hospital following a brief illness.

Born in Milford, N.H., he moved to Italy at age 4.

He became known as "the barber of two nations," beginning his 55-year career while in Italy. In 1959, he returned to the U.S. and barbered in Mattapan Square and Milton Square.

He went on to cut hair at Peter's Barber Shop in Weymouth Landing. In 1964, he purchased the shop from the owner, Peter Bisognanno, and renamed it "Joe's." He worked at his shop for 20 years before retiring in 1984.

Mr. Parlavecchio's son, Antonio "Tony" Parlavecchio of Braintree, and his son-in-law, Frank Boncaldo, have followed his tradition as barbers of their own barber shops, the South Shore Barber Hair Salon in Quincy and Designer Hair Salon in Weymouth.

About 12 years ago, two of Mr. Parlavecchio's grandsons, Bartolo and Joseph Boncaldo, both of Braintree, became the third generation of the Parlavecchio family to become barbers.

One of his favorite activities was gardening. He had an acre of land at his home on Commercial Street in Braintree where he would work on his garden frequently.

Mr. Parlavecchio moved in with his son soon after his retirement, where he spent time with his wife of 51 years, Agostina (Agati) Parlavecchio and his six grandchildren.

He was the founding member of the Tripensi American Club of Massachusetts, which consists of people from the Tripensi village in Italy where he spent many of his early years.

He is also survived by a daughter, Carmela "Nina" Boncaldo; two other grandsons, Joseph A. Parlavecchio of Braintree and Frank C. Boncaldo of Quincy; two granddaughters, Tina C. Parlavecchio and Maria F. Parlavecchio, both of Braintree; and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to American Heart Assn., 20 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Ralph C. Porter, 83
Research Librarian At Raytheon

A funeral service for Ralph C. Porter, 83, of Quincy, was held Oct. 2 at Christ Episcopal Church.

Mr. Porter died Sept. 30 at home.

He was a corporate research librarian for 10 years at Raytheon, researching data for architects and engineers for international government building restrictions and laws.

He served as a private first class in the 79th Infantry from 1942 to 1945. A singer, he had attended the New England Conservatory of Music in the 1930s and performed professionally, including at the Old Howard in Scollay Square. The Army assigned him to a special service unit providing entertainment for troops in England and France. He helped plan and direct the programs and often served as master of ceremonies. One of the performances was attended by Queen Elizabeth, the mother of the present Queen Elizabeth II.

He was a member of the DAV, the American Legion, St. John's Seniors, the Night Owls, and the Drop-in Club.

Born in Everett, he lived in Quincy for 47 years. He was a graduate of Boston English High School and attended Emerson College.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth B. (Andrews) Porter; a brother, Jerome L. Porter of East Boston; a sister, Lorraine F. Larkin of Thousand Oaks, Calif.; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to American Parkinson's Disease Assn., 720 Harrison Ave., Boston, MA 02118; or St. John's Seniors Church, 21 Gay St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Alice A. Dooley, 80

A funeral Mass for Alice A. (Calnan) Dooley, 80, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Ann's Church.

Mrs. Dooley died Sunday at the Colonial Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Weymouth.

She was a founding member of the St. Ann's Church Women's Club.

Born in Boston, she lived in Quincy for more than 30 years.

Mrs. Dooley is survived by her husband, Andrew J. Dooley of Quincy; two sons, Andrew J. Dooley III of Centerville and James F. Dooley of Carver; a daughter, Patricia Ann Dooley of Quincy; a sister, Ann Horrigan of Quincy; and three grandchildren.

Dr. Paul I. Ossen, 80
Longtime Quincy Physician

A funeral service for Dr. Paul I. Ossen, 80, of Quincy, was held Sunday in Temple Beth El, Quincy.

Dr. Ossen died Sept. 30 at Deaconess Hospital Palliative Care Center in Boston.

A well-known Quincy physician, he had a practice in internal medicine in Quincy from 1949 until his retirement nine years ago. He was a respected and beloved physician in the Quincy community where he treated thousands of patients over the years.

After his retirement, Dr. Ossen returned to college at the UMass-Boston campus where he was one of the oldest students and was quickly welcomed by the younger student body.

Dr. Ossen took history and political science courses at the Harbor Campus for nine years, even going to summer school and exploring the politics of communication and the politics of film during a course last spring.

Born in Everett, he graduated from Everett High School in 1934. He received his undergraduate degree from Dartmouth College in 1938 and his medical degree from Boston University Medical School in 1943.

After graduation from medical school, he entered the Army Medical Corps and served in World War II, attached to the 6th Night Fighter Squadron serving as a captain in the Asian Theater until his discharge in 1946.

From 1946 to 1949, he served on the medical staff at the Veterans Administration in Newington, Conn. He returned to Boston in 1949 and moved to Quincy and established his medical practice.

Described by his family as "a modest man who shunned recognition for his charitable endeavors," Dr. Ossen was a major contributor to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy and the Roth Center for Jewish Living at Dartmouth College.

He was a longtime member of Rotary and the South Shore YMCA. Dr. Ossen supported numerous Jewish charitable causes including Haddasah, in memory of his late wife, Bernice (Tobias) Ossen, who died in January 1995, and the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Boston.

Four years ago, Dr. Ossen was still attending staff meetings at Quincy Hospital and worked out daily at the YMCA until late this summer.

He is survived by a son, Richard P. Ossen of Brookline; a daughter, Roslyn B. Loiter of Columbia, Md.; and four grandchildren.

Burial was at Mishkan Tefila Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were by the Stanetsky Memorial Chapels, Brookline.

Henry I. Simmons, 72

Booklet On Elder Assets Available

A booklet entitled, "A Guide for Elders: Planning That Protects You and Your Assets" has been made available through the University of Massachusetts-Boston Gerontology Institute, announces state Rep. Michael Bellotti.

"The guide is a user-friendly 'how to' booklet that gives the reader practical advice on such subjects as wills, powers of attorney, guardianship, health care proxy, nursing home considerations, and consumer complaints," Bellotti said.

The booklet is in high demand, with over 20,000 copies being sent out last through local Councils on Aging and other agencies across the state.

The booklet can be obtained through the UMass Gerontology Institute by calling 287-7300 or by contacting Bellotti at 722-2582.

Accepted By Council Committee

Signage Ordinance Takes Step Forward

A proposed signage ordinance took a step forward Monday night when it was accepted by the City Council Ordinance Committee with the addition of several amendments.

The formal council vote will be taken before the end of the year.

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, committee chairman, noted that a specially-formed committee consisting of downtown merchants and others has been working to put together the new law for two and a half years.

Highlights of the law, as presented to councillors by Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets and head of the signage committee, are:

•The new ordinance now conforms with the state code revision.

•Businesses will be allowed to put their names on their storefronts more than once.

•There are larger window sign allowances.

•Provision has been made for the many new types of signs that have been developed since the last ordinance was accepted in 1974.

•Per their requests, businesses may hang additional signs with the new rules and regulations.

•Requirements for sign repair and maintenance have been been greatly strengthened as have the rules for abandoned signs.

•Lettered awnings have been allowed as long as they do not protrude more than 12 inches from the wall.

•A business may be licensed for a freestanding sign by permit of the Building Department without having the business necessarily go to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

•All projecting signs, and others currently in violation of the present code will be required to be removed within one year. Mader said that deadline addresses a fairness issue in response to those who followed the current law and had their signs removed and replaced as required by the current ordinance.

•Temporary signs are formally allowed and regulated "within rules and regulations taking into account common sense."

•The ordinance is more conducive to the needs of business owners.

Mader added that there are several downtown businesses that have asked to be removed from the city's historic district for reasons related to signage, but that issue will be addressed at a later date.

Councillors, including Council President Peter Kolson, voiced support for the new law, saying it will help foster and promote business. However, several changes were suggested, including:

•Councillor Michael Cheney said the ordinance should be amended to allow types of signs banned under the law--including animated and free-standing signs--to be used during a city-ordained special event such as First Night Quincy.

•Councillor Paul Harold proposed an amendment that would allow businesses that have legitimate sign permits from the Building Department two years to replace their signage. He noted that while some businesses have openly defied the law, some unknowingly received permits from the department that allowed them to put up signs that were not in compliance.

•Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott asked that illumination wall signs to remain under the jurisdiction of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Durkin said the law will be amended, put into proper form and advertised before being sent to the Planning Board for a public hearing. A council vote will follow and must be taken before Dec. 31, since the matter has been before the council for two years.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... Anthony Hopkins, Alec

Baldwin, wife Kim Basinger, and the rest of the cast all showed at the Toronto Film Festival for a screening of "The Edge" and the partying afterward. Sir Anthony said his role of Charles Morris, the introverted millionaire bookworm, is very much like himself except for the millionaire part. Baldwin and Hopkins were loud in their praises of the other's work saying how much they enjoyed working together. Said Hopkins, "It was fascinating. Alec comes on like gangbusters. I, on the other hand, tend to be more laid back." Baldwin affirmed, "Anthony Hopkins is the best actor around today."

"Fire Down Below" is Steven Seagal's 10th motion picture. He's one of the box office's biggest draws and this one is pulling in the expected big bucks. And by the way, did you know he's the first non-Asian to organize his own dojo in Tokyo? Yup. He grew up in Fullertown, Calif., and when he discovered a dojo in a neighboring town, he became interested and took up aikido. Ten years later, he moved to Japan, became a master of the martial arts and opened that dojo which today claims 100,000 students.

"Sphere," the Dustin Hoffman, Sharon Stone, Samuel L. Jackson starrer won't make it for a Christmas release and a shot at an Academy nomination. More post-production complications than were expected, so it won't be hitting the Big Screen until about February.

BITS 'N' PIECES: Steven Spielberg knocked Oprah out of first place in Forbes magazine's annual ranking of the 40 highest-paid entertainers of the year ... Quite an array of impressive male actor names for Annette Bening in her latest, "In Dreams." Stephen Rea, Aidan Quinn, and Robert Downey, Jr. The latter doing very well after his drug rehabilitation. Let's hope he keeps it up, because he's quite a talent ... George Clooney should play "Superman" instead of "Batman." Everyone wonders how he keeps it up with shooting "ER" and one feature film after another. Ask George. He'll tell you he loves his work, and that's all you need to keep going ... Aside to Helga H. of Cambria, Calif.: Indeed Olympia Dukakis is still around. At the moment, you can see her in "Picture Perfect" with Kevin Bacon and Jennifer Aniston, and she's doing a lot of stage work at smaller theaters. This being her first love ... Amazing the number of movies this season starting with THE. To name a few — "The Edge," "The End of Violence," "The Assignment," "The Ice Storm," "The Matchmaker," "The Game," and there's more, but I'm sure you've had enough by now ... And wouldn't it be great if it comes to pass? Jodie Foster, Anthony Hopkins, and director Jonathan Demme talking a sequel to "Silence of the Lambs." They're just waiting for the galleys of the new novel from author Thomas Harris ... Jackie Collins' newest, titled "Thrill," hits the bookstalls come February. Understand sister Joan is also limning another tome ... Aside to Phyllis H. of Freeport, L.I.: Your guess is as good as mine. Last time I saw Geena and Renny they looked so in love. Why they are divorcing they've not said ... Kelley LeBrock, Leslie Nielsen and Michael York all drinking in the beauty of Vancouver while they shoot "Wrongfully Accused" in that beautiful city. It's a spoof on "The Fugitive" ... And this could be much fun. Anjelica Huston as the evil stepmother and Drew Barrymore as Cinderella in Fox Family Films' version of the age-old children's classic ... And leave it to Disney. When a pack of people rallied in front of the studio in Burbank to protest the Disney pro-homosexual policy, employees went out and served them cookies and soft drinks. You can imagine what happened to all the protesting.

Ledger Sale To Be Finalized In 3-4 Months

expressed interest in acquiring The Ledger. It reportedly was not the high bidder.

Sources at The Ledger said there was general relief that the final decision had been made but there were mixed feelings about the sale with "a wait and see attitude" as to what kind of a newspaper The Ledger will be under new ownership.

How or if Low, Ketter, and other Ledger management personnel will fit into the new picture is not known. Low has indicated he will have nothing to do with becoming a figurehead in the new lineup.

The new owners have indicated there will be no layoffs among the rank and file but there reportedly is some apprehension about that.

Plugh, an experienced newspaperman, plans to become publisher of the Ledger when the purchase is finalized. Both he and Richardson said they would prefer to have a Sunday edition of The Ledger but the market might not be right for that move.

Newspaper Media LLC purchased the Brockton Enterprise in January from the Fuller family which had owned it 117 years.

The Ledger circulates in 26 communities and has 500 employees. The Enterprise has circulation in 28 communities and has 350 full and part-time employees. The Ledger and Enterprise over-lap one another in a dozen communities.

LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 97-229

ORDERED: OCTOBER 6, 1997

1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy that the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended as follows:

Chapter 2.48.020 is hereby amended by adding at the end of said chapter the following new paragraphs.

"No contract for the purposes of providing goods or services to the city shall be entered into, renewed or extended with any person or other entity unless such person or entity certifies in writing, under the pains and penalties of perjury, that it does not do any business with or purchase any products from any company which has direct investment or employees in the country of Burma, also known as Myanmar. In the event the city purchasing agent determines that a person and/or entity doing business with the city violates the terms of the certification herein given, he shall forthwith terminate the contract with such a written notice sent by first class mail to the address or record listed in such contract.

The city purchasing agent shall establish and maintain a list which contains the names of all persons and/or companies currently doing business in Burma."

2. The city purchasing agent shall provide written reports to the City Council on the implementation of this amendment to the Quincy Municipal Code. The first report is due six months after the effective date of this amendment. The next report is due one year after the effective date of this amendment, and yearly thereafter.

3. This amendment shall remain in effect until democratic rights are restored in Burma, as evidenced when the National League of Democracy in Burma specifically requests the lifting of sanctions.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted.

Are You Getting A Raise?

(NAPS)—Pay day was a little sweeter for nearly seven million Americans—including many family breadwinners--who got a raise on September 1, 1997, when the Federal minimum wage increased to $5.15 an hour. This Labor Day's 40-cent raise, together with last October's 50-cent increase, will help about 10 million Americans pay for their housing, health care, groceries and other necessities, and will lift 300,000 Americans out of poverty.

"In our great nation, everyone who works hard deserves decent pay," said U.S. Secretary of Labor Alexis M. Herman. "This increase provides a step in that direction, without sacrificing jobs."

Old Minimum Wage $4.75/hour
New Minimum Wage $5.15/hour

If you earn between $4.75 and $5.15 an hour, watch your paycheck, you should see a raise. If you don't, or if you have questions, contact your employer.

Or, call the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division. The number for the local office is in the blue pages of the phone book.

Council Supports Concourse Landtakings

property owners and will help them in any way possible during construction. That assistance will include providing the businesses with replacement parking, he noted.

The first phase or "west link" of the project will include the construction of a new 62-meter (200 feet) multi-span bridge over the MBTA rail corridor and adjacent parking lot, the reconstruction of 270 meters (900 feet) of Burgin Parkway, 150 meters (500 feet) of the Granite Street Connector and 135 meters (450 feet) of the Parkingway.

The work will also include installation of new traffic signals at the Burgin Parkway/concourse and concourse/Parkingway intersections as well as pavement markings and signage.

Officials said Monday night work on the concourse is expected to begin by June. City officials have said in the past the roadway should be open to motorists by late 1998 or early 1999.

The concourse is seen by city officials as a roadway that will not only help ease area traffic problems but also revitalize the downtown by providing access to Quincy Center.

$63.5M To Be Spent For City Water Pipes Overhaul

(Cont'd from Page 1)

$1 million, no-interest Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) loan.

In order to help reduce that amount, the city will also use a $334,000 MWRA grant, $495,000 in federal Community Development Block Grant funds, and $900,000 from a proposed increased in building permit fees.

Building fees are now set at 1 percent of the construction value of a development.

Colton said Sheets and the City Council will file a home-rule petition with the state Legislature to raise the fee to 1.5 percent.

Birthing Classes At Hospital Begin Nov. 4

Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., will offer first-time and refresher childbirth classes in November and December.

The first-time childbirth class is offered as a four-week series or a weekend course. The four-week class is held Tuesdays from 7 to 10 p.m., Nov. 4 through 25. Weekend classes will run Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 13 and 14, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The first-time childbirth class covers labor and delivery, breathing relaxation, post partum and baby care. The refresher course reviews several sections of the first-time class for women who are having another child.

Cost for the first-time series is $100, the refresher course $50. Advance registration is required and space is limited. For more information, call 376-4018.

City Council Briefs

The City Council took the following action at its meeting Monday night:

•Appropriated $145,200 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account for Quincy's After School Recreation Programs. The council annually appropriates the funding for the citywide programs.

•Accepted gifts totaling $7,000 for the city's DARE (anti-drug) program. They included donations of $5,000 from Copeland Family Trust and $2,000 from the Rotary Club of Quincy.

$250,000 For Contaminated Soil Cleanup

Viden Road and other streets in the area.

Also voicing support of the appropriation was Councillor Timothy Cahill, who said "it is responsible government" for the city to spend wisely throughout the course of a year in order to have free cash for such an emergency.

"This is one of the reasons we have free cash," said Cahill. "This is an emergency, no question about it."

Work 'Going Along Fine'

Blasting End Seen This Week

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Blasting necessary for the construction of a new I-93 southbound off-ramp in West Quincy began last Wednesday and is expected to be completed by the end of this week.

The state-built ramp will provide direct truck access to Ricciuti Drive and the nearby site of a planned golf course/recreational facility.

Quarry Hills Associates, a limited partnership formed for the specific purpose of developing the West Quincy site for the project, is taking calls from anyone with complaints about the blasting. The number is 847-1473.

Walter Hannon of Quarry Hills Associates said at press time the organization had only taken one phone call from a man seeking general information about the project.

Blasting is taking place at 4 p.m. and 11 p.m. daily.

Quincy Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said the work "seems to be going along fine."

"We're very pleased with the progress," he said.

The blasting is necessary to clear ledge in order to make room for the off-ramp, which will help pave the way for the beginning of construction of the golf course.

Milton Man To Head Inspectional Dept.

Services Director Named

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has named Walter White of Milton to the position of Quincy's director of inspectional services.

White, 44, a Milton resident, will work two Fridays to familiarize himself with the position before beginning full-time Nov. 3. He is currently local building inspector for the Town of Franklin as well as the founder and president of the Walter C. White Construction Company in Wollaston.

White was selected by Sheets last week after his name was submitted to the mayor by a specially-formed committee that selected him from a pool of five finalists. Originally, there were about 30 candidates, and the committee trimmed that number to eight before the finalists were chosen.

Sheets said he is confident White is the right person for the job.

"He was the unanimous choice of the committee, and I've interviewed him," said the mayor. "He seems to be an individual of character, and I think he would be a good administrator. He seems very logical, very pragmatic. I think he'll be a good fit."

White, who could not be reached at press time, graduated from North Quincy High School in 1971, received a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice from Northeastern University in 1977, and graduated from the Building Officials and Code Administrators International (BOCA) Executive Development Institute this year.

He is also a 1974 graduate of the Massachusetts State Police Academy in Framingham and served as a state trooper from 1974 to 1979.

White is a member of Polaroid Corporation's "Power of Photography in Remodeling" Ambassador Program as well as various professional associations and civic groups. He lives with his wife of 21 years, Patricia, and their three children.

Controversial Candidates Night Reset For Oct. 30

Sparks Flying In Ward 4

Sparks are flying in Ward 4 as the race for the City Council seat there is beginning to heat up.

Candidate Steve Hawko, the challenger to Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, is accusing the incumbent of backing out of a Candidates Night that had been scheduled for Oct. 21 at the Ward 4 Community Center.

D'Amico, however, says he has two legitimate conflicts and will be unable to attend the event.

Hawko said he also will be at the two events D'Amico is planning to attend--specifically, a fundraiser for St. Mary's School and a Quincy Neighborhood Housing Association meeting--and that D'Amico has no excuse to miss the Candidates Night.

In addition, Hawko said D'Amico specifically had asked for the Oct. 21 date after citing a conflict with the original meeting time.

"Candidates Night gives the residents of Ward 4 an opportunity to discuss relevant issues directly with the candidates," said Hawko. "That interaction is crucial in order for voters to make an educated decision at the polls. The fact that my opponent has reneged on his commitment to appear at this forum is the height of arrogance in government. I wonder what he's afraid of--my new ideas or the voters' questions."

D'Amico, however, said he is not trying to back away from a debate with Hawko. He said candidate events are usually scheduled for August or September and that by October, it is difficult to attend such a forum because of City Council and Planning Board meetings, neighborhood coffee hours, door-to-door campaigning, and other conflicts.

"It was scheduled very last minute this year," said D'Amico. "It's unfortunate they waited until October to schedule the debate."

D'Amico said he questions how Hawko could

Creedon: Too Confusing To Do It Sooner

Marshall School Won't Open Until Next Fall

School officials have decided not to open the new Clifford A. Marshall Elementary School until next fall.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon told the School Committee last week that although construction on the building is slated to be completed this winter--which originally prompted officials to eye a January opening--it would be too confusing to open the school in the middle of the current academic year.

The committee unanimously approved Creedon's recommendation.

The Marshall School is being built to relieve overcrowding at Sterling Middle School in South Quincy, which currently is attended by middle school students from Quincy Point. The new school will be occupied by the students who now attend Point-Webster Elementary School, while Point-Webster will be converted into a middle school.

EUGENE CREEDON

Creedon said moving furniture and changing bus routes in the middle of winter would have been very difficult. He noted that in order to do so, the school would have had to extend one of its spring vacations and make up the class time in the summer.

The superintendent added that landscaping and road work near the school also will not be finished by the time the building is completed in January.

Creedon said the conversion of Point-Webster into a middle school will not be delayed because of the new opening date for the Marshall School, since the plan all along has been to leave the school vacant for the 1998-99 academic year and reopen it in 1999.

Firefighters Battle Marsh Fire Near BM School

A marsh fire behind the Broad Meadows Middle School kept firefighters busy this week, producing a rare tornado-like cloud of smoke Monday before being temporarily brought under control and then reigniting Tuesday morning.

The Quincy Fire Department was called back to the scene about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. Officials said two fire engines would be stationed in the area until the end of the day.

No one was hurt in the blaze and officials said no area homes were threatened by the fire. Several acres of the marshland, located at the end of Calvin Road, were burned.

The fire created a rotating black cloud that rose above the marsh and gradually moved through the field of elephant grass Monday afternoon.

Jim Notchey, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Taunton, said weather conditions caused the cloud to occur. He said it was created when air heated from the fire rose quickly and cooler air from outside the area was sucked in to replace it.

Notchey explained that light winds failed to dissipate the rising air, and it formed a swirling vortex.

Firefighters had the blaze under control at one point Monday afternoon, but it started up again around 5 p.m. They then battled the fire for another three hours.

Deputy Fire Chief Gerald Galvin said the fire could have reignited by the wind blowing a hot ember on more grass.

Marsh fires are an annual problem in the area when the grass dries out.

Tossing Tough Questions

Sheets Put To Test At Kids Voting Forum

MIDDLE SCHOOL STUDENTS pose questions to Mayor James Sheets during recent Kids Voting Quincy forum. By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets faced some tough questions from four Quincy residents during a City Hall forum last week.

Campaign issues raised included the state of the Quincy Public Schools, the future of the Fore River shipyard, pollution at Wollaston Beach, Sheets' political plans and others.

And there was no question about one thing: the residents showed an impressive amount of interest for people who are too young to vote.

The four were Sterling Middle School eighth graders Christine Niosi and Erika Pettinelli and Central Middle School seventh grader Paul Grazioso and eighth grader Jillian Mullen. They were participating in a candidates forum for Kids Voting Quincy, a partnership between the city and local businesses that encourages students to accompany their parents to the polls on election day to place mock "votes" that are tabulated after the official election results are completed.

The students, who were selected to represent their peers based on the strength of their questions, rattled off a total of 16 queries that Sheets answered in just under 20 minutes.

Among the questions and answers:

Q. "Many Quincy students walk to school in the winter, which can be pretty dangerous for kids. What could you do to make the walk back and forth safer?"

A. "Cancel school (Ed. Note: this deadpan response elicited laughter from the students). I have four children who went through the Quincy Public Schools, so I know how they used to watch for the snowfall. I think the only way you can do that, really, is to expand your sidewalk snow plowing and to come up with better equipment, and that's basically what we're doing. We've added some new sidewalk plows that really take you through the big drifts that you have.

"The danger comes when young people have to go outside the sidewalks and get onto the road where the cars are, and the road's slippery. So the basic way to make it safer....is to get your sidewalks cleared more efficiently and more quickly."

Q. "What has been your greatest challenge as mayor of Quincy?"

A. "I think my greatest challenge has been the rehabilitation of the Quincy shipyard. We've been working on the shipyard now for almost two years; we have a gentleman from Greece who is just a tremendous person--he's been here for two years--(and) in order to get the shipyard up and running, we have to deal with the federal government, the state government, the City of Quincy. We have to deal with the Department of Transportation in Washington, the Department of Commerce in Washington, the Department of Economic Affairs on Beacon Hill. We have to deal with the Department of Administration and Finance, we have to deal with the Fore River shipyard, we have to deal with, basically, Fleet Bank and the MWRA.

"And there's just a great number of agencies that are involved, and we've tried to put all of those together to first modernize the shipyard--and be a totally robotic shipyard--and at the same time, you've got to get guaranteed loans to build your first six ships. That's very difficult to do. It's probably one of the most complex projects that people have ever put together in this city, and it just takes a long period of time, and we're hoping that in this month of October, we're going to be able to close on the modernization of the shipyard so that that first phase will begin. But that has been the most challenging, the most difficult, the most frustrating, the most complex, at times discouraging, at times exhilarating, project that I've ever been involved in....It's probably the greatest challenge that I've had."

Q. "What plans do you

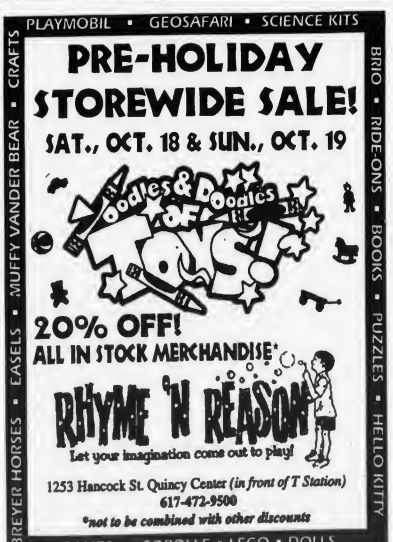
Quincy Asian Community Services Brochure Available

The Office of Mayor James Sheets, in cooperation with the Office of Asian Affairs, is offering the city's first English and Cantonese Asian Community Services Brochure.

The brochure was designed as a roadmap to the various agencies offering translation and referral to government and other social services in Quincy and the region.



Highlighted in the brochure are the Office of Asian Affairs, Quincy Police Department, Quincy Public Schools and Quincy Hospital. A listing of other agencies, offering Asian outreach, translation and referral is also provided.

The Asian Community Services Brochure will be available at City Hall, the Thomas Crane Public Library and all branches, Quincy Public Schools, Quincy College, Quincy Police Department, Office of Asian Affairs, Quincy Hospital, and all community centers and Asian cultural organizations in Quincy.

The brochure was designed and produced with funding from Quincy's Community Development Block Grant program.

Pet Peeves

Some people collect things like stamps, baseball cards, Hummels, Beanie babies and, even husbands or wives.

I've put a collection of my own together down through the years although you really wouldn't call it a hobby.

But you've probably collected a few of them, too: pet peeves.

Here are a few of mine. Not in any special order. Maybe some of them are yours, too:

• People who love dogs and love to let them roam freely, knocking over trash barrels, leaving souvenirs on the front lawn, changing your shrubs from green to brown, and baying at the moon at night.

• The sneak who steals a parking space reserved for the handicapped.

• Motorcycle cowboys who can't make enough noise gunning their bikes. If your car made as much noise, the Registry would have you in court or off the road for faulty equipment. If all the cars on the road made as much noise as motorcycles, an astronaut could hear it on Mars.

• Women who go to the extreme on equal rights but oppose opening all-women colleges to men. Or get annoyed if a man doesn't jump up and give her his seat on the bus or T.

• The "get-the-hell-out-of-my-way" character who roars through a residential area, tires screeching, ignoring parked cars from which a youngster might dart out from between. You wouldn't feel too sorry if you saw him again about a block away neatly wrapped around a steel utility pole.

• Or, his buddy having the time of his life speeding through rain puddles seeing how many pedestrians he can drown. You wouldn't mind meeting him later, either, with his car dead in the water, his engine conked out.

• Young girls in small cars who have seen too many movies or TV shows with young girls in small cars driving up your back.

• Blaring car radios that force rock 'n roll and/or a lot of other noise they call music on everyone within earshot.

• You and several others are waiting your turn to be waited on and the clerk asks, "Who's next?" And the woman who slides in from the side says, "I am."

• Trying to cross Hancock St. in front of The Sun office as cars roar down on you as if it was the Indianapolis Speedway. Someday someone is going to be splattered all over the crosswalk these hot-rodders ignore.

• The indignant writer who dashes off a hot-worded letter to the editor calling someone a crook or something a racket and finishing it off with a challenging "I bet you don't have the guts to print this letter." And he (she) doesn't have the guts to sign the letter.

• People who yak during the playing of the National Anthem.

• The guy who likes to surprise you by waiting until he starts making a turn before giving a directional signal.

• That sticky string stuff or bubble gum kids leave on sidewalks for pedestrians to step on and spend the rest of the day trying to get off their shoes.

• Watching an old movie on TV and trying to remember the name of a particular actor. And hoping the cast will be listed at end of the movie but there's some commercial instead. And then you lay awake half the night trying to think of the name.

• You're waiting for an important telephone call. The phone finally rings. And it's someone trying to sell you something.

• The horn blaster who lets you know the instant the red light turns green.

• The guy who calls the wrong number and gets annoyed because you answer the phone instead of the party he's trying to reach.

• People who don't return their shopping carts, leaving them in the parking lot to blow around on a windy day.

• And, last but not necessarily least, the waitress who doesn't know how to take an order for a dry martini on the rocks with a twist. Or, if she gets it right, the bartender who hasn't yet learned the science of mixing one.

That's it--for now, for me.

But if you have one of your own pet peeves, send it along.

And if one of them is opinionated columnists, I'll understand.

SECRETARY OF STATE William Galvin will be on hand for the ceremonies marking the re-opening of the City Council chambers Monday, Oct. 20 at 5:30 p.m.

He will join Mayor James Sheets, City Council President Peter Kolson, City Clerk Joseph Shea and members of the council for a ribbon cutting.

The chamber which was named after Quincy's only city messenger, Harry W. Tirrell, is also known as the Great Hall.

The chamber has been restored to close to the appearance it had in 1888 when Quincy changed from a town to a city.

The project, suggested by Kolson, was funded through a grant from Galvin's office, the Massachusetts Historic Commission and the city. The approximate price tag: $230,000.

FUNDRAISERS coming up along the political front:

Councillor Paul Harold has two: A brunch Sunday, Oct. 26, 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St. Tickets are $10 and may be obtained by calling Agnes Hogan at 471-9520.

A campaign reception for Harold is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 29, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Common Market, 97 Willard St. Donation $50. For more information call Mike Linnane at 770-0166.

Steve Hawko, candidate for the Ward 4 city council seat, has a reception on tap for Thursday, Oct. 23, 7 to 9 p.m., at The Adams, 1 Adams St. Tickets are $25. For more information call 773-0276.

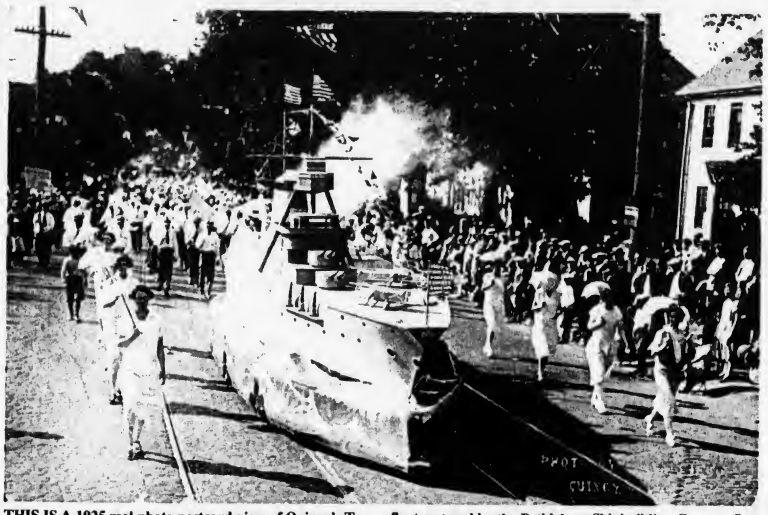
MILESTONE: Pete Zoia, who played football for the legendary Jack Donahue's first North Quincy High School football team and became captain in the 1930's, and then a legend in his own right, turned a young 80 on Monday.

Pete's family hosted a birthday part for old No. 20 at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall Monday--one of the nicest events ever put together.



Among those attending were those who played with and against Pete and those he has coached down through the years.

Mayor James Sheets interrupted some holiday yard work at home to present him with a city citation. No one seemed to mind that His Honor walked into the red and black (for North Quincy) decorated hall wearing a blue (as in Quincy) jacket.

Pete is still an assistant coach for Ken McPhee and has no thoughts of retirement.

Happy birthday, Mr. North Quincy. And many more.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1925 real photo postcard view of Quincy's Tercentenary Celebration parade. The week long celebration ended with this parade that had an estimated 140,000 spectators. More than 10,000 people marched along 182 floats. There were five divisions in the parade: Military, Civic, Schools, Floats and decorated automobiles and Trades. This float, entered by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. won first prize in the Industrial section of the Trades division. This view is looking north on Hancock Street. The building on the right at Johnson Avenue is now the site of the Kennedy Health Center.

Weld Did Nothing For The Republican Party

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a lifelong Republican, former member of the City Republican Committee, and two-time delegate to the State Republican Convention, I regret that I cannot share Mr. Mann's enthusiasm for William Weld (Readers Forum, Sept. 25).

However, perhaps Mr. Mann is correct in saying that the Massachusetts party is unified. After all, seeing how Weld's wing of the party has been so successful in driving from office several Republican senators and representatives, not to mention numerous social conservatives, maybe the few Republicans left are unified.

The painful fact is Mr. Weld did absolutely nothing for the Republican Party. In 1990, he bullied his way past Steven Pierce for the corner office and then, once elected, refused to support elected Republicans such as Sen. Erwin Wall of Taunton. William Weld's main agenda is William Weld, not the Republican Party.

Last year this Republican pro-life conservative cast his vote for John Kerry. The reason: at least Kerry knows he's a Democrat and appears at least to care for someone other than himself.

Focus On Aging Conference Was 'A Delightful Day'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Sept. 20, for the second year in a row, Quincy senior citizens were invited to the Focus on Aging Conference and were treated to a delightful day of learning and socializing, largely through the efforts of John Noonan, chairman of the Council on Aging (who originated the idea); Linda Stice, executive director of the Commission on the Family and Brian Buckley, director of the Council on Aging.

There was an ample choice of quality workshops, all presented by experts in their respective fields. Following the workshops, the participants were served a superb lunch.

A project of this magnitude must have involved months of preparation and many helping hands working behind the scenes. The conference was just another manifestation of the ongoing concern for the needs of senior citizens in the City of Quincy and, judging from the comments overheard on that occasion, the members of the aging population are very much appreciative of all that is available to them.

Something must be said, too, about the student volunteers at Broad Meadows Middle School who gave up their Saturday off to act as parking attendants and as guides in directing the senior citizens to and from the various workshops. They were most helpful.

A 'Thank You' From Granite House

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Granite House would like to thank the following Quincy merchants for supporting our fundraising efforts at a car wash, Sept. 13.

We would like to thank the Citizens Bank at 77 Granite St., and branch manager Ann Marie Burke for allowing us use of their parking lot and water. This is the third time Citizens Bank has given us its space. Also to be thanked is Rev. Luann Johnson at Covenant Congregational Church on Whitwell St., who for the third time allowed us to make use of the church's water to facilitate our efforts. Lastly, we want to thank The Big Party at 100 Granite St. for donating two dozen balloons which were used to advertise the event.

Granite House is a residential school and treatment program for adolescents, a program of Bay State Community Services, Inc., and money raised at the car wash will pay for on-line computer fees for an "Appropriate Internet Use" group counseling staff are providing to the residents, as well as computer upgrades.

We would like to take this time to thank area businesses for supporting our summer program for our residents: Hollywood Challenge Mini-Golf in Braintree for providing free games; Jordan's Furniture in Avon for providing free admission to the M.O.M. Ride; and to the John Hancock Observatory in Boston for 75 percent reduced admission.

The residents, families, and staff at Granite House deeply appreciate those contributions.

QHS To Hold Open House Oct. 23

Quincy High School will hold its annual Open House for middle school parents and students Thursday, Oct. 23.

Doors will open at 6:30 p.m., with registration from 6:45 to 7 p.m. After brief opening remarks by Principal Lloyd Hill, parents and students will be led on a tour of each academic department and the Center for Technical Education.

The evening will culminate in the cafeteria where extracurricular activities and athletic programs will be highlighted.

'Dizziness' Topic At Ward 4 Center

The Quincy Council on Aging and Logan Health Care Management are co-sponsoring an informational seminar entitled "Understanding Dizziness: What Can You Do About It?"

The event will take place Wednesday, Oct. 22 at 1 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

A complimentary luncheon will be served. For more information, call 376-1243.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Overtime Ordered To Meet Ship Delivery

Oct. 16 - 22
1950
47 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

John Wiseman, general manager of the Fore River shipyard, ordered overtime for 1,200 employees in order to meet the January delivery date for the ship Independence. Some craftsmen were working 10-hour days.

The yard was also hiring carpenters, interior finishers, sheet metal smiths and pipe fitters to complete work on the multi-million dollar passenger-cargo liner. The ship was one of two being built at the yard for the American Export company for their Mediterranean service.

American Export was so confident of the shipyard meeting its delivery date that reservations were already being made for its maiden voyage.

DOG, SHELLFISH OFFICERS UNDER CHIEF

City Manager William Deegan, by executive order, placed the dog officer and the shellfish warden under the supervision of the chief of police.

He did so because they both exercised police powers.

Francis Sweeney was dog officer for a number of years, while Carmelo Morreale of Main St. was recently appointed to the newly created shellfish position.

The shellfish job was created in response to complaints from residents of Adams Shore and Post Island, concerning the language and conduct of clam diggers on the beaches.

Sacco And Vanzetti Library Topic Oct. 23

Christopher Daley, president of the Pembroke Historical Society, will chronicle the Sacco and Vanzetti case from 1919 to 1927 in a slide presentation Thursday, Oct. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The robbery and murder that took place in South Braintree in 1920 led to a controversial murder trial one year later. The accused, both Italian immigrants and professed anarchists, were executed as the world watched.

Daley's lecture is the result of three years of research from old case files at Harvard Law School, the archives at Boston Public Library and at the Massachusetts Archives, and from many area libraries and historical societies. His slides include all the main personalities in the case and the robbery site then and now.

Concert To Mark John Quincy, Louisa Adams 200th Anniversary

A concert to commemorate the 200th wedding anniversary of John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine Johnson will be held Sunday, Nov. 9 at 3 p.m. at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Entitled "An American Tapestry," the concert will be performed by the Quincy Choral Society. It will include modern hymns, spirituals, folk songs and Broadway show tunes.

The Choral Society recently performed the concert at All Hallows by the Tower in London, where John Quincy Adams and his wife were married July 26, 1797. Their remains are entombed alongside those of John and Abigail Adams in United First Parish Church.

Proceeds from the concert will go toward replacing the carpet in the church sanctuary and front hall.

Tickets are $10, $8 for senior citizens and may be obtained at Abigail's Crossing, 1350 Hancock St., Quincy Center or by calling the church at 773-1290.

Ken Fallon Speaker At JWV Breakfast Honoring Roy Lind

Ken Fallon will be guest speaker at the 47th annual "Citizen of the Year" awards breakfast to be held by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Sunday, Nov. 2 at 9:30 a.m. at Beth Israel Synagogue in Quincy Point.

WJDA Radio Program Director Roy Lind will receive this year's award.

Fallon was vice president and commercial manager at WJDA for 34 years, retiring in 1982. He has been active with the Quincy Park and Recreation Board for 20 years as well as the Wollaston Golf Club and Rotary Club.

He became a Paul Harris Fellow of Rotary International in 1980, has been active in the Boy Scouts and Red Cross, and served as international president of United Commercial Travelers in 1970-71.

Fallon, a Quincy resident, and his wife Dorothy have two children, 12 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Quincy Multi-Cultural Festival At QHS

The Quincy Human Rights Commission and the City of Quincy will sponsor the 1997 Quincy Multi-Cultural Festival on Sunday, Oct. 26 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Quincy High School Theatre.

Featured performers will include:

•Peter Jae's Chinese Dancers, a group of about 25 dancers between the ages of 8 and 16 in Chinese costumes who will perform traditional Chinese folk dance.

•A group from The Viking Club of Braintree who will perform the music and dance of their native Scandinavia in traditional costumes.

•Otter Creek Singers and Dancers, an intertribal group of 10 Native Americans who perform drumming, singing and dancing from their ancestors. Native groups represented will include Cherokee, Blackfeet, Iroquois, Mohawk and Pannacook tribes. Group members play Pow Wow Drum, hand drum, water drum rattles and woodland flute.

•The Tommy Childs Scottish Band, which performs asthenic Scottish music and dance. Childs has appeared all over the world and has performed with the Boston Pops and Rod Stewart as well as Walt Disney's Epcot Center.

The Quincy Human Rights Commission also will be presenting its fourth annual award to Barbara Fenby, health educator at Broad Meadows Middle School, for her part in the school's violence prevention program, particularly "Increase the Peace Week."

The festival is free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be served. For more information, call Charlene McDonald at 984-5600, ext. 103 or Mark Leighton at 376-1071.

Michael Kane Honored As Eagle Scout

Michael Kane of Quincy, a senior at Boston College High School, received the highest designation in scouting, Eagle Scout, at a recent award banquet at the Quincy Masonic Temple.

COUNCILLOR-AT-LARGE

What The Press Has Said About Frank McCauley:

"Frank McCauley skillfully guided the city through the turbulent 80's. Despite the restraints of Proposition 2 1/2 and the expensive shipyard settlement with General Dynamics, his tough-minded cost-cutting and budgeting turned around city finances from an $11 million deficit when he took office, into surpluses. The impending budget crunch would be far worse without McCauley's conservative dollar-watching: he leaves the city in the black for the current year."

"Frank McCauley has spent 22 years in public office in Quincy. He has served his community well."

Surgeons-Podiatrists

WHAT TO EXPECT FROM TOENAIL SURGERY

When it comes to thinking about medical care, toenails are literally about the farthest things from our minds. Sooner or later, though, one of a number of foot problems may make toenail surgery an option. If so, it may be reassuring to know that most of these procedures are done in an office or day-surgery setting, with patients walking away afterward. A local anesthetic and small incision are usually all that are required for such treatments as removing a portion of the nail or nail root, or eliminating a bone spur underneath a nail. Use of lasers or chemical cauterization may also be recommended. Stitches may or may not be necessary. Any mild discomfort from the surgery will generally pass within a few days.

P.S. Toenail problems that may call for surgery include injury, ingrown or incurvated nails, fungus nails, or thickened nails.

As podiatrists, we handle a full range of foot care, including treating patients with toenail problems. We look forward to meeting with you and to making you more comfortable. Any other foot problem such as corns or calluses should also be treated by a professional. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

School Committee Candidates' Forum At Ward 5 Assn. Oct. 20

The Ward 5 Community Association and the City-wide Parents' Council will co-sponsor a School Committee Candidates' Forum at the association's October meeting.

The meeting will be held Monday, Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll School, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston.

There are six candidates vying for the three School Committee seats on this November's ballot. They are incumbents Jo-Ann Bragg and Ronald Mariano and challengers Kevin Coughlin, Michael McFarland, John Rodophele and Tracy Wilson. All have been invited to attend the meeting.

The audience will be asked to fill out question cards at the beginning of the evening. A selected number of question cards will chosen by the moderators for the candidates to answer. Each candidate will be allotted an equal amount of time to convey their goals and qualifications.

This year's election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 4. Deadline to register to vote was yesterday (Wednesday).

New members are welcome to join the Ward 5 Association. For more information, call Dave Murphy at 376-1251.

Squantum Assn. To Hold Candidates Night Oct. 23

The Squantum Community Association will hold a Candidates Night Thursday, Oct. 23 at 7 p.m. at the Robert I. Nickerson Post, 20 Moon Island Rd.

Ward 4, At-Large and School Committee candidates have been invited to attend.

Questions will be submitted in advance to the Squantum Community Association, 136 Standish Ave., Squantum, MA 02171.

Chretien Supports Durkin 'Senior Safety Zone' Plan

Lawrence Chretien, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, said he supports Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin's proposal to make Clay St. in Wollaston a "senior safety zone."

The new designation would be similar to school safety zones, where flashing yellow lights warn drivers to reduce their speed to 20 miles per hour.

Durkin's proposal requires state legislation. The councillor made his proposal in response to concerns about pedestrian safety on Clay St., where hundreds of senior citizens reside in two large buildings.

Chretien, the former Ward 3 councillor, said, "Councillor Durkin has come up with an outstanding idea. Most streets do not need special safety zone designation, but we all agree that streets around schools definitely do. Steve Durkin has made the logical observation that Clay St. is a special case too, precisely because of so many elderly people living at 80 Clay St. and 91 Clay St.

"I would expect that the state Legislature would create this designation within a few months, before I would take office. But if the bill has not yet passed by the end of 1998, it would be my top priority."

Chretien added, "While I think that the senior safety zone idea is a great one, I would add that we should also look for more police enforcement of the traffic laws. What is happening on Clay St. is happening on too many streets in Quincy.

"The police need to pull more people over for violations and more tickets have to be issued. Over time, this will make most people drive more sensibly. People have to fear the cost of getting a ticket, as well as the cost of being hit with insurance surcharges.

"If elected to state representative, I will look for ways to encourage better driving and traffic law enforcement."

Making life better is our life's work.™

You put in a 60 hour week. Your laundry has taken over your apartment. You're not sure what that is growing in the fridge.

If it's any consolation, coordinating your health care won't take long.

We figure you've got enough to worry about without having to add health care to your list. Which is why we do everything we can to make your care convenient. It all starts when you join any one of our 14 Harvard Pilgrim Health Centers. Each is equipped with most everything you'll need, including specialists, a lab, pharmacy and x-ray services.

What's more, our self-referral program allows you to seek care from many of our health center specialists (such as a nutritionist, psychologist or dermatologist) without your primary care doctor's prior approval.

Health Centers in Cambridge, Copley, Post Office Square, Kenmore, Medford, Somerville, Watertown, Braintree, Wellesley, West Roxbury, Burlington, Chelmsford, Peabody and Quincy.

Happy 30th!

TIMMY JONES, a politically-active Quincy resident, was honored at a recent 30th birthday party at the George F. Bryan VFW Post. At right is state Rep. Michael Bellotti. Mayor James Sheets, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and other officials also attended the event along with Jones' friends and family members.

House Passes Military Pension Tax Exemption Bill

Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano, and Michael Bellotti announce the passage in the House of Representatives of a bill which would exempt retired members of the military from paying state taxes on their pensions.

Military pensions are now taxed at a rate of 5.9 percent and are considered earned income. This bill would exempt military pensions from this tax and would be retroactive to the beginning of the 1997 tax year.

The estimated tax revenue returned to those who collect military pensions would be between $14 million and $17 million, delegation members said.

Michelle Bosse Joins Army

Michelle Bosse has joined the U.S. Army under the Delayed Entry Program at the recruiting station, Quincy.

The program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $40,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers received advanced individual training.

Bosse, a 1995 graduate of North Quincy High School, has reported to Fort Leonard Wood, Waynesville, Mo., for military basic training. She will then receive advanced individual training as a medical specialist, also at Fort Leonard Wood.

Her mother is Carol A. Bosse of 19 Phillips St., Quincy.

CURSE OF THE BUTTERFLY

A red rash that spreads like a butterfly in flight over a person's cheeks and nose -- that is one of the common marks of systemic lupus erythematosus. The disorder, usually called simply "lupus" or "SLE," is something of a mystery. We know that a patient's immune system goes haywire, forming antibodies that attack the body's own healthy cells. It is not known, however, what causes that system malfunction. A person struck by lupus may experience a range of symptoms from mild fatigue and muscle and joint discomfort, to excruciating pain and life-threatening kidney failure. While there is no cure yet for lupus, proper treatment can help ease symptoms and protect against further damage.

P.S. SLE strikes most often among young women. More than three quarters of patients can maintain good health with continuing treatment.

Chronic conditions require persistence to deal with them effectively. It is also essential that you have the help of a skilled and experienced physician. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. White House Wreath To Mark John Adams' Birthday Oct. 30

A wreath from the White House will be placed on the tomb of President John Adams in a ceremony at United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist), 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center, Thursday, Oct. 30 at 12:15 p.m.

The wreath-laying ceremony marks the 262nd birthdate anniversary of the second President of the United States, who was born Oct. 30, 1735.

Cdr. Paul Malloy, commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Center in Quincy, will present the wreath on behalf of President Clinton. Members of the U.S. Navy Color Guard will lay the wreath on the tomb of President Adams which rests in the crypt beneath the church.

This year is also the 200th anniversary of the commissioning of the USS Constitution which took place during the first year of the Adams Presidency. Cdr. Christopher Melhuish, commanding officer of the Constitution, will participate and offer remarks.

Mayor James Sheets, City Councillor Paul Harold, and Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site also will speak.

Capt. (USNR Ret.) and Mrs. William Douglas Wales will present 15-star and 24-star flags to be placed on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

A tour of the church and crypt will be offered following the ceremony. The public is invited and admission is free. For more information, call 773-0062 or 773-1290.

Ayers Seeks To Preserve Marina Bay Bird Sanctuary

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers says he is exploring all funding possibilities to protect and preserve Lot 23 at Marina Bay, which is currently used as a bird sanctuary.

Ayers, who has spent several months working on the matter, said he has received the support of his City Council colleagues and Mayor James Sheets. He said he also has worked on the issue with the Neponset River Watershed Association, the Quincy Citizens Association and the Wollaston Park Association.

The councillor also has written to state Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Michael Bellotti asking for their assistance within their capacity to search for monies within the Land Bank criteria.

Ayers said the site developer, Peter O'Connell, has expressed a willingness to sell the parcel if funding becomes available. Currently, he added, O'Connell is going through the permitting process to build 136 units on the parcel.

The site totals about 27 acres, but only six acres have been deemed developable by the state Office of Environmental Affairs, Ayers said.

He also noted that once the issue is resolved, he plans to take similar action regarding the Dickinson property on Victory Road.

SUN PUBLISHER Henry Bosworth presents two $400 checks to Jennifer Martin, MDA program coordinator, on behalf of George Parker, owner of the Yellow Cab Co. of Quincy. They are flanked by Vin Moscardelli, owner of ERA Central Real Estate, co-sponsor with The Sun of the Quincy Lockup and David Spellman, District Director Greater Boston MDA Chapter.

JOHN FRANCESCHINI, head of the Quincy Public School Physical Education Department and Quincy High School basketball coach, and Flo Buhl, School Athletics Department secretary, kept their phones busy.

Quincy Lock-Up Raises $15,300 For MDA

The second annual Quincy Lock-Up raised $15,300 for the Greater Boston Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The event was co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun and ERA Central Real Estate of Quincy.

More than 70 people local business men and women and other community leaders participated in the "jail and bail." The event was hosted by The Quincy Sun. "Jailbirds" were "arrested" and brought to the "jail" set up at the Sun. There, they called friends and associates for "bail" money using cellular phones donated by Cellular One.

Over the past two years, the event has raised more than $38,000.

Proceeds benefit children and adults in the Quincy and Greater Boston area affected by any one of 40 neuromuscular diseases. Funds go to patient services, medical equipment and research.

Those participating in the lock-up included:

Jack Elsen (Saturn Dealership of Quincy); George Parker (Yellow Cab Co.); Sean Barry (Quincy College); Thomas Charboneau (CVS of Southern Artery); John Keenan (executive secretary for Mayor James Sheets); Dick Norton, Margaret O'Neil (Peggy O's Hair Salon); Robert Smollett (Apartment City); Ed Steve (Atlantic House); Bill Beaton (South Shore Buick); Terry Bellotti-Welch (Citizens Bank); Paul Delorey (Patriot Ledger); John Foster (Citizens Bank).

Bank Of Canton Donates $5,000 To City At Ribbon Cutting

The Quincy Banking Center, Bank of Canton's recently-opened branch office at 275 Quincy Ave., has donated $5,000 to the City of Quincy.

Bank President James Egan presented the check to Mayor James Sheets during a ribbon-cutting ceremony held last Thursday. The funds are earmarked for the Squantum Gardens Elderly Housing Complex.

The Quincy Banking Center has only been open for two weeks but already is serving Quincy residents and business people, opening new accounts every day.

"We think Quincy is a remarkable city," said Egan, "and we're looking forward to letting Quincy know how remarkable the Bank of Canton is.

"Our bank is highly respected on the South Shore and the staff at the Quincy Banking Center are experienced Quincy banking people who care about the city and its people. We know when Quincy people experience our brand of service and see our competitive rates and product line they'll be glad we came, too."

The bank is open daily and Saturdays with early morning and evening drive-up teller hours for the convenince of its customers.

Watershed Assn. To Meet Oct. 29

The Fore River Watershed Association, which is based in Quincy, will meet Wednesday, Oct. 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Selectmen's Chambers of Weymouth Town Hall, 75 Middle St., Weymouth.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call 472-3189.

Wollaston School To Hold Pumpkin Fair Saturday

The Wollaston School, 205 Beale St., will hold its annual Pumpkin Fair on Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

There will be a variety of pumpkins to choose from as well as coffee and hot chocolate donated by Barry's Deli, a home baked goods table, taffy apples, popcorn, cotton candy, crafts and more.

Children's activities will include games, a "jump house" and fire engine. Other highlights will be a raffle table with a prize of $50 cash, gift certificates from local businesses, toys, and books for children and adults.

Habitat Receives Two Grants From Brooks Foundation

South Shore Habitat for Humanity (SSHH) has been awarded a $10,000 grant for the Granite Village development in Quincy from The Harold Brooks Foundation, for which Rev. M. James Workman, David Jones, Kevin Bryant and BankBoston are co-trustees.

In addition to the outright grant, the foundation approved a $5,000 challenge grant. The foundation has challenged SSHH to raise $5,000 from new donors in order to receive the additional $5,000 grant.

"I think this is a great opportunity for anyone who has thought about supporting Habitat because the funds contributed will be matched," said David Bigley, SSHH chief financial officer.

Bigley said he plans to approach Quincy business owners not yet involved with Habitat in order to meet the challenge.

The two grants will be applied to Habitat's Granite Village project in Quincy. Over the next three years, Habitat will build eight to 10 homes on Bower Road in partnership with Quincy families in heed. This is Habitat's first subdivision.

SSHH, which was founded in 1986, is a nonprofit, commercial Christian ministry dedicated to eliminating inadequate housing on the South Shore. Working with donated land, materials and labor, SSHH builds and renovates simple, affordable homes in partnership with families in need and South Shore communities.

The homes are sold at cost to low-income families at no profit with a long-term, no-interest mortgage. Payments are recycled through Habitat's Fund for Humanity, which helps to build additional homes in South Shore communities. As down payments on the homes, the carefully-selected Habitat family partners must contribute 500 "sweat equity" hours to help build theirs or additional homes.

For more information about SSHH or the Quincy project, call 843-9080.

New Siding Makes A Great First Impression

The first impression a home makes upon visitors is often the most lasting one. And because siding covers the entire home, it creates that all-important first impression.

It's not surprising that homeowners are turning to exciting new siding products that can transform their home's image. New siding products add image and appeal, as well as value, to just about any type of residence--from a colonial style home to a contemporary split level. When an older home is resided, the residence takes on a completely new appearance.

According to the experts at Masonite Building Products, one of the nation's leading siding manufacturers, curb appeal and overall appearance are very important to home buyers. That's why a recent Masonite study indicates that prospective home buyers list siding to be one of the top three features they consider before making a purchase.

Adds Value To A Home

"Consumers are seeking attractive, quality products that add to their home's value," says Ron Musolino, manager of sales and marketing for Masonite Building Products. "An investment in new siding immediately enhances the look of a home and continues to do so for many years afterward."

Thanks to the wide variety of easy-to-install siding products available, it's now easier than ever to brighten your home's image by residing. The range of choices also means that consumers have maximum flexibility in selecting siding and trim for their homes.

In fact, today's siding materials have been specially developed to provide the features homeowners look for in cladding material. Many of them have improved textures that provide a warm and welcoming look. In addition, the numerous color selections and finishes are designed to keep the siding looking good for years to come.

Moreover, most of the new materials can be installed quickly, offer long-term durability and require minimal maintenance once they're installed.

Popular Choices

One of the most popular options is a new generation of high-quality wood composite siding with an oriented strand board (OSB) base. Called OmniWood, it's manufactured by Masonite and available in a variety of styles.

OmniWood resists the buckling, warping and cracking that can occur with many siding products. Its unique features include superior dimensional stability, molded design profiles and a deeply embossed natural texture. It is available as primed, and ready for painting.

Another Masonite product, Colorlok, is a hardboard siding featuring a subtle textured wood finish. This texture creates the look of authentic wood grain, giving the residence an inviting appearance in any setting.

Factory prefinished Colorlok is offered in 11 different colors, all of which come with a variety of matching accessories for the ultimate flexibility.

"This new generation of siding materials is intended to satisfy just about every homeowner's tastes," says Musolino. "The products enable you to increase your home's worth while bringing out its natural beauty."

To obtain additional information about Masonite siding products, write: Masonite Building Products, Dept. SS&A, One South Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60606.

Bank Of Canton Near Top Of Mortgage Survey

The Bank of Canton, with mortgage representatives throughout eastern Massachusetts, was ranked 13th out of a field of 238 top mortgage lenders in Norfolk County.

The survey was conducted by Banker and Tradesman Newspaper, a highly-respected business publication, which ranked lenders by number of mortgages written to date for 1997. In addition, The Bank of Canton ranked as high in dollar volume of mortgages written.

"This high ranking is quite an accomplishment for a small community bank," said Mark Fisher, vice president of the bank, "but we are not surprised. We work hard to offer a broad array of competitive mortgage loan products so that virtually any customer can find what they need here."

The Bank of Canton, with its main office in Canton, and a soon-to-open Banking Center in Quincy, along with its MetroWest Mortgage Center, caters to the individual needs of homebuyers by offering personal service, especially to new homebuyers, along with very competitive rates and a wide spectrum of mortgage loan arrangements.

"We want to make a home purchase easy and pleasant," said Fisher. With the recent addition of our Mortgage Starting Line, prospective homebuyers can get a pre-qualified mortgage with just a short phone call."

To access the special mortgage hotline, call 617-828-5626 and request information on starting line.

This Bed's For You

[The following is from Vin Moscardelli at ERA Central Real Estate, 128 McGrath Highway, Quincy.]

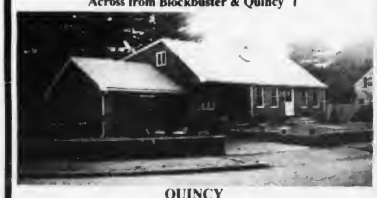
It's time to put the issue to rest.

The perfect bed will help you relax while at the same time liven up a particular bedroom. Choosing the right bed for your home can definitely become a dream come true--whether you're in a deep sleep or wide awake.

Finding comfort and charm in a bed is an important decision because it's more than just a short-term investment. But what types of beds are most homeowners looking into, as well as sinking into, these days?

While that may be a matter of personal preference, size, comfort, shape and materials are the basic considerations when selecting a bed. No matter the style of bed you choose, it's best to follow these steps:

•Before you take a bed home, make sure to test it out in the showroom. Sit on it. Check for any squeaking or jiggling from side to side. It's a lot more convenient finding out any possible defects before nestling into it in your bedroom.



•You need to also look for a bed with a solid structure. For instance, inspect the headboard and footboard to make sure both features connect with the side railings.

•Check to see if your bed of choice has the right support system for the box spring--one with at least one slat in the center. It's customary for wooden beds to have at least three support slats while metal beds primarily just have one.

•A majority of imported beds have different dimensions than American beds. Therefore, you may have to pay a little extra for a custom mattress and sheets to fit everything, even yourself, comfortably.

Fall HOME IMPROVEMENT

Choosing The Right Downlighting

(NAPS)—Today's homeowners increasingly are turning to downlighting to both illuminate and beautify living rooms, kitchens, bathrooms, hallways and other areas of their homes. However, deciding what type of downlighting you want isn't always an easy decision. A trip to your local home center or lighting showroom can present literally hundreds of different choices regarding the type of downlight housing, trims, lenses, and light source or lamp.

Happily, choosing the right downlighting combinations for your home is a lot easier now, thanks to a new booklet published by Hubbell Lighting, a firm that has been in the electrical industry for more than 100 years. The booklet, Beautiful Lighting, Beautiful Home will help guide you through the decision-making and installation process. It covers the four specific downlighting applications and what type of downlights are available—open cones, baffles, reflectors, and eyeball type. According to the booklet, by combining the various lamps, trims and housings, you can create a myriad of moods and effects.

To make your room appear larger, bathe a wall with a uniform wash of light.

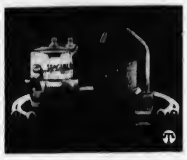
Open cones, for example, allow lamps to be recessed and cut down on surface brightness so the effect, not the source can be seen. Baffles trap the light and limit glare and brightness at the ceiling level. This directs your eye toward the point of illumination and away from its source.

The booklet goes on to talk about the different tasks of downlighting.

- For task lighting, such as sewing, cooking and reading, it's important to prevent eyestrain, yet at the same time avoid glare or shadows.
- Accent lighting lets you highlight an object of art, a painting or architectural feature with a precisely controlled bright beam of light.
- Wall washing, a simple method of using your downlights to bathe a wall with light by placing them at an acute angle from the wall.

There are a number of other lighting tips in the booklet, which is available free by writing to: Hubbell Lighting, 2000 Electric Way, Christianburg, VA 24073 or by calling 703-382-6111, Ext. 505.

WATER FACTS & FANCIES



(NAPS)—These surprising facts about drinking water may quench your thirst for knowledge about water purification systems.

* * *

Since the late 1960s, scientists studying the extensive pollution of both ground water and surface water sources have been warning the public about growing water quality problems. Bacteria, cysts, viruses, pesticides and herbicides are some of the contaminants that have made pure drinking water an increasingly scarce resource in the United States and around the world. Other contaminants include chemical toxins, asbestos, lead and sediments, along with foul tastes and odors.

* * *

Antiquated water treatment facilities, even in the United States, are unable to cope with many of these modern pollutants, especially cysts like Cryptosporidia. Many schools and homes are using water purification systems as a way to prevent illnesses caused by exposure to contaminated drinking water. A leading manufacturer in this field is General Ecology, whose water purification products have been recognized as the industry standard for excellence. The company's systems employ a unique Structured Matrix™ technology that has never been equaled.

A number of products have been developed to produce safe water in residences and hotels that take out the contaminants and leave in the good taste.

A number of products have been developed by General Ecology—including the well-known SEAGULL®IV and NATURE-PURE® systems, which are used by airlines, businesses, homes, RV'ers, boaters and individuals worldwide, and the FIRST NEED® and TRAV-L-PURE® portable purifiers, trusted for over 15 years by backpackers and business travelers. All are especially effective in removing unwanted waterborne contaminants while leaving in dissolved minerals essential to good health and to good taste.

* * *

A free informative brochure about General Ecology products is available by writing to: General Ecology, Inc., 151 Sheree Blvd., Exton, PA 19341 (ph: 1-800-441-8166, fx: 1-610-363-0412, e-mail: gecology@ix.netcom.com).

Donald Uvanitte Chairman Of Quincy 2000 Directors Board

Donald Uvanitte, vice president of Allied American/Mahoney & Wright Insurance, was elected chairman of the Quincy 2000 Corp.'s Board of Directors at the organization's recent annual meeting.

Uvanitte was formerly vice chairman of the board.

DONALD UVANITTE

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino praised the service of outgoing Chairman Thomas Cataldo, senior vice president of State Street Bank Realty Trust Company, by highlighting the corporation's accomplishments.

"Tom served as chairman of the board for two terms during an exciting period of growth for Quincy 2000," he said. "During Tom's tenure, the corporation achieved a number of accomplishments, including the expansion of the loan pool which lent $1 million to 17 businesses."

Overall, the loan pool has lent $1.4 million and has created or retained 135 jobs for Quincy companies.

Mannarino added, "The implementation of the Commercial Building Renovation Program was another major achievement during Cataldo's term. In its first year, the program provided grants totaling $265,000 which generated over $1 million in private investment to renovate both the exteriors and interiors of commercial properties in Quincy."

Membership also grew over the past two years from 184 to 236, a 28 percent increase. The increase stimulated the creation of the corporation's first annual membership directory and the first membership plaque.

"I am pleased that Tom will continue to serve as a member of the Executive Committee," said Mannarino.

Of Uvanitte, Mannarino said, "I look forward to the year ahead with Don Uvanitte as chairman, and I expect Quincy 2000 to continue to grow under his leadership."

Also re-elected to the board for three-year terms: John J. O'Connor III, regional president of Citizens Bank; Robert Curry, owner of Curry Hardware; Ronald Zooleck, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; Michael Kenealy, president of Key Realty; and Edward Keohane, president of Keohane Funeral Home.

In addition to Uvanitte, the following directors were appointed to the Quincy 2000's Executive Committee: O'Connor, first vice chairman; Curry, second vice chairman and treasurer; Cataldo, past chairman and Thomas Galvin, at-large.

Quincy 2000 is the city's public-private partnership for economic development.

TIRES, BY THE NUMBERS

The string of numbers and letters on the sidewall of automobile tires contains a good deal of information. The alpha-numeric string on the tire of the typical family sedan will likely begin with the letter "P," which stands for passenger car. After that, there is a number such as 215, which is the width of the tire in millimeters. A slash, followed by the tire's "aspect ratio," is the ratio of the tire's height to width, expressed as a percentage. The lower the aspect ratio, the lower the sidewall of the tire and the quicker its steering response. Since most tires are radials, an "R" then follows, after which there is a number such as 15. This is the diameter of the wheel in inches. This is almost all the information needed to find replacement tires.

HINT: Even though the sidewall of an automobile tire tells what its maximum pressure should be, consult the owner's manual for the recommended pressure.

Beechwood Knoll School Playground Beautified

BEECHWOOD KNOLL Improvement Committee recently held a ceremony to thank those involved in the playground's refurbishing project. From left, School Committeeman Frank McCauley and his wife, Sandra; Improvement Committee members Monica Moynihan, Barbara Isola, Maureen McCarron, Deidre Durkin-Haskell, Muareen Breen, Deborah Finn, Linda Johnson, Kathleen Kyle, Cheryl Doherty, Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin, and Chairperson Michelle Lydon. The $50,000 project included new playground equipment. The city, businesses and private citizens contributed to the project.

EDMUND TANG, a first grader at the Beechwood Knoll School, presents a framed picture he drew of the new Beechwood playground as a keepsake for Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin.

Car Care Questions And Answers

By CATHY REICHOW

Q. My yellow check engine light comes on--what does that mean?

A. When a yellow check engine light comes on, you should make an appointment to have your vehicle checked. What that light means is that the computer is sensing a problem. It could be very minor, such a sensor out of range or it could be that a sensor needs to be replaced. If you would ever have a red light come on, that means your car needs immediate attention and you should shut the car off and have it looked at right away.

Q. I took my car to a shop and they charged me two hours in diagnostic charges. Why does it take two hours on the diagnostic machine to find out what is wrong with my car?

A. Unfortunately, there is no "magic machine." What it requires to accurately diagnose today's vehicles is a combination of a few things. First, the technician needs to properly road test the vehicle, then he may do a visual inspection of your vehicle.

He may do a series of scan tests, computer code tests, fuel pressure and volume test, wiggle and tap tests, and finally he may need to scope the engine. This all requires time, it's not unrealistic for today's vehicles to require three to four hours to accurately diagnose a driveability concern.

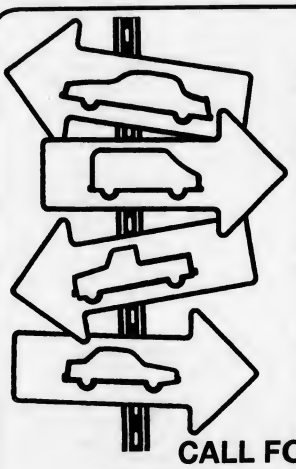
Q. Do I have the right to ask what brand of parts a repair shop used on my car?

A. When you take your vehicle to a shop for repair, you should not only get an itemized bill with part number and brand name, but it should also have separate labor operations for everything that was performed on your vehicle. The best advice I can give you is to find a shop that does this--gives you a detailed invoice of what was performed and what exact parts were replaced. You should be offered to see or take your old parts if you want to. It's also great if the shop can document if there is anything else your vehicle may need in the future, that way you can budget ahead for future needs.

Q. I was in an accident where the right side of my car got hit. The air bag did not go off--how come?

A. Most cars that are equipped with air bags have three sensors that activate the air bag system. When you are involved in an accident two of the three air bag sensors need to be activated for the air bag to deploy. Most sensors are located in the front of the vehicle; therefore, unless you have nearly a head on collision, the air bag will not deploy.

Q. The yellow ABS light comes on for my brakes. Does that mean I won't have any brakes?



A. When the yellow ABS light comes on, that means that something for the ABS system is not functioning properly; therefore, your ABS system will not function. The ABS (anti-lock brake system) is designed to work in panic stops. it keeps the wheels from locking up and skidding. Your regular brakes will function the way they were designed to work from the factory. ABS is, however, a very important safety feature and I would recommend you have the system checked by your shop as soon as you can.

Sheets Put To The Test At Kids Voting Forum

propose to address the problem of drug and alcohol abuse among Quincy's young people?"

A. "Well, I think that we have a number of programs, such as the DARE program and other programs, that I think are very effective in terms of drugs. But as I've looked over some of the challenges of the last two or three years, I would like to see more of a mentoring program developed in our schools where students would have older mentors that they would be able to talk to about the actual situations that occur in their lives--where they are exposed to the use of drugs--and talk to some who's been there, someone who understands how the young people feel and can give advice relative to how they can stay away from, and not become involved with, drugs. I think that a mentoring program is a very effective way to do that."

Q. "When and if the shipyard is reopened, what do you think could be done to make it more of an asset to the City of Quincy?

A. "Well, basically, under the present agreement, out of a thousand (shipyard) workers, 700 of those workers have to come from the City of Quincy. Also what will happen with the shipyard is once all of the contracts are signed, we'll be totally rehabilitating the area outside the shipyard. We're going to be putting about $4 million into roads and to parks and to sidewalks and to lighting.

"And also, not all of the yard will be used for shipbuilding; there'll be about 40 or 45 acres that will be used for other new businesses, and we fully expect that some marine technology businesses will come in to augment shipbuilding in those other locations at the shipyard. Mr. (Sotirios) Emmanouil, who owns Mass. Heavy Industries (and the shipyard) has on his board at least three major Ph.D.s from MIT who are involved, basically, in marine technology there.

"So I think you're going to see kind of a whole technology center develop around the shipyard once we begin to build ships. I think it's going to have an impact of creating a renaissance in Ward 2."

In addition to answering questions about other issues, Sheets, 62, who is running unopposed for the third time in five mayoral campaigns, told the students he plans to serve one or two more terms and then retire.

The forum was videotaped by Quincy Access Television and will be part of a two-hour Kids Voting videotape to be distributed to all schools. It also will be aired on cable television several times before the citywide election Nov. 4.

Panels of high school and middle school students were scheduled to participate in forums for City Council at-large and School Committee candidates after The Sun went to press Tuesday.

Kids Voting Quincy Coordinator Harold Crowley, who moderated last week's forum, said about 10,000 students (9,000 in public schools, 1,000 in private schools) are registered to go to the polls Nov. 4. He said the program is an effort to teach children and parents alike the importance of voting.

Golf Course Blasting Seen Ending This Week

(Cont'd from Page 1)

Mayor James Sheets announced two weeks ago that the Massachusetts Highway Department will be paying the city $54 million to accept 7 million cubic yards of fill from the Central Artery/Tunnel "Big Dig" project in Boston. The money and fill will make the golf course project possible while saving the "Big Dig" more than $30 million in costs for soil disposal.

The city has been trying to secure the fill for more than two years.

The project in West Quincy, which will be called the Quarry Hills Recreation Complex, will include an 18-hole golf course, driving range, clubhouse, several soccer, Little League and softball fields; restored hiking and cross-country skiing trails with connections to the Blue Hills Reservation and historic quarry sites; picnic areas, and parking. Totaling nearly 350 acres in green open space, it will be located at the site of the former landfill off Ricciuti Drive.

Although Quarry Hills Associates is the driving force behind the project, Sheets said the actual construction will be done by the Boston-based McCourt Construction Co. and the engineering by Sverdrup Civil Inc., also in Boston. Quarry Hills will manage the project.

An engineer and a certified public accountant chosen by the city also will oversee progress of the project as well as the finances involved. Quarry Hills will pay for both services, according to the mayor.

The city, as part of a 50-year lease with Quarry Hills Associates, will receive 10 percent of the net income derived from the recreational complex, which will be owned and operated by the partnership. Sheets said the city will use the money it receives for its other recreational facilities and parks.

Sheets said during the first two months of construction, which began with the blasting last week, the Quarry Hills project will clear and prepare the West Quincy site for construction activities and complete additional work to ensure safe and environmentally sound fill transport, receipt and site management. Besides the ramp construction, the work will include:

•Installation of environmental protection measures, including erosion and sediment controls, noise barriers, dust controls and protection of historic and archaeological resources.

•Rehabilitation and upgrading of Willard Street.

•Widening and rehabilitation of Ricciuti Drive to provide dedicated truck lanes.

•Setting up of facilities and safeguards for receiving fill, soil testing, and truck cleaning.

Construction is expected to be operating at full schedule before the end of the year and will last for approximately four years. Quarry Hills Associates expects to have the recreational facility ballparks operations in June 1999 and the golf course and remaining facilities completed and fully operational by 2002.

The work will take place around the clock and, for the most part, six days a week. Work will take place Monday at 7 a.m. through Saturday at 11 p.m., 24 hours a day. There generally will be no work on Sundays or holidays, although exceptional situations may require work on those days.

Sparks Flying In Ward 4

attend the Candidates Night and the other two events all in one evening.

"I don't know where he could find the time, unless he can be in two or three places at the same time," he said.

He added that the St. Mary's event is particularly important to him because he is a graduate of the school.

D'Amico said would like to reschedule the Candidates Night but "it doesn't look promising at this point." He noted, however, that he is looking forward to a cable television forum for all Quincy candidates scheduled for the following evening.

In addition to citing conflicts for the Candidates Night, D'Amico has expressed hesitation at attending the event because it was to be moderated by former Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, whom D'Amico unseated two years ago.

However, Fabrizio is the current chairman of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, and the association chairman traditionally moderates the event.

Hawko, who is an engineer with the state Department of Environmental Protection and a member of the Quincy Park and Recreation Committee, says he still wants to meet with Ward 4 residents to discuss his platform.

And he might get his chance. Fabrizio said at press time he is planning to schedule a Candidates Night open to all Ward 4 and At-Large City Council candidates for Thursday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

D'Amico, for his part, said he would have no problem with the Ward 4 Center allowing Hawko to speak to residents at any event he himself is unable to attend.

Inspection Services Head Named

director's position consisted of Quincy Personnel Director James Chiccino, John Keenan, executive secretary to the mayor; City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi and local contractor Paul Kennedy.

The $65,000-a-year position is being made available as part of the formation of the city's new department of inspectional services. Sheets and members of the City Council, which has approved the mayor's plan for the new department, have said the change will make inspectional services more efficient by providing homeowners and business owners convenient "one-stop shopping" for construction and home improvement permits.

The new department will combine Quincy's previously separate building, plumbing, wire inspection, gas, conservation enforcement, and weights and measures departments.

The establishment of the inspector's job will result in the elimination of the $56,238-a-year Quincy building inspector's position. According to Sheets, Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, who is out on sick leave, has accepted a new senior building inspector's position from the city that will pay an annual salary of $52,547.

The inspectional services director also will assume two duties currently performed by the building inspector: zoning enforcement and a seat on the Quincy License Board. Those responsibilities have been handled by Acting Building Inspector Roger Wallin while Mulvey has been out.

Quincy's inspectional services will move from the Department of Public Works Building on Sea Street to the JFK Health Center on Hancock Street sometime next year following extensive renovations to the center.

Bragg Stresses Experience, Involvement With Schools

School Committeewoman Jo-An Bragg, who is seeking re-election, is stressing her long involvement with the Quincy Public Schools when speaking before voters.

Bragg first became involved when her oldest daughter entered kindergarten in 1981, and has been active ever since.

"I understand the concerns of parents because they are my concerns too," she said.

Bragg has been a strong voice in local parent-teacher organizations for 16 years and is a former president of the Citywide Parents' Council.

Bragg said, "I have a proven track record of accomplishments and will continue to provide safe alternatives to our young people, whether it is through my work on the Board of Directors of Quincy After-School Day Care, which offers elementary children before- and after-school programs, or on weekends as founder and executive director of the Teen Get-Away Program, which consists of two youth centers serving middle school and high school students."

"This year's budget has one of the largest increases in the last 15 years for textbooks, computers, library books, audio-visual equipment and other learning materials. At the same time, I fought to add staff to maintain low class size and increased funding to meet the needs of our growing population of special education and bilingual students."

Bragg said education is changing with each passing day as more of the Education Reform Law is implemented, and this brings new challenges and issues that will need to be resolved.

"I want to be part of those decisions and be a voice that will continue to stand up for education--for students, parents, and staff, and the community--ask the right questions and work diligently to find the right answers. I would be honored to serve on the Quincy School Committee for four more years, and I hope the voters of Quincy will give me that opportunity on Nov. 4," she said.

Emerge Director Speaker At Annual DOVE Meeting

David Adams, Ed.D., was the featured speaker at the Annual Meeting of DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) last night (Wednesday) from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Dr. Adams is a co-founder and program and research director of Emerge, the first counseling program in the nation for men who abuse women.

The event was part of a series of informational events promoting National Domestic Violence Month. A domestic violence display is set up at the Thomas Crane Public Library, and Mayor James Sheets has issued a proclamation encouraging support for battered women and their children in recognition of Domestic Violence Awareness Month and DOVE as Quincy's only provider of services to that population.

DOVE has been providing services in the city to battered women and their children since 1978.

Holiday-A-Fair Nov. 1

First Presbyterian Church, 270 Franklin St., Quincy, will hold its Holiday-A-Fair on Saturday, Nov. 1 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the church's fellowship hall.

Tables will feature art, food, books, jewelry, children's gifts, attic treasure, flowers and crafts, Christmas presents and homemade apple pie and cheese.

There will also be a Scottish Tea with a number of sittings for which reservations are suggested.

A table will be set up for those interested in the church's community outreach program.

Presidents Hold Off Pesky Plymouth South

FOOTBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

What a difference a year makes.

At this point last season, the Quincy High School football team was struggling at 2-3, en route to a second consecutive 4-6 finish.

Fast forward to October 1997, which finds the Presidents flying high with a 4-1 record heading into the bye week. The most recent triumph came last Friday night, a 20-17 Old Colony League victory over visiting Plymouth South.

"I'm real happy with where we're at right now," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella. "It's great, especially after winning four games the last two years. But we're not satisfied by any means. We want to win three or four more games and the way we're playing, it's going to take a good team to beat us."

The Presidents return to action next Friday, Oct. 24 at 7 p.m. when the visit Division 3 opponent Plymouth North, a member of the Atlantic Coast League. Plymouth North is currently 4-1 overall, 2-1 in league play.

In the victory over Plymouth South (1-4), the Presidents got off on the wrong foot when Nick DiStasi fumbled the game's opening kickoff, which was recovered by the Panthers' Brian Carloni at Quincy's 30-yard line. Fortunately for Quincy, the Panthers' offense came up empty, then had a punt blocked by Nathan DoRosario, allowing Quincy to take over on its own 39.

This time, it was Quincy's offense that stalled. Bryan Dunn, who assumed the punting duties this fall, booted a kick that was downed at South's 2. Quincy's defense turned up the pressure as Sean Fitzpatrick sacked quarterback Peter Walls and the Panthers again had to kick it away.

A good runback by John Katsarikas provided the Presidents with excellent field position at the Panther 26. On the ninth play of the drive, Quincy quarterback Kevin Moore (7-of-8, 88 yards) rolled out and found Jim Quigley open in the right corner for a three-yard touchdown pass. Mike Turner added the first of his two extra points for a 7-0 lead less than a minute into the second quarter.

Quincy got the ball right back when Katsarikas recovered a Walls fumble at the Panther 43. On the next play, Moore lofted a pass to Kevin McPartlin, who dragged defenders inside the 10 before the ball was stripped away and recovered by the Panthers' Justin Close.

Nothing came of that turnover as neither team managed much offense in the first half. South accumulated just 60 yards and Quincy only gained 74.

The second half began with a bang when Close took a handoff and scampered untouched for a 73-yard touchdown run, then kicked the extra point to tie the game.

Quincy tailback Shaun Faherty, held to just 24 yards on 11 carries in the first half, took over on Quincy's next possession. He opened the drive with an 18-yard jaunt and later added a 10-yard run as Quincy moved the ball into Panther territory. The drive stalled, however, when an eight-yard catch by Quigley was short of a first down at South's 28.

The Presidents' big break came late in the third quarter, when Dunn's punt was dropped by Close and recovered by Quincy's Mike Lencki. On the next play, Faherty (28 carries, 115 yards) ran for a 20-yard touchdown, his seventh of the season. Faherty has compiled 630 rushing yards through the first five games. Turner's extra point gave Quincy a 14-7 lead just before the quarter ended.

A 42-yard run by Close (12 carries, 134 yards) set up his 38-yard field goal cut the deficit to four with nine minutes remaining. Quincy again turned to Faherty, who carried the ball eight times for 38 yards on the ensuing drive. Moore capped the 10-play, 73-yard drive with an eight-yard touchdown run for a 20-10 lead with just over three minutes to play.

Just when it appeared Quincy had the game wrapped up, the Panthers marched downfield and cut the deficit to three on a 17-yard touchdown pass from Walls to Steve Moyer.

With less than a minute to play, the Panthers attempted an onside kick, but Quincy's Dunn recovered at his own 48 and the Presidents ran out the clock to close out the victory.

PERFECT ON HIS passes in the first half was Quincy quarterback Kevin Moore, who connected on all four attempts and finished 7-for-8 for 88 yards and a touchdown. Moore also ran for a touchdown in the Presidents' 20-17 victory over visiting Plymouth South.

QUINCY DEFENSIVE LINEMAN Steve Wiltshire puts the pressure on Plymouth South quarterback Peter Walls (7), forcing Walls to unload the ball. Wiltshire and the Presidents' defense contained the Panthers in the first half, allowing just 60 yards and no points.

Punt Block Lifts Panthers; Elks, Apaches Move To 4-1

YOUTH FOOTBALL

Important late-season victories by the West Quincy Elks, Quincy Point Panthers and North Quincy Apaches highlighted the fifth week of the Quincy Youth Football League season.

This coming Sunday's tripleheader at Veterans Memorial Stadium kicks off with a key battle between the Elks (4-1) and Panthers (3-2) at 1 p.m. The Apaches (4-1) take on the Mustangs (0-5) at 2:30 p.m., followed by the Houghs Neck Manets (3-2) against the Squantum Storm (1-4) at 4 p.m.

In last Sunday's opening game, the Elks cruised past the Milton Mustangs, 20-6. Scoring on their first three possessions, the Elks' opened with a 60-yard drive that was capped by Dan DiNardo's five-yard touchdown run.

On their next possession, the Elks' Mike Ryan took a handoff, shook off a couple of tackles and raced 60 yards down the right sideline for a touchdown. DiNardo converted the two-point play.

The Elks added to their lead when DiNardo galloped 35 yards for a touchdown, making a cut back at the 15-yard line to go in untouched.

Once again, the Elks' defense shut down their opponent, allowing just a last-minute touchdown that prevented the Elks from capturing a shutout.

In other action, the Panthers came from behind in the final seconds to upend the Houghs Neck Manets, 18-14.

Trailing 14-12 with 23 seconds remaining, the Panthers' Mike Lorenzano blocked a punt and teammate Mike Regen pounced on the ball in the end zone for the winning touchdown with 16 seconds left.

The Panthers took an early lead on a Lorenzano touchdown, but the Manets' Paul Flynn raced 70 yards for a touchdown to tie the game at the half.

The Panthers' offensive line provided great protection and opened holes for Lorenzano's second score. After some solid passing, James LaFleur, Regen and Chris Bolter sparked the offense. Kris Kamborian, Keith Ryan and Steve Ramponi led the Panthers' defense.

After Lorenzano's second TD, the Manets rallied again and took a 14-12 lead on a 20-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jordan Virtue to Paul McAteer. Flynn then ran the ball in for the two-point conversion. The score came with 4:50 to play.

On the ensuing kickoff, the Panthers drove deep into Manets' territory, but on fourth and 12, Lorenzano called his number and was stopped one yard shy with 1:50 left.

A stalwart Panther defense then rose to the occasion and held the Manets in check, forcing the punt that led to the game-winning score.

Playing well for the Manets were Brian Keefe, Joe Hearn, Bill McKeon, Mike Quigley and Mike Sullivan.

The other game matched the Apaches against the Squantum Storm, with the Apaches scoring all their points in the second half in a 23-0 triumph.

Paced by Charlie Sorrento and Kevin Gaughan, the Apaches played excellent defense, preventing the Storm from reaching the end zone with a goal line stand. Time expired in the first half as the Storm had the ball at the Apaches' 2-yard line.

The Apaches broke the scoreless tie in the third on a 25-yard touchdown toss from quarterback Pat Bregoli to flanker Sorrento. The two-point conversion was successful, with Bregoli passing to Joe Fitzpatrick.

Late in the third, Bregoli intercepted a Storm pass and returned it to the Storm's 10. Two plays later, Bregoli increased the Apaches' lead, reaching the end zone on a five-yard QB draw. Ryan Farnham converted the point on a fake kick.

The Apaches closed out the scoring on a 10-yard run by Sorrento on the option pitch. Farnham set up the touchdown with a long run and Dave Rochon kicked the extra point to complete the scoring.

Rochon was a major factor with his kicking prowess. In addition to kicking the final extra point, he boomed his kickoffs and provided excellent punting. Gabe Parsons and Chris Marinelli played a good interior game for the Apaches on defense, while Kevin Holleran provided tight pass coverage.

FOOTBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Unable to bounce back from a costly early turnover, the North Quincy High School football team fell to host Barnstable, 18-7, last Saturday night.

North Quincy, which dropped to 1-3 overall and 1-2 in the Old Colony League, seeks its second victory Friday night at 7 when league foe Taunton (1-3-1, 1-2) visits Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"They're a lot better than their record indicates," said NQ head coach Ken McPhee, referring to the Tigers. "They've had some tough games and have come out on the losing end of some. It certainly will be a battle.

"We have to take advantage of every opportunity. It's a win we need and can get, but we have to play hard and not make mistakes. We need it; it would be a huge boost for our confidence."

A major factor in North's sluggish start is the youth and inexperience on the offensive side of the ball, where eight new players in the starting lineup.

"When you lose so many players, it's going to take time for those who replace them to become a cohesive unit," said McPhee. "We have a new quarterback (Chris Bregoli) who is only a junior, and he's making some mistakes he won't make next year or even next game.

"It's a learning process and Chris is learning just like the rest of them. We are improving, just not as quick as I hoped. We're young in some spots and hurting a bit up front, but we're getting better every week."

McPhee is also quite aware of the fact that losing can have a negative effect on a squad, and he and his staff are making sure this does not happen.

"I tell them, 'All you can do is work hard and good things will happen,'" he said. "'Go out and keep working and doing the right things.' None of them have a defeatist attitude. They're playing hard and hustling, never packing it in, which I'm very proud of."

In the loss to Barnstable (3-2, 2-0), North fell behind early when Bregoli's pass was intercepted by Mark Milano, who returned it 60 yards for the game's first touchdown. Joe DeMartino booted the extra point for a 7-0 Barnstable lead.

"That play hurt, because we were driving the ball at the time," said McPhee. "Then, all of a sudden, they get six points and we're in an early hole."

What did impress McPhee was the top-notch play of the North Quincy defense, which held Barnstable scoreless for the remainder of the half.

"The defense has been the strong point of our team so far," said McPhee. "Our defense was on the field a dous job against a legitimate team."

Barnstable added a 21-yard field goal by DeMartino for the only scoring of the third quarter. Running back Guito Joseph (17 carries, 135 yards) padded the lead in the fourth quarter with a 10-yard run, followed by DeMartino's second extra point.

North finally got on the scoreboard when senior fullback Mike Powers eluded would-be tacklers for a 31-yard touchdown run. Powers then carried the ball in for the two-point conversion for the game's final points.

"Mike again played unbelievably well offensively and defensively," said McPhee. "That was a great run he made, breaking about four tackles. He would not be denied and did a great job to get us on the board."

North's Jay Turner, Mark Stanton, Bregoli, Frank McNamara, Brian Wells, Kevin Bowes, Jim Callahan and Chris Robinson were singled out by McPhee for their performances.

"Jay played extremely well," he said. "He had some moments offensively, but he didn't have much room. Mark, a first-year player, made four catches, Bregoli came out and played a good second half and McNamara played an all-around solid game.

"Wells had a strong game at nose guard and Bowes was good at offensive tackle and defensive tackle until he went down with a sprained ankle. He'll be O.K. for the next game, but we're going to rest him a bit before that. I also liked how Callahan played at center and Robinson at offensive guard."

SOCCER

First-Ever Tourney Berth Within Red Raiders' Grasp

The North Quincy High School girls' soccer team, battling for its first-ever tournament berth, can clinch a slot with victories over Taunton and Dennis-Yarmouth this week.

The Red Raiders (5-5-4 through last week's action) visited Taunton Tuesday and host Dennis-Yarmouth today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. North belted Taunton, 11-0, and fell to D-Y, 1-0, earlier this season.

"It would be great to clinch the berth in our final home game, against D-Y," said North Quincy head coach Paul Bregoli. "We outplayed and outshot them down there, but lost a tough one. We played very good defensively and if we do that this time around, we'll be in position to win the game."

North travels to Bridgewater-Raynham next Monday at 4 p.m. The regular season finale will be next Saturday, Oct. 25 at 7 p.m. against rival Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Last week, the Red Raiders fell to Old Colony League front-runner Silver Lake, 3-0, on the road. The Lakers were glad to come away victorious against the aggressive Red Raiders.

"We were petrified of North Quincy coming in here, because they played us so tough at their place," said Silver Lake head coach Bubba Ashby. "We knew they needed a few wins to reach the tournament and were happy to pick up the win."

The shutout marked the third consecutive game the Red Raiders have been held scoreless.

"The drought continues," said Bregoli. "We had an early breakaway about five minutes in, but the kid missed the net. That was a huge opportunity that went by the boards, then they score soon after that and added another late in the half that gave them some breathing room."

The Red Raiders did keep the OCL's leading scorer, Candy Reich, off the scoreboard but could not contain Cheryl Rone, who scored all three Laker goals.

"We did a good job on Reich; she wasn't really a factor," said Bregoli. "Unfortunately, we didn't do the same with Rone."

Among the highlights for North was the outstanding performance of keeper Kristen Bowes, who made 26 saves to give the Raiders a shot at making a comeback.

"Bowes was unbelievable; she stopped a bunch of good shots and kept the game within reach," said Bregoli. "Overall, the defense did a good job. Our outside backs, Jen Conley and Katie Koch, were solid, as was Leela Shankar."

Bregoli was also impressed with the strong play of junior Dorothy Cronin, senior Erin Tormey, junior Liz Bennett and senior Sharon Lee.

"Dorothy played a great game at mid; she gets to so many balls and is quick and aggressive," he said. "She's made the change from stopper very smoothly. Erin did a nice job at mid, as did Liz. Sharon, who had been out with a severe ankle sprain since the season began, came in and played good at mid for us."

Jessica DiBona Solid In Goal For Presidents In 1-1 Tie

Continuing to show improvement as the season winds down, the Quincy High School girls' soccer team battled host Plymouth South to a 1-1 tie last Friday.

The Presidents (2-9-2 through last week's action) hosted Falmouth Tuesday, visit Barnstable Saturday at 10 a.m., host Silver Lake next Monday at 4 p.m. and travel to Monsignor Ryan Memorial next Wednesday at 4 p.m. The season finale will be next Saturday, Oct. 25 at 7 p.m. against rival North Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In the hard-fought tie with Plymouth South, Quincy head coach Robin Welinsky was especially impressed with the performance of goalkeeper Jessica DiBona.

"Jessica played net for the entire game and had of 22 saves," said Welinsky. "She made two saves on one-on-one situations where Plymouth South had unbelievable opportunities to score."

The Panthers' only goal came at 24:22 mark of the first half. The strong defensive play of Quincy's Kara McSweeney, Kelly Raymer, Michelle Boncek and Julie Gibbons played an important role in keeping the Panthers off the scoreboard the rest of the game.

Quincy's goal was tallied by Marisa Ross, who scored off a pass from Leanne Martin.

"In the second half, we completely made them run and chase us," said Welinsky. "It was fantastic. We're coming along; give us a while more and the Presidents will be ranked with the rest of the OCL."

In earlier action, the Presidents played inspired soccer but fell to visiting Bridgewater-Raynham, 3-0.

"This was a much improved game since the first time we played them in early September," said Welinsky. "B-R had 15 solid shots on net alone in the first half and with Jessica DiBona playing in net we can really be thankful."

Quincy trailed 2-0 at the half, then allowed just one goal in the second half, at the 18-minute mark.

The previous week, the Presidents lost a tough one to host Dennis-Yarmouth, 1-0, and picked up their second victory by doubling up visiting Taunton, 4-2.

10th Fowler House Race Raises $4,800

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The 10th annual Fowler House "5" Road Race, held Monday in Quincy, eclipsed last year's total of by raising $4,800 to benefit handicapped children. Last year, $4,400 was raised.

Race organizer Bill Rizzotti said the proceeds of the race will be evenly distributed between the South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens and Parkview Homes in Framingham.

"I was hoping to raise $5,000, but I'm glad we raised more than last year," said Rizzotti, who started the race 10 years ago with Tricia and Dick Sullivan and Herb Greene, original members of the Quincy YMCA and "Quincy Flyers."

Added Rizzotti: "That's what this race is all about--helping the people at South Shore ARC and Parkview Homes. Everyone has a good time and it's a great cause. I'm just glad to be a part of it."

The overall winner was Kevin Hynes, 32, of Medford, who finished in 27:38. Finishing second and third were Scott Bernard, 35, of Canton (28:17) and Eric D'Entremont, 23, of Quincy (28:26).

VOLLEYBALL

Presidents Three Wins Away From A Tournament Berth

Winners of two of its last three matches, the Quincy High School girls' volleyball team finds itself three victories away from clinching a tournament berth, with five of its final seven matches at home.

"I think we have a definite shot at making it to postseason play," said Quincy head coach Tom Henderson. "Having all of those home matches will give us an emotional boost, and we have been playing more consistently the last few matches."

The Presidents (6-5) returned to action yesterday (Wednesday) against visiting Plymouth South at 4 p.m., then host New Bedford Friday at 4 p.m. Last month, Quincy lost at New Bedford.

Next Monday at 4 p.m., Quincy visits Plymouth North, then returns home next Wednesday at 4 p.m. against Falmouth, a team the Presidents swept last month.

In match play last Thursday, the Presidents were swept by mighty Barnstable, but each game was a close, hard-fought battle, said Henderson. The scores were 15-13, 15-12 in favor of Barnstable.

"I thought the girls played extremely well against them on their court," he said. "I've been telling them all along that they can play with anybody, but they proved it to themselves in this match. It was a very entertaining and thrilling match, and we can use it as springboard for the rest of the season."

Senior Erin Barry sparked the Quincy effort with 14 kills, four blocks, two service aces and two digs, while sophomore Colleen Nichol contributed one kill and three blocks.

Last Wednesday, the Presidents rolled over Dennis-Yarmouth, paced by the play of senior Karen Goldrick (two kills, three service aces, six digs). Quincy won, 15-3, 15-6.

The Presidents picked up a 2-1 triumph at Brookline last Tuesday, winning the first game 15-7, losing the second 1-15, then claiming the third 15-11 to secure the victory.

Again, Barry led the way for Quincy with 11 kills, eight digs, two service aces and two blocks. Other contributors included freshman Jacqui Niosi (21 assists, two digs), senior Mary Chenette (five kills, 11 digs) and sophomore Tabitha McLellan (eight digs).

In earlier action, the Presidents fell to their crosstown rivals North Quincy, 2-0. The host Red Raiders won, 15-6, 15-11. Quincy's top players were Barry (six kills, five digs, two blocks) and McLellan (seven digs, two service aces).

Quincy also earned a 2-0 triumph over Silver Lake, led by Danielle Robertson (one assist, one service ace, six digs) and Nichol (five kills, two blocks). The game scores were 15-3, 15-4.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Judgment could be off this week regarding spending. You could be making a matter more complicated than it needs to be. This weekend, you're inclined to overspend on pleasure.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't put too much stock in what a person who tends to exaggerate has to say this week. It's not the best time for getting your ideas across to others. Mix-ups in your social calendar are likely this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Unexpected company dropping by could upset your domestic schedule. In business, a moody higher-up or associate will have to be handled with kid gloves.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You'll need to be tactful in speech this week. A loved one or friend could easily take offense at something you say. A weekend entertainment could be too costly for you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Distractions and interruptions are likely to interfere with your concentration at work this week. Your accomplishments could fall short of your good intentions.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Keep the lines of communication open with close partners. Don't put others in the position where they have to read your mind. A disagreement may arise about shopping this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Extra expenses could arise in connection with another person this week. A business proposition requires revisions. Guard against unnecessary extravagance when shopping this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Double-check costs in connection with a planned trip. Slight strain could exist among family members. Others' sensitivities could get in the way of achieving agreements.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Not much will come of big talk you hear on the work front this week. Take what you hear with a grain of salt. A family member could be feeling out of sorts this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A close partner is sensitive this week and easily offended. Be careful of ill-considered remarks that could cause hard feelings. Social life may take a back seat this weekend in favor of domestic chores.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your efforts to read between the lines may lead you to faulty assumptions. Don't jump to any conclusions, but instead, think things through. It will take extra effort to be productive this week.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Place the accent on cooperation and diplomacy this week. Little things are likely to interfere with getting your way. Be considerate with loving partners over the weekend and indulge in some romance.

He retired from the Quincy Public Schools in June 1994.

"To Carter everyone was a VIP," said Louis DiMartinis, principal of Central Middle School. "He treated the young and the old with respect and dignity, always seeking out those whom he might help professionally and/or socially.

"As a member of the Quincy Public Schools he was a caring, dedicated and energetic worker with a joie-de-vivre that generated mutual respect from his colleagues, his students and their parents," added DiMartinis.

"His indefatigable energy was never flaunted because it was always directed toward giving to others on the job and off the job," said Theodore Curley, a retired clinical psychologist for Quincy Public Schools. "His gracious warmth bordered on the biblical."

Caudle also worked part time as an operating room nurse's aide and a counselor to the homeless at the Long Island Shelter in Boston.

He served in the Army at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., for two years and became a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army Reserves in Illinois.

Born in Ellis Grove, Ill., he earned a bachelor's and a master's degree at Southern Illinois University. He was also awarded graduate honors at colleges in Illinois, Idaho, Hawaii, New Hampshire, Maine, and Massachusetts.

He maintained active memberships and service to state and national associations whose goals and purposes have been to further counseling and development and vocational-technical education. He also held memberships in local, state and national educational organizations and anti-discriminatory commissions.

He was a member of the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, the Quincy Historical Society, the Kids Vote Program, and the Christmas Parade Committee.

He is survived by several cousins.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been said that out of our beliefs are born deeds. Out of our deeds we form habits, out of our habits grow our character; and on our character we build our destination.

Yes, we build our character by the bricks of habit we pile up day by day. It seems a little thing, but before we are aware of it, we have shaped the house we live in.

R.C. Samsel describes character in these words: "Character is the foundation stone upon which one must build to win respect. Just as no worthy building can be erected on a weak foundation, so no lasting reputation worthy of respect can be built on a weak character. Without character, all effort to attain dignity is superficial, and results are sure to be disappointing. . .

As we've said through the years . . . All thoughts of all readers are always welcome. It gives encouragement for other thoughts you read here.

Hobart Holly Topic Oct. 23 At Historical Society Open House

The Quincy Historical Society will begin its 1997-98 series of meetings and programs Thursday, Oct. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The work of longtime Quincy historian H. Hobart Holly will be examined and an open house reception for members and visitors will be held.

Holly, who died in November 1996, was president of the society from 1954 to 1975 and was its historian for the rest of his life.

Society Director Edward Fitzgerald will review Holly's many contributions to the knowledge of Quincy history and will present slides and other material from Holly's collection that have not been on public display for a number of years. Society members also will offer perspectives on his work.

As part of the evening, the society will hold an open house for members and visitors during which people will be able to take a behind-the-scenes look at the society's extensive collections of historic artifacts, books and manuscripts.

Refreshments will be served. All are welcome and admission is free.

Wilson Literature Stolen

Campaign literature belonging to School Committee candidate Tracy Wilson was stolen last week when her car was vandalized in front of her workplace in Boston.

Wilson said the thief or thieves did not steal her stereo, compact discs or car phone but instead took bumper stickers and various political cards contained in a large bag as well as notes she had taken at School Committee and other community meetings.

Wilson, an attorney, took the theft in stride despite the fact her insurance did not cover the loss because the stolen items were not "attached" to the car.

"I am surprised they didn't peel the stickers off my car," she said with a laugh. "Well, hopefully the culprits will find a valid means of distributing my campaign literature in Quincy. I am guess I am going to have to look into campaign insurance."

Stepping Back In Time Onboard 'Old Ironsides'

By DAVID CRENSHAW
Special To The Sun

"Old Ironsides." Just the name rings up memories of a billowing sail and cannonballs whizzing past the mizzenmast.

When USS Constitution was first commissioned in 1797, it was supposed to be for a 20-year career, the normal life of a tall ship in the 1700s. Now almost two centuries later, the frigate named by George Washington after the document it defends is the oldest commissioned warship afloat in the world.

Seaman Recruit Kevin Kane, son of Joanne Williams of Quincy, is a crew member aboard the 18th century frigate.

Kane is responsible for providing his shipmates a high standard of living by taking care of their living quarters adjacent the pier.

"On a day-to-day basis, I sail-train every morning, then clean the barracks," he said.

Made of timbers grown from Maine to Georgia and armed with cannons cast in Rhode Island and copper fastenings provided by Paul Revere, Constitution has served as the nation's flagship since it was launched on Oct. 21, 1797 in Boston.

Since then, Constitution defended U.S. interests against the Barbary pirates and during the War of 1812. It was during an engagement with the British frigate HMS Guerriere, when cannonballs bounced off Constitution's oak hull, that the ship earned its legendary name, "Old Ironsides."

Kane, 18, joined the Navy in 1996. "I came in for the experience," said the 1996 graduate of Don Bosco Technical High School. "College wasn't working out, so I joined to see the world."

Kane said in his short time since joining the Navy, he's been able to do many exciting things.

"Just graduating from boot camp was exciting," he said.

But he also says he's learned a lot.

"I've learned to do a good job and get the job done," he said. "And I've learned to take things one day at a time."

He has also received quite a history lesson to add to all that he's learned.

On July 21, "Old Ironsides" celebrated its bicentennial by conducting a special operational sail in Massachusetts Bay. This was the first time since 1881 that Constitution set sail under its own power. To do this, the crew went through sail training to learn how to handle a ship like the 200-year-old frigate.

Constitution's crew has trained on the ship's six sails on three masts for two hours each day. They have climbed to heights of 150 feet or more and practiced setting sail. These sailors have also trained onboard the HMS Bounty, at the Courageous Sail Center in Boston, and onboard the U.S. Coast Guard's Barque Eagle. The Eagle, also a sailing ship, is used by the Coast Guard to train their academy cadets.

With all the unique experiences Kane has had, he says he intends to stay in the Navy until he's eligible to retire.

Whenever Kane does leave the service, though, he knows that he'll always have something very unique to look back on--his time as a crew member onboard "Old Ironsides."

Twin Rivers Attends Global Warming Conference

Twin Rivers Technologies Inc. of Quincy was invited by federal energy officials to demonstrate its product at the recent White House Conference on Global Warming.

Twin Rivers was selected to supply their trademarked product Envirodiesel for use in the buses which ferried meteorologists and conference attendees from across the United States to and from the conference site to the White House.

The company Twin Rivers also participated in the forum to develop global warming solutions.

Envirodiesel is Twin Rivers' biodiesel, an environmentally-friendly fuel made from vegetable oils such as soybean and canola oils. It is the only alternative fuel approved by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for compliance with the Clean Air Act of 1990.

The conference was the first in a series of outreach efforts to keep broadcast meteorologists updated on the science of climatology in anticipation of the world meeting on Global Warming set for December in Japan.

Chamber To Present Annual Entrepreneurs Awards Nov. 5

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will present its 1997 South Shore Entrepreneurs of the Year awards Wednesday, Nov. 5.

The awards will be presented at a breakfast beginning at 7:44 a.m. at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Keynote speaker will be Michael Starnes, chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Starnes founded a trucking firm with a single truck and has successfully expanded the company to 2,500 trucks, 3,300 employees and $400 million in annual sales.

More than 20 business and community leaders were nominated for this year's awards. Awards will be bestowed upon three South Shore entrepreneurs who have successfully initiated and been the driving force behind an innovative activity or idea after age 55.

Cost is $12 for Chamber members, $110 for a table of 10. For more information or reservations, call 479-1111.

Kenneth Quigley Jr. Elected To Hibernia Board

Kenneth Quigley Jr., president of Curry College in Milton, has been elected to the board of directors at The Hibernia Savings Bank, announces Bank Chairman and CEO Mark A. Osborne.

"It is both a pleasure and a privilege to welcome Ken Quigley to the board of directors of The Hibernia Savings Bank," said Osborne. "The qualities of leadership that Ken has demonstrated are impressive. We know the bank and the communities it serves will benefit substantially from his expertise."

"It is an honor to join the board of directors of The Hibernia Savings Bank," said Quigley. "This is a bank which has served the community since 1912 and has continued to prosper in a highly competitive banking environment. I look forward to working closely with all of the individuals who contribute to its continued success."

Quigley became the 14th president of Curry College in 1996. Born in Dublin, Ireland, he graduated from Milton High School, Boston College School of Management and Villanova University School of Law in Villanova, Pa.

Prior to joining the faculty at Curry, where he held a number of positions of responsibility, he taught both graduate and undergraduate programs at Suffolk University and Bentley.

Quigley, his wife Beth and their two children live in Milton.

James Barbieri Named President Of South Shore Community Bank

South Shore Community Bank & Trust Company recently named James R. Barbieri president and senior loan officer.

Barbieri is the bank's first appointment to its management team.

For the first five months of his tenure, Barbieri will work closely with Bank CEO Don Olson, raising capital, designing policies and developing operating procedures for the bank, which plans to open in the first quarter of 1998. His primary focus will be attracting bank investors from the local community of business owners and residents.

"As the banking industry continues to evolve through numerous mergers and acquisitions, the community banking niche, which remains a lucrative market, is witnessing a void. This opportunity at South Shore Community Bank & Trust Company not only proves an interesting and exciting challenge, but it will also allow me to continue to use my years of community banking experience to serve the thriving business community throughout the South Shore," Barbieri said.

Previously, he served in senior business development positions with Shawmut Bank, Bank of Braintree, and US Trust.

Barbieri currently serves on the board of directors for the Boston Minuteman Council, Boy Scout America and the board of overseers for South Shore Health & Educational Corporation. He is trustee of the South Shore Economic Development Corporation and a director of the Hingham Rotary Club.

Barbieri lives in Hingham with his wife Diane and two sons, Andrew and Thomas.

Dr. Dennis LaRock In Prostate Therapy Teaching Group

St. Elizabeth's Medical Center physicians who started the first radioactive seed implant therapy in New England for prostate cancer now are teaching others the effective and increasingly popular treatment.

Dennis LaRock, M.D., of Quincy, a St. Elizabeth's urologist, is part of the team teaching the implant procedure to physicians and medical physicists.

"Radioactive seed implant therapy has equal if not better control rates and fewer serious side effects than either of the other two common prostrate cancer therapies, surgery and external beam radiation," LaRock said. "Having treated more than 300 patients, having witnessed the effectiveness of the treatment and having developed a certain expertise and experience, we felt we could offer a course that improved on the didactic lectures and lack of hands-on experience of other course on radioactive seed implant therapy."

Participants in the St. Elizabeth's course observe procedures such as the volume study to determine the prostate's size, computerized planning to prescribe the appropriate number, location and strength of radioactive seeds and actual operating-room implantation of the radioactive seeds into the prostate.

The St. Elizabeth's team has attracted physicians and medical physicists for its courses from throughout New England and from as far away as Kansas and Florida. The team teaches the course on an on-going basis.

Interested individuals can contact St. Elizabeth's Medical Center's Department of Radiation Oncology at (617) 789-3232 for information, course scheduling and registration.

$14.3M Tax Cut For Military Pensioners

The state Senate recently approved a $14.3 million tax cut for military pensioners, after the state's Supreme Judicial Court ruled it constitutional, announces Sen. Michael Morrissey.

Morrissey, a strong supporter of tax relief for veterans and sponsor of the measure said, "We knew this was a tricky area of tax law but we also felt strongly that these men and women deserved this break from the state, so we proceeded cautiously and have met with success. This tax break follows the enactment of three tax breaks for residents included in the state budget."

In May, the Senate asked for the SJC's ruling on the constitutionality of a law changing the taxation of military pensions. The legislation exempts the retirement pay of retired members of the uniformed services from the Commonwealth's income tax.

Legislators sought to clarify whether or not the proposal conflicted with the state constitutional mandate rates of taxation, especially as they govern contributory and non-contributory pensions.

The SJC deemed the change in the tax code constitutional due to the unique job challenges in the military. The Senate voted unanimously in support of the legislation soon afterward. Senate President Thomas Birmingham said after the ruling, "we can now move forward with full confidence in the legality and appropriateness of this much-deserved tax relief for military pensioners."

"Veterans have served our country faithfully; it is time we recognize their special status and give them this tax break," said Morrissey. "They are men and women who have invested years in a career for the betterment of our nation. This tax break is a way for the government to acknowledge their commitment and express a sense of appreciation."

James Kelley Featured In 'Who's Who In The East'

James F. Kelley of Quincy has earned inclusion in the Marquis 1997-98 edition of "Who's Who in the East" and several other editions.

To be chosen for inclusion, candidates must have held a position of responsibility or attained a significant achievement in their field.

"We congratulate Mr. Kelly on his achievements," said Paul Canning, editorial director of Marquis Who's Who. "Our editors use stringent selection criteria to choose the most distinguished professionals for inclusion in each edition."

Kelley, former deputy chief engineer for the Massachusetts Department of Public Works, upon retirement formed his own consulting engineering firm and is currently chairman of the Quincy Planning Board.

He is a life member of the American Public Works Association, a life member of the National Order of Battlefield Commissions (World War II), the North Quincy Council Knights of Columbus and the Bryan VFW Post in Quincy.

Permit Approved For N.Q. Advertising Studio

The Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals has voted to approve the application by Kenneth Player for a special permit/variance to convert the former Sagamore Grill in North Quincy into an advertising studio.

Over the past six months, Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers and area residents have been working on an application by Player, a North Quincy resident, to design a plan that would meet neighborhood approval.

Ayers said Player plans to make improvements necessary to enhance the building's interior/exterior appearance. The use of the building will be for a one-man, low-impact business operating Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Ayers said he and area residents have agreed the new business will be a positive change. Since the grill has been closed, the councillor and neighbors have voiced strong opposition against applications that were filed to reopen the establishment as a bar.

"This applicant meets with what we have been trying to do, which is continue to revitalize the area," said Ayers. "The Welcome Young Playground, two new businesses, Boston Light Electrical and Applied Image Reprographics, and improving the streets and sidewalks are the direction we intend to follow in keeping with our short and long-range goals to renovate this area."

Player said he and his wife are very pleased.

"It is exciting to open our business in the same neighborhood we lived and grew up in, and we thank Councillor Ayers for all his help," he said.

CITY COUNCIL held its first meeting in the new Council Chambers Monday night following a ribbon-cutting ceremony earlier in the day. The structural and aesthetic changes to the chambers, which will be paid for by city and state monies, cost $232,000.

'The People's Hall'

City Council Chamber Reopens To 1888 Look

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The newly-renovated City Council Chambers were opened to the public for the first time during a ribbon-cutting ceremony held before the council's meeting Monday night.

About 150 people were in attendance, including four former mayors, a number of elected officials, and others.

The room in Old City Hall now has a new ceiling, seating, carpeting, chandeliers and several other aesthetic and structural changes. The work, which was done at the suggestion of Council President Peter Kolson, was designed to give the chambers the same look they had when they first opened in 1889, one year after Quincy became a city.

"It can be truly called 'the people's hall' from this point on," Kolson told the audience. "This is a new era, a new beginning as we go into the next century. I'm very proud to have a small hand in the renovations of this people's hall.

"We should have a hall like this. We're worth it. This community's worth it."

Massachusetts Secretary of State William Galvin, a Quincy native, said historic preservation is the most pleasurable aspect of his job. He praised Kolson, the rest of the City Council, and Mayor James Sheets for having the chambers renovated.

"I salute you for having the foresight to take this chamber, and take this historic building forward into the future, and to build upon the past by revitalizing the past," said Galvin. "And I'm pleased that I've had the opportunity not only to present the funds through our Massachusetts Planning Preservation Project, but also to provide some expertise in reconstructing some of the authentic colors of this chamber, bringing out the wood tones that were once used here.

"You, because of your great historic assets, serve as a beacon to many other communities throughout the state. And I hope, indeed, that they will follow your example."

Sheets said "what's in the heart of a city" is what matters about that city, and that the new Council Chambers reflect that sentiment.

"You referred to this, Mr. President (Kolson), as the

Says Downtown Revitalization Hampered

Cheney Asks Business Area Removal From Historic District

City Councillor Michael Cheney wants the downtown business district between Granite and School Streets removed from the historic district.

Cheney said the restrictions imposed for being in the historic district discourage new businesses from locating in the area.

"It is an unnecessary layer of government that prevents the revitalization of the downtown," Cheney told his City Council colleagues at Monday night's meeting.

"There is nothing historic about this part of Hancock Street," he said.

Cheney introduced a resolution calling for the removal of that part of Hancock Street from the historic district. It was sent to the council's Ordinance Committee for future discussion before a vote.

Cheney said he hopes the vote will be taken by December.

Cheney's resolution is in tandem with a vote of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Board of Directors last April.

The board, at that time, voted to request the City Council to return the Granite Street to School Street section of Hancock Street to a non-historic status to get it out from under the thumb of the Quincy Historical Commission.

"It is the feeling of the QCBPA Board that Hancock Street between Granite and School Streets is not a true historic district but a business district and as such should have the same rights as other districts in the city," the board said.

The board also said it feels that the new signage ordinance pending before the City Council is strict enough and appropriately calls for enforcement by the city's building inspector.

The new signage ordinance, which has taken a committee two-and-a-half years to put together, and is now undergoing final amendments, is expected to be voted on by the council at the end of the year.

The QCBPA board has also asked the City Council to limit the role of the Quincy Historical Commission pertaining to signage on only buildings of true historic value when located in an established historic district.

The Quincy Center Historic District was created by a city ordinance in 1974 and originally included Adams Street to Dimmock Street down Hancock Street to Granite Street, where it ended.

In 1989, 15 years later, the district was extended to include Hancock Street from Granite to School streets by another ordinance.

The city also has another historic district, the Adams Birthplace District on Independence Avenue and the surrounding area.

Quincy Point Action Plan Endorsed By Council

The Quincy Point Action Plan funded by Quincy 2000 has been endorsed by the City Council.

The council voted unanimously Monday night in favor of Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi's resolution to support the plan.

In addition, councillors unanimously passed Raymondi's related resolution that Quincy Point eventually be designated a Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD), which would make the area eligible for federal Community Development Block Grant and other funding. That would require state approval.

The objectives of the plan are to identify opportunities to stimulate investment that will strengthen businesses in the Washington Street area and create new jobs for residents, provide an environment that is both attractive and convenient for pedestrians and vehicular use, and to build upon the area's existing assets. The study was funded by Quincy 2000 through the Quincy Community Development Block Grant Program.

Consultants working with Quincy 2000 on the Quincy Point Action Plan include Alice Boelter and Associates, Bergemeyer Associates, and Pilot Development Partners.

At Monday night's meeting, planning consultant Alice Boelter and development specialist Eden Milroy of Pilot Development Partners joined Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino and Quincy 2000's Michael Rie in explaining the potential benefits of the plan's recommended public and private sector improvements.

Boelter said improved signage, facades, and sidewalks will help "change the image of Washington Street." She added that a comprehensive plan for the rotary at the end of the street near the Fore River bridge is called for and that there are plans to encourage new businesses to come to the area.

Boelter also said that in general, "it's very important to make the streets of Quincy Point more pedestrian-friendly."

Milroy said special attractions or "anchors" should be placed at either end of Washington Street to draw more people into the area. He noted that 70,000 square feet is available for development at the eastern end of the street near the rotary.

Mannarino said if implemented, the Action Plan will reap visible results in five to 10 years.

"This is a plan that is long overdue," said Council President Peter Kolson.

great hall, the people's hall," said the mayor. "I refer to it as the heart of the City of Quincy. And anyone who visits this chamber in the future, and looks at its restored beauty, and feels that sense of yesterday, the presence of today and the hope of tomorrow, anyone who walk through those doors, will know that they are entering a place that has been hallowed and made sacred by many men and women who have struggled many long hours, tried to make those difficult decisions that will ensure that the City of Quincy will continue in that direction that its ancestors would have it go.

"This is indeed a tremendous day in the history of this great city."

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said he is proud of the role his department played in the renovations. He also commended all who participated in the architectural and construction work for the project.

"The Council Chamber is a very special place for me," said Colton. "It was a place where I got my first lessons for what it's like to stand up in public and talk about things that were important to me, and important to this city. And I look forward to once again address this great City Council."

Fr. William McCarthy of St. John the Baptist Church gave the invocation preceding the ceremony.

The $232,000 renovation project will be funded by a $67,000 state grant, private donations, city money, and hopefully additional grants, according to Kolson.

The architect for the project was John M. Sheskey and Associates of Quincy. Construction was done cooperatively by Paul J. Rogan Co. Inc. of Braintree and the Quincy Department of Public Works.

Councillor Paul Harold donated $1,000 for the two new chandeliers in memory of his late parents. The total cost of the chandeliers is $10,000, and Harold plans to pay the balance with family monies and private donations.

FOUR FORMER MAYORS were among those attending the re-opening of the restored City Council Chambers Monday. Shown at rear are Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Francis McCauley and Arthur Tobin. Councillors in front of them are Michael D'Amico. Stephen Durkin and Timothy Cahill.

CITY CLERK'S OFFICE staff members, past and present, were on hand for the reopening of the City Council Chambers. From left are William Draicchio, Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallsen, City Clerk Joseph Shea, secretary Michelle Bertoldi, former secretary Josephine Carnali and former City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John Gillis.

Following Monday night's ceremony, Congressman William Delahunt, a former councillor, spoke wistfully about the chambers.

"This brings back great memories," he said. "My political career began here. Serving at the local level is the most difficult; they are in the trenches every day. Quincy is a world-class city, and I'm proud to be the first City Council member to serve in Congress."

NEW CHANDELIERS were donated to the recently-renovated City Council Chambers by Councillor Paul Harold (right) in memory of his late parents. Harold will pay for the two chandeliers with family monies and private donations. At left is Council President Peter Kolson who originally proposed the renovations.

CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM DELAHUNT (center) was on hand to see the newly-renovated City Council Chambers Monday. With him from left are Council President Peter Kolson and state Rep. Ronald Mariano.

DAVID COLTON, commissioner of the Quincy Department of Public Works, speaks during Monday's ceremony in the renovated City Council Chambers. The DPW played a crucial role in the renovations.

AMONG THOSE ATTENDING Monday's ceremony in the City Council Chambers were Clerk of Council Committees Jeanne Reardon (left) and former Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon Walsh.

At Democratic City Brunch

Dukakis And Delahunt: The Wealthy Are Reaping The Benefits

Former Gov. Michael Dukakis told fellow Democrats in Quincy Sunday that the top 20 percent of Americans are the only ones benefiting from today's economy.

Speaking at a Quincy Democratic City Committee brunch at the Bryan VFW Post attended by an estimated 300 members, Dukakis said the top 20 percent income bracket was receiving 80 percent of the income increases.

Putting it bluntly, he said the middle and lower income Americans have been "getting screwed" by tax breaks and larger salaries that benefit the top 20 percent.

He said the $5.25 minimum wage law "is a joke."

Dukakis was also in rare form with a stand-up comedian display of humor.

He kidded about his 1988 presidential election campaign against Republican George Bush.

A famed news photo during that campaign showed Dukakis in an Army tank with a helmet on. The photo drew a lot more laughs than votes.

"I did not come over in a tank this morning," he quipped.

He added that although he never commanded a tank division in the Korean War, "I've never thrown up over the Japanese prime minister either."

Dukakis was referring to Bush's famed visit to Japan when he got sick at a dinner and vomited on the prime minister's shoes.

Congressman William Delahunt hit on the same theme as Dukakis that the wealth are the ones reaping the benefits.

He noted that the recent budget balancing bill which he voted against would give tax relief to the wealthiest and not to the middle or lower income classes.

Delahunt said he had a high regard for Atty. General Janet Reno and that his own experience as a former district attorney gave him a particular appreciation of her integrity, fairness and brilliance."

Mayor James Sheets thanked the Democratic office holders who, he said, have helped in the effort to reopen the Fore River Shipyard.

He singled out Senator Edward Kennedy, Congressman Delahunt, State Senator Michael Morrissey, Reps.. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin and the city councillors.

Rosemary and Archie Wahlberg were presented the Dennis F. Ryan Award for their "outstanding" work supporting Quincy Democrats in their causes.

FORMER GOV. MICHAEL DUKAKIS was keynote speaker at the Quincy Democratic City Committee's recent 10th annual fundraiser brunch. With him are Rosemary and Archie Wahlberg, to whom he presented the Dennis F. Ryan Community Award for their exemplifying the principles of the Democratic Party.

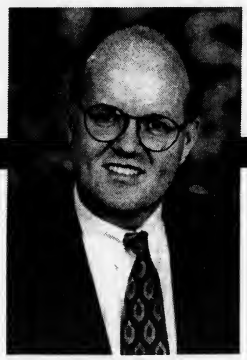
Moody St. Landtaking For Marshall School Approved



The City Council has unanimously approved the landtaking of a parcel on Moody Street in Quincy Point.

The city needed to assume control of the land in order to clear the way for the opening of the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School next fall.

The council voted on the issue Monday night.

On Sept. 23, the matter received nothing but support at a lightly-attended City Council public hearing. Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and two local residents spoke in favor of the landtaking while no one voiced opposition.

Remembering The Quincy Jewish Community Center

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Many years ago, Quincy was home to a thriving Jewish community and the heart of that community was located at the Jewish Community Center on Merrymount Road, the site of the former Quincy telephone building.

JCC-Quincy was an unpretentious, joyous, egalitarian mix of all Jewish denominations, from Orthodox to Reform, and was an inspiring display of community brotherhood, love, spirit and cooperation throughout the '40s, '50s, and '60s down to its demise too soon in the early '70s.

The JCC was the place to go to meet people, have fun, go to camp in the summer, and learn Hebrew in the winter. I have many fond memories of JCC-Quincy and of the many friendships I made there.

Even though I haven't been in the building in years, in my mind's eye I can still see some of the rooms we used to play in as children, such as the entrance to the building and the foyer on the first floor, the JCC office on the left, the main hallway leading to the water cooler and Hebrew school classrooms. Downstairs there was also a gym and a weight room. On the second floor was the grand ballroom where we used to dance and where we used to have our dinners.

What happened to our thriving Jewish community here in Quincy? Always demographically small, the Jewish community here became a victim of its own success. The more affluent members of the community moved to Newton and Brookline while still others moved south in search of better opportunities in Canton, Randolph, Stoughton and Sharon.

I will never forget the warm friendships and close camaraderies of my days at JCC-Quincy, whose memory shall always be an inspiration to me throughout my life. What remains, then? The Quincy Jewish Committee, as well as our three major synagogues: Beth Israel Synagogue, Temple Beth El and Congregation Adas Shalom.

The City of Quincy has changed greatly throughout the years since then and is now home to newly-emerging vibrant cultures. May our Jewish part and presence in this city continue to be a source of inspiration, pride and blessing for us all.

Granite Ball Belongs At City Hall

The granite ball is back on the front burner for debate.

Should it be moved and, if so--to where?

Quincy Point residents think it looks just fine where it is in the middle of the Fore River traffic rotary.

Lincoln-Hancock School teacher Steve Cantelli and Alba Tocci, who played major roles in the creation of the Granite Workers Statue--a handsome tribute itself--and the beautification of Shea Park on Copeland St. want the ball there.

But, there is division in the West Quincy ranks.

Former Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio who was instrumental in erecting the statue as a tribute to the once world-famed Quincy granite industry and its skilled workers opposes moving the ball to the park.

And, perhaps surprising to many, lines up as a Quincy Point ally. Keep the ball there, he says.

But with all due respect to Cantelli, Fabrizio and Mrs. Tocci, the ball really belongs outside City Hall where it originally was.

Back in 1993, I suggested that the ball be moved back to City Hall and be replaced at the Fore River traffic rotary by a bronze model of one of the famous ships built at the shipyard. It would be an appropriate tie-in with the USS Salem Shipbuilding Museum there.

Quincy Point is known for its ships--not for granite.

The near 11-ton polished ball was presented to the city on June 25, 1925 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Quincy in 1625.

Tom Galvin, whose handsome postcard of the ball as it looked at City Hall and his account of its history, appeared in The Sun issue of Oct. 9. He has done extensive research on it.

According to his documentation, the ball was a gift to the city by the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association who selected a spot alongside the city clerk's office as the site for it.

The ball was moved to the Fore River traffic rotary in 1937.

Question: Who can really get a good look at it there?

Coming down off Fore River bridge your view is blocked by a "Welcome To Quincy" sign and a tree branch. And, even if it wasn't, you could get in a bad accident looking at the ball instead of at the road.

Children who used to love seeing their reflections in the mirror-like polished granite of the ball (when it was popularly called the Gazing Ball) are cheated of that fun today. Imagine youngsters trying to dodge the heavy traffic around the rotary to get to the ball.

And, actually, how many new people really see it there? Route 3A is no long a major highway into the city. It's usually the same people going and coming over the bridge.

THE GRANITE BALL at the Fore River traffic rotary is virtually hidden by "Welcome To Quincy" sign in this view coming down the Fore River bridge from North Weymouth.
(Quincy Sun Photo/Tom Gorman)

The ball would be seen by many more visitors to the city if it were outside City Hall. It would be another attraction, like the new Abigail Adams statue across the street beside historic First Parish Church. Tourists, visitors and -- residents -- could see it close-up. And the kids could see their reflections again.

It would be the crown jewel on Constitution Common with its "Walk of Names" and beautiful flowers and shrubs.

That site would be the best showcase for the fitting tribute to Quincy's granite manufacturers and craftsmen who made Quincy granite famous the world over.

The ball was not given to Quincy Point or West Quincy, but to the city as a whole.

And it would be back where those who gave it as a gift wanted it to be.

It would be back where it belongs.

(Steve Cantelli's letter regarding the ball appeared in The Sun Oct. 2. Alba Tocci's and Tom Fabrizio's letters appear in this week's issue on Page 5.)

THE BALL WOULD be the crown jewel here in beautiful Constitution Common at City Hall where it would be fully seen by more people and where children could view and appreciate it close-up.

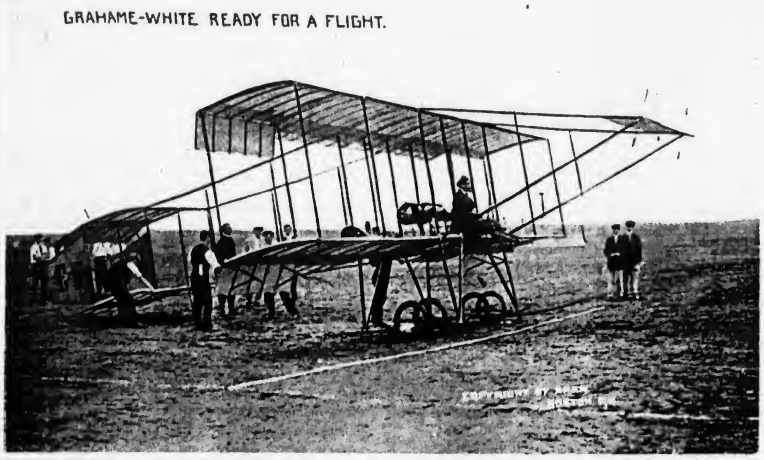
City To Receive $75,000 In Community Policing Funds

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin announce that the City of Quincy will receive a $75,000 community policing grant.

"This is an increase of $35,000 from last year," said Tobin. "This year the Legislature appropriated $17.6 billion in the Fiscal Year 1998 Budget, which is an increase of $5 million from Fiscal Year 1997."

The program's success is reflected in not just the increase of funding but also an increase of communities in the program. An additional 26 police departments will receive funds this year, increasing the total number of police departments receiving grants to 312.



Over the past five years, nearly $60 billion has been distributed to police departments. The program began with 32 communities in 1993 to the present 312.

Community policing funding has been used in a number of different ways to increase the interaction between the police department and the community. The funding can take the form of bicycle patrols, foot patrols, citizens police academy, and child fingerprinting and identification programs.

The grants are awarded through a competitive process under which communities demonstrate innovative policing strategies which use community resources to foster a close relationship between the police and the community. The awards are administered by the Executive Office of Public Safety in a tiered system based on population size.

THIS IS A RARE postcard view of the Harvard Aero Meet held at quantum in September, 1910. This aeroplane known as a Farman-biplane was flown by Claude Graham-White the winner of most of the events at the meet. Only the second air meet in the U.S. this Quincy based event drew the best aviators and the most advanced aeroplanes from around the world. More than $40,000 in cash prizes for the various events were the attraction. Military officials from the major countries came to watch the aviators compete for a $5,000 prize for dropping softball size plater of paris missiles into funnels of a dummy battleship from elevations not lower than 100 feet. Their accuracy changed the course of military history.

Deed Change To Allow For Stadium Admissions

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Thomas Burgin announced that a proposed change in the gift of deed by the Adams Family would allow for the levying of admission charges at Municipal Stadium.

The original gift of Merrymount Park (that included the site of the stadium) specifically prohibited admission fees. As a result, those attending high school games could make a voluntary donation, but couldn't be charged admission. Burgin had a change in the gift, drafted by City Solicitor Arthur Burgess, that he planned to present to the Adams heirs.

Burgin's proposed modifications would provide for admission fees and help stabilize the finances of the athletic program.

Granite Ball Should Be Moved To Shea Park

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Read the article about the granite ball from "Scenes from Yesterday." Very interesting. I was 5 years old at that time, so the ball meant nothing to me.

But today it means a lot, being from a background of granite workers in my family.

I will quote from the article: "Because of the hypnotic reflections that appeared in the mirror finish, it soon became known as the 'gazing ball.'" Today, you would not be able to see the mirror finish, for it has become so dirty from the traffic of where it is now.

Also in the article, Mayor Barbour said the city accepted the responsibility for the care and keeping of the ball. If this was done, the ball would still be mirror finish.

It's too bad that today we do not have the privilege of taking our children to see the granite ball and seeing their faces in the "gazing ball." To go across the street in Quincy Point where it is now, you take your life in your hands, let alone take the children. Some of us would like that privilege.

I am all for bringing the granite ball to Shea Park, where the Granite Workers Statue is now. It would be a great tribute to the few granite workers that are still with us and also to the families with the granite worker background.

Wants The Ball Kept At Fore River Rotary

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am troubled by the suggestion in a recent letter to the Readers Section suggesting that the City of Quincy move the eight-ton granite ball that graces a gateway to Quincy from the South Shore.

The granite ball displayed at the Fore River Rotary signals that motorists are now entering a community with a rich legacy of granite craftsmanship. Thousands of commuters each day are enriched by this great landmark and all residents of Quincy can share in the pride of this work of art.

As strongly as I believe that the granite ball should remain proudly displayed as a welcome to Quincy, I am firm in my belief that the ball should not be relocated to Shea Park in West Quincy, the location of the Granite Workers Memorial Statue.

Although the world is a proud host to many of the creations of our Quincy granite industry from cemeteries to national monuments, there existed no monument to honor these great artisans until the Granite Workers Statue. Ironically, the person who wrote to suggest that the granite ball be moved to Shea Park served with me on the Granite Workers Monument Committee and helped approve the plans. Upon the dedication of the monument, all members of the committee, including the writer of the letter who suggests we further alter the park, were praised for their efforts to create such a fitting tribute.

The vision of the Granite Workers Statue was to be a gift to those who served and sacrificed in this historic industry for the many gifts they gave the world in their many locations. The suggestion that we diminish the prominence of the statue by attempting to squeeze in the massive granite ball into Shea Park is an inappropriate and misguided effort. The statue should remain true to its mission, which is to honor the granite workers and nothing less.

After-School Program Offers Convenience, Variety, Comfort

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In recent years, it seems as though most families have two parents working outside the home. This can present a problem for many families because the issue of child care becomes a concern.

While parents want to be sure they choose a program that fits their schedule, they also need to feel comfortable with the staff, environment, convenience and general atmosphere of the program they choose.

Quincy After School Day Care is an after-school program that parents can feel comfortable enrolling their children into. This multi-site program offers a variety of activities ranging from science, sports and organized games, art, homework time and assistance, and more. They also offer field trips to places like The Museum of Science, Logan Airport, and George's Island, to name a few.

After-school programs run from school dismissal time until 5:30 p.m. Other programs include before and after kindergarten day care, summer camps, and April and February vacation camps.

The program is located within seven public elementary schools in Quincy: Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Lincoln-Hancock, Montclair, Merrymount, Parker, and Squantum. Kindergarten day care is offered by Quincy After School in the Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, and Squantum Schools. Programs are open to any child in kindergarten through fifth grade, and are convenient because there is no transportation for parents to worry about from school to another location for after school.

Quincy After School Day Care encourages parents to become involved in their programs, and offers stimulating and exciting activities for children, with a professional and enthusiastic staff. If you are interested in learning more about these programs, please call 773-3299, or visit the main office in the Wollaston section of Quincy, across from the post office.

Headaches & Chiropractic

Headaches are a distress signal telling you that something is out of balance in your body.
A common and overlooked cause of headaches is the misalignment of the spinal bones in the neck and upper back. The loss of normal position or motion of these bones could happen because of falls, poor posture, stress, repetitive motion, or injuries.

Medications may cover up these warning signs but they do not help correct the underlying structural cause. More and more people are finding relief with chiropractic care. Call today to learn more and/or schedule an appointment.

Emergency Management Volunteers Provide Assistance At Two Events

Twelve volunteers from the Quincy Youth Services Emergency Management Explorer Post 1 provided assistance at two Quincy events over the weekend.

The group assisted at the Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day held at the Department of Public Works on Saturday and the Harvest Family Festival held by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association on Sunday.

Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano praised the volunteers for their efforts.

"The kids did a great job," he said.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING

The sight of a jogger bounding around the corner into a glowing sunrise seems to be a picture of health. In many ways it is, but there may also be unhealthy aspects, including overuse injuries of the foot and lower leg. In such cases, repeated stress typically wears down an area of bone, muscle, or tendon, resulting in a tear or break. Stress fractures of the foot are particularly common. The first symptoms of such an injury may be mild pain, sometimes described as a tearing feeling, during exercise. If that signal is ignored and the overuse continues, the stress fracture will worsen, until the person is in pain even when resting. The longer the condition is allowed to progress, the greater the damage may be.

P.S. People who suddenly increase their exercising or begin new fitness programs may be susceptible to over use injuries.

Proper fitting and appropriate footwear can go a long way to maintaining healthy feet and reducing problems such as stress fractures from jogging. But often more is needed. For many more years of foot comfort, consult the best friend your feet can have. . . your podiatrist. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

Quincy Point Restaurant Closes Its Doors

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Sabotino's Restaurnt, 723 Washington St. at the foot of the Fore River Bridge, has closed its doors for good.

Owner Sam Katoulas said he had "been evicted" just days ago.

Appearing at the Quincy License Board Tuesday, Katoulas was allowed to hold his liquor license until he relocates.

Board chairman Joseph Shea spoke about Katoulas and his "great reputation" as a businessman in Quincy.

Katoulas said he leased the property from the Thomas family in 1994 with an option to purchase the building for $400,000. The restaurant was formerly known as Nicole's. Recently Katoulas spent $50,000 to renovate the establishment and even changed the name to Sabotino's.

After all of this, Katoulas said his landlord raised the purchase price to $525,000 and because there is a septic tank that needed to be upgraded, it would be another $30,000.

Katoulas said he felt it was the responsibility of the landlord to upgrade the septic tank and not his.

The landlord told Katoulas that if he couldn't meet their demands, he would have to vacate the premises.

Katoulas, who said he has spent about $1 million since leasing the building in 1994, is working with Quincy 2000 in an effort to relocate his business.

WHEN THE WHITES TURN YELLOW

When the whites of a person's eyes take on a yellowish tinge, a likely culprit is the liver. One of the jobs of a healthy liver is to filter out bilirubin (a reddish-yellow fluid) from the bloodstream. A liver that has a problem, though, may allow an excess of bilirubin into the bloodstream, which can discolor the skin and whites of theyes with a yellow tone. This is called "jaundice." Many different liver diseases can result in jaundice, including viral infections such as hepatitis, cirrhosis (or "hardening"), and cancer. Drug reactions or blockage of the bile ducts can also cause jaundice. Anyone whose eyes and/or skin take on a yellowish color should contact a doctor immediately.

P.S. Jaundice can have causes other than liver problems, such as some types of anemia.

Whenever you have symptoms that concern you, see your physician immediately. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we specialize in heart disease. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. You find that we care about you and it shows in everything we do.

D'Amico Seeks To Rezone Portion Of Common St.

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico is seeking to rezone a portion of Common Street in West Quincy from Residence B to Residence A zoning.

D'Amico said at Monday night's City Council meeting the rezoning would make things easier on residents of the neighborhood, where multi-family dwellings and traffic have increased in recent years.

"It would help maintain the single-family character of Common Street," he said. "It's a quality of life issue."

Three local residents, including Ed Rogers of 282 Common St., spoke in favor of the rezoning. Rogers, a 26-year resident, said his house is now virtually surrounded by apartment buildings.

"The city's got to do something," he said.

D'Amico has asked that a vote on the matter be taken at the council's next meeting.

Four Residents Receive AFL-CIO Scholarships

Four Quincy residents won scholarships during the 39th annual Scholarship Awards Program of the Massachusetts AFL-CIO.

They are: Michael Sampson, Boston Carmen's Union Local 589 Scholarship for $1,000; John Tormey, Laborers Local 223's Jimmy Dunne Scholarship for $1,000; Robin Wise, R.W.D.S.U. Local 444's Kelly Tocci for $450 and Yun Yu, R.W.D.S.U. Local 444's Scholarship for $300.

Houghs Neck Council To Hold Honor Awards Night Sunday

The Houghs Neck Community Council will hold its annual Honors Award Night Sunday to give special recognition to six citizens for their contributions toward the welfare of the community.

The longtime residents will be honored following a 6 p.m. dinner at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St. Former Mayor Francis McCauley will be master of ceremonies.

"Good Neighbors" honored will be Robert and Clementine Brill of Central Ave. Married 45 years with four living children, they will be recognized for their many acts of kindness to neighbors, and through Most Blessed Sacrament Church organizations, as well as through activities at Brill Field on Island Ave.

Civic contributions of Frederick Wilson of Turner St., a lifelong resident, include at least 20 years in helping expand "Vets Day" of Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club, and in developing a Junior Salt Water Club. Probably best known for his culinary talents which he shares without pay, he has cooked for Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club, Quincy Yacht Club, Manet Football Team banquet, Commodores Club of America, last year's Houghs Neck reunion, and Houghs Neck History Day. He has given cooking lessons at the Houghs Neck Community Center and the Mothers Club at Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Wilson shares his knowledge of area sea life with students at the Atherton Hough School and Houghs Neck Community Center. He also volunteers monthly at the Quincy Salvation Army. He has seven girls, all married, and six grandchildren.

Honored as "Outstanding Senior Citizen" will be James Saudade of Maxim Place. He and his wife, Mildred, have been Houghs Neck residents for 49 years. A U.S. Navy veteran, he has been a member of Houghs Neck American Legion Post since its inception. He is also a member of Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club. He has two children, James in Vermont and Mary Ellen in Texas, recently retired after 25 years in the U.S. Navy.

Honored as "Houghs Neck Heroes" will be neighbors Harold Olson of Rogers Lane and Jerry Connors of Thomas St. In July, they were instrumental in saving from drowning in the bay Arthur McGrail, a Vietnam veteran from Germantown, whom they later learned went to school with Connors. McGrail was taken by ambulance to Quincy Hospital where he was hospitalized for a long period, having broken his legs on his stranded skiff which had broken up.

Receiving a "Special Citation" will be Carol Lee Griffin, a longtime early resident of Houghs Neck, recently retired after 29 years as an assistant superintendent of Quincy Public Schools. She has been active in the Houghs Neck Congregational Church Sunday School, Junior High Fellowship, and Diaconate. Griffin was active in her younger years in sports such as football and baseball. A graduate of Boston University, she received a Ph. D. magna cum laude.

Robert Szabo, Honor Awards Night chairman, has as his committee Peggy O'Connor, council president; Kathie DiBona, Joan Cullen, Tom Timcoe, Alpha Story, Dick and Ruth Wainwright, Harry Olson, Peggy Nigro and Abbie Sines.

Council Pays Tribute To The Quincy Sun

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Sun, which recently began its 30th year, was honored for that accomplishment Monday night by the City Council.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and Editor Robert Bosworth accepted both a council commendation as well as a portrait of Quincy's historic Adams houses from Council President Peter Kolson.

A number of councillors, including the president, paid tribute to The Sun, which has served as the city's weekly newspaper since its first issue Sept. 26, 1968. The paper includes news coverage, political commentary, stories on local sports events, and more.

"We want to commend you for 30 years of grateful service to this community," said Kolson.

"It's a great honor to pay tribute to the Bosworth family," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi. "What a strong sense of commitment that these two men have."

"It's quite an achievement to start a newspaper, and to survive today as an independent family newspaper," said Councillor Paul Harold, who write The Sun's "Quincy's Yesterdays" column. He cited the paper's "hometown touch" as what sets it apart from other publications.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers noted that a number of people who move out of state buy subscriptions to The Sun.

"It's a great way for them to keep in contact," he said.

Councillor Michael Cheney said he always finds the coverage in the newspaper to be "very fair," even though he does not always agree with everything that is written.

"Thank you (the Bosworths) for providing a Quincy community service," said Cheney. "When others have given up on Quincy and started broadening their horizons--and I think you can read between the lines there--you have not."

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott joked that "it was the Bosworths who gave me my first job" as a paperboy 17 years ago.

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin also praised the publisher and editor.

"I thank you for your service to the city, both of you," he said.

Henry Bosworth called Quincy "a great city" and his 30 years at The Sun "a great experience."

"The proudest part of the name of our newspaper, for me, is the word 'Quincy,'" he said. "It's right in there, and it's always going to be there."

Bosworth recalled that 30 years ago, people used to ask him why he picked Quincy in which to start a newspaper.

"My answer then was that I grew up in Quincy," he said. "My heart has always been here. I had a lot of friends here. The people are interested and active in their community. And Quincy is a great city. I thought it was the right place for a community newspaper.

"Thirty years later I slightly amend that answer. I now say I am sure Quincy was the right place."

THE QUINCY SUN, Publisher Henry Bosworth and Editor Robert Bosworth were honored by the City Council Monday night as the weekly begins its 30th year as Historic Quincy's Hometown Newspaper. A painting of the John Adams and John Quincy Adams birthplaces and a commendation were presented by Council President Peter Kolson. From the left are Kolson, Councillor Stephen Durkin, Councillor Bruce Ayers, Henry Bosworth, Councillor Michael Cheney, Councillor Paul Harold, Robert Bosworth, Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Councillor Patrick McDermott.

D'Amico 'Looking Forward' To Ward 4 Candidates Night

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico says he is looking forward to a Candidates Night sponsored by the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association on Oct. 30.

D'Amico said the event was rescheduled due to his demanding itinerary.

"Bringing city services closer to the people, we've been able to accomplish more in the last two years than in the last decade here in Ward 4," he said. "If it weren't for the trust I've built with neighbors over the past two years, accomplishments such as full time police foot patrols and a West Quincy golf course simply wouldn't be possible. Every day, I'm proud not only to speak about our accomplishments, but to expand upon them."

D'Amico said he looks forward to putting his message across while his only opponent "struggles to find one." He added, "I'm especially pleased that the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association accommodated me by rescheduling the event. Whether holding weekly office hours, regular neighborhood meetings, or participating in a Candidates Night, I welcome any opportunity to listen to the people and act on their concerns.

"I will always put constituent input above all else in the way I do my job."

D'Amico said his only opponent Stephen Hawko, has launched an "effort of desperation." To Hawko's recent charge that D'Amico would not face him at a community forum, D'Amico said, "that's wishful thinking on his part."

Seven Quincy Cable Programs Nominated In State Contest

Seven programs produced at MediaOne in Quincy have been selected as nominees in the 12th annual Massachusetts Community Television Contest, sponsored by the State Cable Television Division.

The nominated programs were telecast last year and featured the talents of MediaOne's local programming employees as well as Quincy Community Television volunteers and Quincy Public School kids and staff.

The nominated programs are as follows:

•"View Smart to Vote Smart: The Tenth Congressional Race," produced by MediaOne's staff. The program featured a live debate between Congressional candidates William Delahunt and Edward Teague, videotaped questions from students across the District, and e-mailed questions from viewers at home. "View Smart" earned a nomination in the category of Public Affairs, Media Professional.

•"First Days and Old Ways," produced by the Asian Tobacco Education Collaborative, and edited by Job Chan of Impact Quincy and Brian Smith of the Quincy Public Schools. The Cantonese-language drama and panel program with the dangers of tobacco. It was nominated in the category of Cultural/Programming in a Language Other than English, Media Professional.

•"Undersea Explorer," a program on the wonders found beneath the ocean's surface produced by Quincy residents Paul Adamchek and Suzanne Reynard. The series earned two nominations for separate episodes in the category of Educational/Instructional, Community Volunteer.

•"The Story Train," an elementary school literacy program featuring youngsters from the Lincoln-Hancock School, which was produced by Sharon Cacciatore. "The Story Train" was nominated in the category of Programming for Children, Community Volunteer.

•"The 1996 Quincy Senior Olympics in Review," produced by MediaOne staff member Darlene Mendoza, and featuring the talents of dozens of staff members and volunteers covering the week-long athletic event sponsored by the City of Quincy and Beechwood on the Bay. The one-hour program was nominated in the category of Programming for and by Seniors, Media Professional.

•"Senior Beat," produced by longtime Quincy Community Television volunteer John Noonan. The program, which earned a nomination in the category of Programming for and by Seniors, Community Volunteer, dealt with health issues of the elderly.

The seven nominations awarded the Quincy studio is the second best showing for any local programming studio in Massachusetts, trailing only the nine nominations earned by the MediaOne of Lawrence.

The winners were to be announced last Sunday at a ceremony to be held at the Museum of Our National Heritage in Lexington.

Coughlin: Children's Success Requires Partnership

School Committee candidate Kevin Coughlin, speaking at a recent fundraiser, emphasized the importance of a collaborative effort to guarantee children's success both in the schools and beyond.

"All of us--parents, teachers, administrators, business and community members have a responsibility to drive the engine of our children's success," he said. "The obligation we have is a duty that is part of our birthright.

"My father-in-law, a POW in World War II, and my father who fought to liberate him, and every man and woman who has donned a uniform to defend our country did not sacrifice their youth, that we might fail our youth, but that we might afford them every opportunity to succeed."

Coughlin cited his work over two decades in the court system, the community and the schools bringing together the resources of both public and private agencies to address the needs of children, youth and families.

Coughlin has created two scholarship programs for children at the Montclair and Wollaston Schools: one for musical instruments and a second for summer camps. In 1996, he brought a teen dating violence prevention program to the Atlantic Middle School. He has been honored by Impact Quincy as a "Community Hero" for youth substance abuse prevention work as well as the Massachusetts General Hospital "Children and The Law" program for "advancing children's needs in the court system."

"We must look at the whole of the child and go beyond the school setting to ensure success," said Coughlin. "That's the work I've been doing for nearly 20 years. Education doesn't happen in a vacuum six hours a day, 180 days a year. Our children's needs extend well beyond this."

Coughlin has been recommended in this election by Q-VOTE (Quincy teachers) and received the endorsement of several organizations, including the Quincy and South Shore Building Trades Council and the Norfolk County Labor Council, for his "understanding of the needs of children and support of families."

He has volunteered his time in numerous community efforts, has served as vice president and president of the Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association, and currently serves on the Montclair PTO and School Council and as vice chairman of the Quincy Family Council/Family Commission.

"I hope that on Tuesday, Nov. 4, the voters of Quincy will look beyond the rhetoric, the bumper stickers and lawn signs, and look at my 10 years as an active parent of three children educated in the Quincy schools, my community activism, and my two decades of work with and advocacy for children in the court system which I will bring to bear as a member of the Quincy School Committee," said Coughlin.

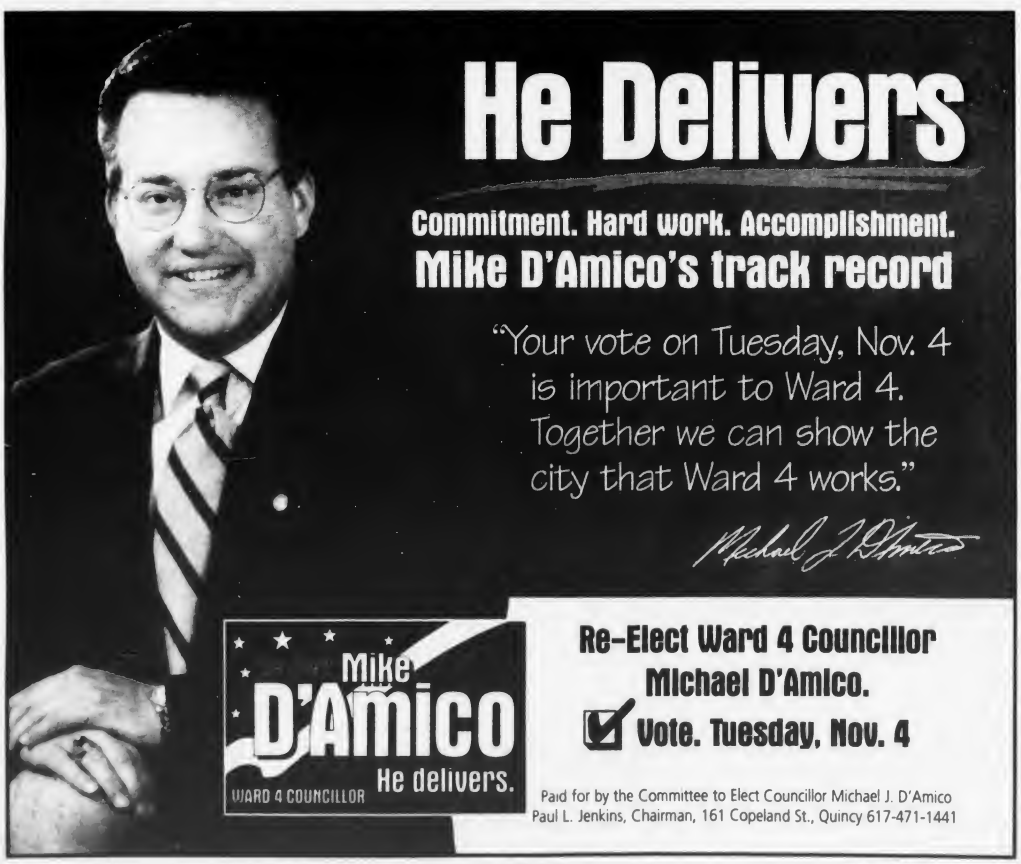
Deadline For U.S. Service Academy Applications Nov. 1

Congressman William Delahunt reminds high school students on the South Shore and Cape Cod and the Islands that the deadline is approaching for prospective nominees to any of the four U.S. Services Academies next year.

Deadline for filing completed applications is Nov. 1.

"The Navy, Air Force, Military and Merchant Marine Service Academies offer a challenging opportunity to earn a college education nearly tuition-free," Delahunt said. "Any high school senior interested in this opportunity for the 1998-99 school year should contact me as soon as possible."



All applications completed by the deadline will be reviewed and evaluated by the 10th Congressional District Academy Nominee Selection Committee comprised of eight local residents. Delahunt will then forward the names of the students recommended by the Committee to the Academies as his nominees.

'It's Still A Go,' Mayor Says

Sheets Unconcerned About Shipyard Deadline Delay

Mayor James Sheets says he is unconcerned about the U.S. Maritime Administration's (MARAD's) inability to meet this week's deadline to complete the paperwork for a project that would re-open the Fore River shipyard.

Sheets said under an agreement with state officials and Sen. Edward Kennedy, MARAD had planned to finish all paperwork on federal loan guarantees to help reopen the yard by this past Monday. That deadline had been set by Kennedy's office.

Lawyers for MARAD and shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil, the man who is trying to open the yard for the first time since 1986, were unable to complete all of the necessary documents, the mayor said.

"No, not at all," Sheets said when asked if he was concerned. "They just couldn't get all of the documentation done. The Maritime Administration has been very cooperative. It's a very complex issue, like closing on a house. They fully expect to close on the shipyard by the end of the month.

"It's still a go. I'm looking forward to building ships."

Only one issue remains: whether a portion of the shipyard that is in Braintree will be used as collateral for the loan guarantees. Sheets said "an agreement in principle" on that issue has been reached.

The loan guarantees would allow Emmanouil and his company, Massachusetts Heavy Industries, to borrow money to rebuild buildings and replace equipment at the yard.

CEREBRAL PALSY of the South Shore recently held its annual outing for the developmentally-disabled and their families at The Thompson Center, a MDC facility located at the Stony Brook Reservation in Hyde Park. For Election Day Nov. 4

400 Volunteers Needed To Help Get Out Kids' Vote

Four hundred volunteers or more are needed to help get out the Kids Vote in Quincy in the city election Tuesday, Nov. 4.

For the third year, private and parochial school students kindergarten through high school will cast ballots in the Kids Voting program.

Last year, more than 5,000 Quincy students made their choices known in the 1996 Presidential election.

Kids Voting is a non-profit, grassroots, educational program that gives young people actual experience in the election process by casting ballots alongside their parents in a real election.

Volunteers are needed to staff the 30 Kids Voting polling places (the same places where they parents will vote) in various shifts between 11:45 a.m. and 8 p.m. Shifts include: 11:45 a.m. to 2 p.m., 1:45 to 4 p.m., 3:45 to 6 p.m. and 5:45 to 8 p.m.

Each precinct in the city has an area set aside for students to mark their Kids Voting ballot. Since the regular election workers assist the adults who are voting, volunteers are needed to help students cast their ballots while not interfering with the adults.

The students and volunteers will follow the same check-in, vote, and check-out procedure as that of adult voters.

Students will indicate their choices for mayor, City Council and School Committee using ballots especially prepared for Kid Voters. Their ballots will be tallied separately and the results of the Kids Voting election will be announced following the adult results.

At least three volunteers are needed at each of the 30 polling precincts which will be open to Kid Voters from noon to 8 p.m. Volunteers will serve on two-hour shifts throughout the day. Kids Voting Massachusetts/Quincy will furnish the instructions and all necessary materials.

Businesses and organizations are invited to "adopt" a precinct with a commitment to see that the precinct is staffed by at least three volunteers per shift throughout the day.

Businesses and organizations that have already committed themselves to adopt a precinct include: Arbella Insurance, Bank-Boston, Citizens Bank, Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, Impact Quincy, The Patriot Ledger, Quincy College, Quincy Kiwanis Club, Quincy Lions Club, Quincy Retired Teachers Association, South Shore YMCA, State Street Bank, Stop & Shop, Thomas Crane Library, and 1000 Southern Artery along with others still in process.

c/o Harold Crowley, 3 Flagg Strret, Quincy, Ma 02170

Those wishing to volunteer to help Kids Voting on Election Day are asked to complete and return the form on this page or call Kids Voting Quincy Project Coordinator Harold Crowley at 471-6881.

"The Kids Voting Program provides an ideal opportunity for community-minded citizen volunteers to make a real difference in the lives of Quincy's young people," said Crowley. "I'm confident that we will be able to meet our goal of recruiting the necessary volunteers to ensure that Quincy's Kid Voters all have a chance to experience for themselves this important exercise in democracy."

Chretien Supports Ban On Assault Weapons

Larry Chretien, candidate for state representative, says he supports legislation to ban the sale and possession of 25 different kinds of assault guns.

The bill would also require people who already own such guns to obtain a special permit. It passed in both the House and Senate last year, but stalled in a conference committee of members from both branches.

Chretien said, "We have seen assault weapons used too often in this country--in New Hampshire last month, of course, and in many other instances. Law enforcement officers are asking for this legislation and if elected state representative, I will support them. Actually, I hope this bill is passed soon, before I would take office."

He added, "Some opponents of the ban say that it isn't a complete answer to the problem of violent crime and those people are right. But we need to do many things to reduce violent crime, and the assault weapons ban is one common sense part of the overall equation."

Chretien, a former Quincy city councillor, is running for the seat now held by Michael Bellotti. Bellotti, who is not running for re-election, also supports the ban on assault weapons.

Registration For Teen Chores Program Begins Saturday

Quincy teenagers may sign up for the Chores Program for snow shoveling and other odd jobs this winter at the Quincy Council on Aging, Department of Elder Service Office, 83 Saratoga St., Squantum.

Registration will be held Saturday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and Wednesday, Oct. 29 from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Mike Connor, intergenerational chores coordinator, will conduct registration.

Interested teens who cannot attend registration can call 376-1246 weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Shovelers will be assigned in their own neighborhoods and will be paid for their services. For more information, call the Council on Aging at the above number.

Durkin Calls Neighborhood Meeting On Shaw's Beer-Wine License Request

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

There was an unexpected glitch in Shaw's Supermarket's return to city hall Tuesday at the Quincy License Board meeting to renew its bid for a license to sell beer and wine at 474 Hancock St. store in North Quincy.

Chairman Joseph Shea said a request was made by Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin's to have a meeting with the Ward 5 Civic Association before a vote was taken.

Back in December, 1995, Shaw's appeared before the license board requesting the beer and wine license. At that time, the board continued the matter indefinitely because of some opposition.

Officials from the supermarket as well as their attorney Robert Fleming were told by chairman Joseph Shea that Durkin's request would be "honored" while Fleming's presentation would be "allowed."

Fleming said he had just found out about Durkin's request Monday.

Fleming said Shaw's had made a dramatic change and improvement in the store and said the site for the beer and wine was the "safest and most secure area of the store" as well as sensitive to the consumer.

Fleming said the "one stop" shopping is very important to shoppers when all items can be purchased in one store.

He said more than 700 notices were sent out certified mail to residents in the area, and there have been no abutters. He said this was "reflective of the customer's acceptance" to the request.

Shea said he received a letter of endorsement from Quincy 2000.

Fleming suggested Nov. 18 as the date of the meeting saying that by then all of the necessary neighborhood meetings will have been completed.

Steven Dean, youth pastor at the Church of the Nazarene said that although he was pleased with the store as a family spot for items needed, he said the selling of beer and wine send a "confusing message to teens" in suggesting that alcohol is a necessity in their lives. He said the purchase of alcohol should be 'viewed as "optional" and not a "necessity."

Shea and some board members will visit the Shaw's Supermarket in Leominster to observe how the beer and wine is situated before the next meeting.

DOVE Presents Awards At Second Annual Meeting

DOVE Inc., Quincy's non-profit organization protecting women, teens and children against domestic violence, recently held its second annual meeting at the Quincy Historical Society.

Awards were given to Mayor James Sheets, for his support of DOVE and expansion of the organization's transitional housing; and to Audrey Wilcoxen, shelter coordinator, for 14 years of devoted service.

David Adams of Emerge, an organization which counsels batterers, was the featured speaker. He reported on his studies of batterers, including their excuses for their violence against their partners. He said such excuses were rationalizations with no basis in fact.

Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke, who also spoke, told the audience that his office's commitment to protecting victims of domestic violence is second to none.

The meeting was held in October in conjunction with Domestic Violence Awareness Month. In recognition of the event, Sheets has issued a proclamation urging all citizens to work against domestic violence.

For more information about protection against domestic violence, call DOVE's adult hotline at 471-1234 or its teen hotline at 773-HURT.

AUDREY WILCOXEN (right), DOVE shelter coordinator, received an award for 14 years of service at the organization's recent annual meeting. At left is DOVE Executive Director Ann Marie Simone who presented the award.

Making life better is our life's work.℠

The calendar recognizes only a few special days a year for women. We count 365.

A woman has special health care needs, and nobody recognizes that better than our staff at Harvard Pilgrim Health Centers.

Our doctors, nurse practitioners, physician assistants and midwives work together to provide you with care that is warm, personal and professional. We're committed to understanding what's important to you; which is why you can see the ob/gyn clinician of your choice at any of our health centers, without your primary care physician's prior approval. Whether you want preventive health care, are looking for advice about planning a pregnancy, or want to know more about managing the changes that occur throughout a woman's life, your health is our primary concern.

Of course, no matter which health center you choose, you'll find everything conveniently located under one roof – including a lab, pharmacy and x-ray services. More important than convenience, however, is the relationship between you and your doctor. A relationship of trust, nurtured through a practice of total, responsive care. It's the foundation of every Harvard Pilgrim Health Center.

Celebrating Good Moves

(NAPS)—America is a nation on the move—literally. According to their latest Census Bureau data available, about 17 percent of the population—42,800,000 people—packed up and moved in 1991.

While some people move across the country, two-thirds of the moves in America don't even cross county lines.

Wherever one may move, however, a new home is one of life's major milestones. Relocation often signifies a fresh start and a reason for celebration, such as buying a house, landing a new job or retiring from an old one.

Whatever the reason for the move, a new survey conducted by Bruskin/Goldring Research for the American Floral Marketing Council (AFMC) found that two-thirds (66 percent) of Americans help their friends and loved ones celebrate a move by giving them housewarming gifts.

Survey respondents were also asked which would be the best gift with which to celebrate a move. At the top of the list were gifts that make a new place feel more like home, specifically decorative items (45 percent) and flowers or a plant (31 percent).

Top housewarming gifts include decorative items for the home, flowers, and plants.

While moving is exciting, it's often chaotic as well. Flowers or a plant can provide a moment of calm during the transition. Placed on the new mantle or even atop a packing box, they add instant beauty and visual relief amidst the chaos.

"A housewarming gift of flowers or a plant is even more special when it comes as a surprise. Getting flowers really lifts the spirits and relieves the drudgery of unpacking," says AFMC chairman Paul Bachman. "Flowers let those who've moved know you're thinking of them and makes a new environment feel more welcoming—even if it's filled with boxes!"

BankBoston Donates $10,000 To Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services Project

Responding to the need for affordable housing opportunities for homeless veterans, BankBoston has awarded a $10,000 grant to Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services (NHS) to help fund the Veterans Home, a single-room occupancy resident for homeless veterans.

The grant supports the NHS' joint venture with the City of Quincy and the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (Father Bill's Place) to create permanent housing for eight veterans as a first step toward their self-sufficiency.

"BankBoston is proud of its history as a strong supporter of efforts to provide safe and affordable housing in Quincy," said BankBoston Regional President Kevin Bryant. "This project is a shining example of what a partnership among concerned community players can produce for the neediest among us."

Many BankBoston volunteers prepared and painted a room in conjunction with the "Adopt a Room" phase of the project. At the home's dedication this fall, a commemorative plaque will be hung in that room in recognition of their generous contribution of time and effort.

Quincy NHS is a non-profit affordable housing development corporation active in Quincy since 1981. The unique partnership between NHS and the city's Sheltering Coalition was formed in 1995, when NHS acquired and rehabilitated a three-bedroom home subsequently turned over to Fr. Bill's for use as a group home for working women from the shelter. Later that year, the NHS took over the search to find a home for the alarming number of homeless veterans who sought shelter at Father Bill's.

When a suitable building in downtown Quincy became available, NHS began the construction and rehabilitation project which has been turned over to Fr. Bill's for a veterans home. The location is ideal for low income individuals because of its proximity to a mass transit system which can put the veterans in touch with numerous employment opportunities.

Normand Grenier, executive director of Quincy NHS, praised BankBoston's financial support of the Veterans Home. "Only through contributions like this are we able to provide permanent housing opportunities for those formerly homeless," Grenier said.

For more information about the project, contact Grenier at (617) 770-2227 or write Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, 300 Newport Ave., North Quincy, MA 02171.

Tips For Your Home Inspection

When you're in the process of selling your home, it's only natural to want to sell it as quickly as possible while getting the best deal for it.

The presale home inspection is usually a key factor added into the real estate transaction equation, but the length and timing of the inspection may play a factor in determining your best interests as the seller.

In some cases, inspections can cause a deal to fall through. Therefore, sellers prefer buyers to perform their inspections as fast as possible--usually between seven to 14 days after signing the contract--to know for sure whether or not the sale will go through.

If you're selling in a seller's market, some buyers will make offers without an inspection contingency to stay ahead of competitive buyers for a listing. In fact, some of these buyers even pay to have the property inspected before they make a single offer.

As a seller, you may want to think twice before accepting an offer without an inspection contingency. Perhaps the wisest approach is to hire an inspector to inspect your home before you put it on the market. This way, you can catch and make repairs to any problems before dealing with any buyers. This, in turn, will allow potential buyers to obtain a written report about your home's repairs.

A well-inspected property can protect both the buyer and seller, and as your ERA real estate associate, I can help set up an inspection for you. For any questions you may have about presale inspections or any other real estate needs, feel free to call me at 328-1312.

JULIE ELIZABETH WHITE, dressed as "Annie," shared honors for Best Overall in the Under 5 Category of the Children's Costume Contest during annual Harvest Family Festival on Sunday sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Harvest Festival Draws Crowds Despite Weather

The seventh annual Harvest Family Festival sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association on Sunday was a great success, according to QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning.

"If the weather had been with us, it would have been spectacular," she said. "But the weather wasn't with us, so it was just excellent. Really, we had a great crowd."

As an indication of the crowd size, Manning noted that representatives from Quaker Oats made more than 250 bowls of oatmeal and gave away more than 2,000 samples.

Local merchants also did well at the festival, she added.

"For instance, business at Luigi's was brisk; they sold lots of hamburgers and hot dogs," said Manning. "I'm told Values Galore did twice as much as they do on an average Sunday. And (City Councillor) Mike Cheney, already looking forward to the next big event in Quincy Center, sold some tickets for First Night Quincy."

More than 180 children participated in the popular Children's Costume Parade judged by local business representatives.

Winners in the costume contest's Over 5 category were: Katryn Jackson, South Shore Charter School, "Michael Jackson," Funniest; Katelyn Curry, Lincoln-Hancock School, "Harvest Table," Most Creative; Adrienne Terra, John F. Kennedy School, "Mother Nature," Prettiest; Gill Mannion, Ross School, "Frankenstein," Scariest; and Stephanie Raymond, South Shore Charter School, "Cruella," Best Overall.

Winners in the contest's Under 5 category: Tyler Gagnon, Della Chiesa Nursery, "Hobo," Funniest; Nicole Navarro, Babette Nursery, "Harvest Witch," Most Creative; Amanda Baker, South Shore Day Care, "Princess," Prettiest; Devin Charvest, Pre-School, "Vampire," Scariest; and Julia Elizabeth White and Roger White, Salvation Army Pre-School, "Annie" and "Daddy Warbucks," Best Overall.

Other competitions included the Painted Pumpkin Contest and Apple Recipe Contest.

Winners in the Pumpkin Contest: Stephen Linsky, Best Over 5; Jennifer and Stephen Ritchie, Best Under 5; Eric Still, Tori Laing, Joseph Crimmins and Mark Paul, all honorable mention. All are Quincy residents.

Co-winners in the Apple Contest, both Quincy residents, were Norine Williams and Lynn Clark.

THIS LITTLE "WITCH," Nicole Navarro from the Barbette Nursery School, won Most Creative Costume in the Under 5 Category on Sunday.

PAIGE KEENAN, 5, of Squantum, dressed as "Ariel" in "The Little Mermaid," awaits judging at during Sunday's annual Children's Costume Parade.

GILL MANNION, dressed as "Frankenstein," won the Scariest Costume award in the Under 5 Category of the Children's Costume Contest during the annual Harvest Family Festival on Sunday sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

TYLER GAGNON of the Della Chiesa Nursery, dressed as a "Hobo," won the Funniest Costume award in the Under 5 Category of the Children's Costume Contest during the annual QCBPA Harvest Family Festival.

Preserved Wood: The Right Choice

(NAPS)—Have you ever wondered why your lumber dealer advises you to use "treated wood" when building your deck or garden projects? That's because pressure treatment prevents destruction of the wood by its natural enemies: fungal decay and termites. Properly treated lumber will last for decades in outdoor applications.

What treatment goes into the wood? The lumber for most garden and deck projects is protected by a preservative solution formulated in accordance with strict industry standards. The preservatives used in treating wood are naturally occurring compounds combined into a highly effective water-based preservative concentrate. Part of the preservative used is recycled from mining wastes, providing a beneficial product from a waste material.

The preservative concentrate is diluted at wood preserving plants to contain 95- to 99-percent water, and then used to treat and preserve the wood. In the pressure-treating process, bundles of wood are placed in a large cylinder. A vacuum process removes air from the wood. Then the sealed cylinder is filled with preservative and pressure applied to force the solution deep into the wood's structure. Modern treating plants are closed systems designed and operated to protect the environment.

When in contact with the wood, the preservatives react to form a bond with the wood. The permanency of this bonding process has been demonstrated in more than 50 years of tests by various scientists and government agencies.

Independent quality control inspection agencies assure quality of preserved wood; look for their symbol on the ink stamp or end tag on each piece of preserved wood. All of these steps provide assurance to consumers that they are getting a safe and reliable building product. When you purchase preserved wood for your next project, be sure to ask your retailer or supplier for a copy of the Consumer Information Sheet outlining proper use and handling procedures. Using preserved wood extends the service life of wood and helps to conserve forest resources.

For more information about preserved wood products, call the American Wood Preservers Institute at 1-800-356-AWPI, or check out the web site www.awpi.org on the Internet for lots more useful information.

NEWS OF SAFETY

Carbon Monoxide: Are Your Protected?

(NAPS)—Carbon monoxide poisoning is the leading cause of accidental poisoning deaths, killing 1,500 people each year and causing another 10,000 illnesses, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

It is known as the "silent killer" because it is odorless, colorless and tasteless.

And while 90 percent of American homes have smoke alarms, only 14 to 18 percent have carbon monoxide alarms, according to home safety statistics.

The good news is a new breakthrough in technology that provides protection from carbon monoxide and smoke in one unit.

The new alarm is from First Alert, which introduced the residential smoke alarm about 30 years ago. The First Alert Combination Smoke and Carbon Monoxide Alarm is designed to warn of both home fires and elevated carbon monoxide levels, eliminating the need to install two separate units.

"Everybody should be protected from smoke and carbon monoxide in their home," said Chief Rich Marinucci, president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs. "We recommend that protection (an alarm) from smoke and carbon monoxide be placed on every level of the home and outside of the sleeping areas."

Any malfunctioning fuel-burning appliance can cause carbon monoxide to build up in the home, including a furnace, water or space heater, fireplace, gas stove or oven, a car left running in an attached garage or appliances that operate on flammable fuels such as natural gas, oil, wood, charcoal, propane or kerosene.

First Alert alarms are available in most major discount stores, hardware stores and home centers.

For more information about the alarms, write First Alert, 415 N. LaSalle, Chicago, Illinois, 60610 or call (312) 337-7773.

Fall HOME IMPROVEMENT

Special Home Planning For Special Needs

The goal of the universal design is to make a room as accessible as possible for as wide a ranger of users as possible.

However, like most things in life, there are exceptions. A home owner with limited vision or mobility may require extra design changes to allow for full accommodation--especially in the kitchen, where standard design concepts are typically a barrier to usage.

Designing a kitchen for full accessibility doesn't have to be difficult, though, say the home economists at Whirlpool Corp. They suggest the following easy tips:

•Open shelving, drawers and rollout pantries are generally easier to access than traditionally cabinets.

•To better aid wheelchair accessibility, raise dishwashers 12 to 14 inches above normal and mount wall ovens approximately six inches lower.

•Design for long spans of continuous countertop so that people can drag or slide items around the kitchen rather than having to carry them from work center to work center.

•Use contrasting borders on countertops to help older or weaker eyes to find edges easier, especially in a monochromatic setting.

•Make doorways 36 instead of 32 inches wide to accommodate wheelchair access. Use door levers instead of knobs.

•Lower light switches to make them an easier reach for wheelchair users.

•Install touch-latch cabinet doors to eliminate the need to grasp knobs or pulls.

•Use lighted interiors on cabinets to aid visibility.

•Have flipper doors installed in any area that a wheelchair may have to roll under.

•If area under sink is left open for wheelchair access, wrap hot water pipes to eliminate burns and use shallow depth sink for access.

•Pull base cabinets forward six inches and lower wall cabinets to the countertop. This still provides adequate countertop space, as well as better wall cabinet access; or use 42-inch-high wall cabinets placed on the floor.

•Install easy-lift, single-handle faucets.

•Locate plug strips at the front of countertops to eliminate a potential long reach for those with limited mobility.

•Use cooktops that have staggered burners to get rid of the need to reach over a hot element.

•Install knobs that are at least 1 1/2 inches in diameter for easy grasping.

Natural Gas Supplies Ample

Ample supplies of natural gas at competitive prices will be available to meet the future energy needs of the United States, according to the American Gas Association.

"Natural gas is the consumers' best energy choice because of the excellent long-term supply outlook and the price advantage it holds over competitive energies," says Association President Michael Baly.

"America has at least a 65-year supply of natural gas at current production levels, based on the latest report of the Potential Gas Committee of the Colorado School of Mines. That report says the total U.S. recoverable natural gas resources are 1,168 trillion cubic feet."

FALL CAR CARE

Get Your Car Set For Bad Weather

(NAPS)—You may be interested in some cold hard facts about caring for your car in the cold.

One of America's most trusted car care authorities, Lucille Treganowan—who hosts a national television show, oversees two auto mechanic shops and recently published a book on car repair—offers practical tips to help you cruise through the cool weather months:

Step 1: Give Your Car the Once-Over

• Check brake lights, turn signals, the trunk light...right down to the glove box light.

LUCILLE TREGANOWAN

• Make sure you've got enough antifreeze in your cooling system. Letting it get too low can be a costly mistake.

• Check the horn (but not at midnight).

• Check the trunk for moisture or rust, which can indicate a water leak.

Step 2: Have an Auto Checkup

• Check your vehicle manufacturer's recommendations to see if a different weight oil is required for winter. You should change your car's oil every 3,000 miles or three months, whichever comes first. Shops such as Jiffy Lube can change your car's oil quickly. The service centers all feature Pennzoil brand motor oil.

• Check condition of hoses and belts. Blowing a hose or breaking a belt is bad anytime. In winter, it can be disastrous.

• Wash and wax your car to protect it during cold months.

Step 3: Better Safe than Sorry

• Keep a throw rug or towel and an old shower curtain in your car. You can use them when kneeling next to your car or getting under it.

• Keep a set of battery cables and a large flashlight with extra batteries on hand for emergencies.

• Keep basic first-aid supplies in your glove compartment.

Step 4: Words to Live By

• If your door locks have frozen, hold your key carefully over an open flame to heat it. Insert into the frozen lock as needed.

• As every driver's education teacher tells you, steer INTO a skid.

• Always, always keep your gas tank at least half full.

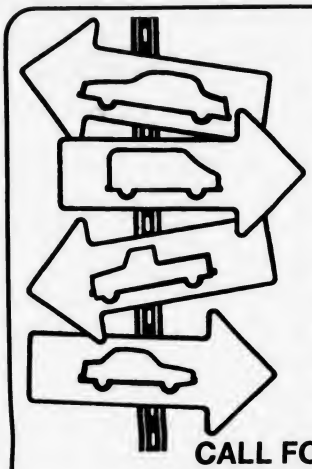
• In all, remember that winter driving requires extra attention, so brake gently, accelerate gently and steer gently.

Treganowan, owner of two shops called "Transmissions by Lucille," is also the spokeswoman for Jiffy Lube International. The company has sent her all over America to present car care advice to the public.

Jiffy Lube, which began in 1979, now has 1,470 centers in 48 states. For other interesting information about car care, visit the company's Web site at www. jiffylube.com.

Computer Program Offers Help

Here's a great way to turn your computer into a piece of car care equipment. Just slip Carley's Car Care Guide into your IBM-compatible personal computer and you'll have an electronic book at your fingertips.



It provides helpful hints and detailed instructions on all aspects of basic maintenance. It also features a huge glossary of technical terms.

In addition, there are articles on technical subjects of current interest, such as anti-lock brakes (ABS), air bags, emissions, computerized engine controls and many more.

The Car Care Guide, an MS-DOS program that can also be run under Windows, comes on a 1.44 MB, 3.5-inch diskette. It requires a mouse, VGA or SVGA color monitor and hard drive.

You can order your guide by sending a check or money order for $14.95 to Car Care Council, Dept. WE7-CCG, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Fuel, Water Assistance Applications Available

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) is accepting applications for fuel assistance and sewer and water assistance.

Braintree, Milton, Quincy and Weymouth residents who need help in paying home heating bills may be eligible for the federally funded fuel assistance program. Homeowners may also be eligible for sewer and water assistance, a state-funded program.

Appointments are necessary for new applicants.

For fuel assistance, homeowners and renters may be eligible. Eligibility is based upon household size and income. In determining income, QCAP uses an applicant's last four weeks of information.

All types of heat covered with the program - oil, gas, electric, and cases in which heat is included in the rent. The amount of benefit provided to each household also depends upon both income level and household size.

For sewer and water assistance, the amount of benefit provided is equal to 25 percent of the annual water and sewer bill, or $200, whichever is less.

Program recipients are also eligible for:

- 33 percent discount on Mass. Electric bills.
- 20 percent discount on Boston Gas bills.
- 40 percent discount on Boston Edison bills.
- $9.50 discount on monthly telephone bills.

For more information on fuel assistance or water and sewer assistance, call 479-8181 ext. 101.

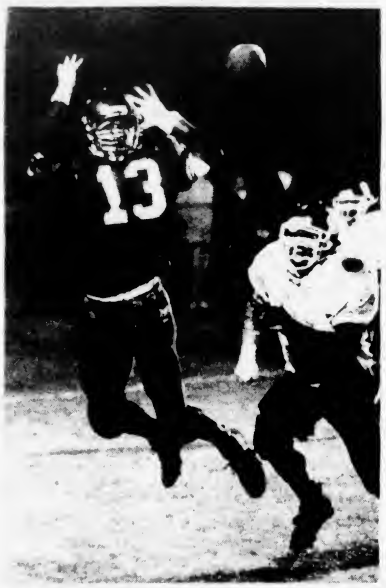
Hosts Winless D-Y Friday

Bregoli, Defense Keys To Raiders' Big Win Over Taunton, 22-8

By LIAM FITZGERALD

For a team that has struggled through the early part of the season, last Friday's 22-8 victory over visiting Taunton was just what the North Quincy High School football team needed.



Following the Old Colony League win, the Red Raiders presented the game ball to assistant coach Pete Zoia, a member of the first North Quincy High football team in 1933 who celebrated his 80th birthday earlier in the week.

The Red Raiders, which improved to 2-2 in the OCL and 2-3 overall, look to climb up to the .500 mark when they host OCL foe Dennis-Yarmouth (0-5, 0-6) Friday night at 7 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Through six games, D-Y has yielded 223 points (37.2 points per game) and scored just 64 (10.7 ppg), but NQ head coach Ken McPhee is not about to let the Red Raiders look past this week's opponent.

"This is a game we should win, but we have to go out and make it happen," said McPhee. "They're going to be sky-high, thinking we're the one team they can beat."

North will be shorthanded, as senior tri-captain Kevin Bowes will miss his second straight game with a badly sprained ankle. Senior Matt Allen has stepped in at offensive and defensive tackle for Bowes. North will also be without sophomore linebacker Brian Deptula, who will sit out with a case of mononucleosis after making five tackles for losses in last Friday's victory.

NORTH QUINCY'S MIKE Powers, who caught a touchdown and collected his fourth interception in the win over Taunton, leaps to break up a pass. The NQ defense was the story of the game, recording two sacks, a fumble recovery and three interceptions.

In the win over Taunton, the NQ's offense could not get in gear early, while the defense stifled the Tigers' throughout the game.

The Tigers (1-3, 1-4-1) threatened on their second possession but came up empty. NQ's Mike Douglas sacked Ryan Colton (3-of-13, 32 yards) for a nine-yard loss, setting up a 41-yard field goal that sailed wide left.

The North defense stood tall on Taunton's next drive, highlighted by a Dan Toland sack and a fumble recovery by Douglas at North's 23-yard line. Subsequently, NQ's offense began to click, sparked by senior running back Jay Turner (21 carries, 138 yards). Turner raced 18 yards on the first play, followed by junior quarterback Chris Bregoli's 39-yard pass to senior wide receiver Mark Stanton to Taunton's 16.

Senior fullback Mike Powers (10 carries, 55 yards) then rumbled 11 yards to the five. Three plays later, Bregoli connected with senior tight end Frank McNamara (five catches) on a four-yard touchdown pass. North led, 6-0, at the break.

North opened up some breathing room in the third when Bregoli (9-of-19, 115 yards) completed a 14-yard touchdown pass to Powers, who provided the drive's highlight when he dragged Taunton defenders en route to a 28-yard run. Turner caught the two-point conversion from Bregoli.

"I was pleased with how Bregoli came out in the second half and took what the defense gave him," said McPhee.

Taunton's next two possessions resulted in interceptions--one by Turner, the other by McNamara. The pick by McNamara was followed by a 12-play, 84-yard drive that culminated in Bregoli's three-yard touchdown run. Stanton caught the two-point conversion pass for a 22-0 lead.

The visitors got on the board when Artie Brown returned the ensuing kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown. Taunton converted the two-point play, but would not score again as the NQ defense tightened up (and Powers snared his fourth interception) to close out the much-needed triumph.

"We got some huge performances from our defense," said NQ defensive coordinator Sean Glennon. "We only allowed 12 yards of offense in the first half and 62 for the game, which is tremendous."

Glennon commended the outstanding performances of senior tri-captain nose guard Brian Wells, senior defensive backs Manny Vasquez and Matt Kane, sophomore defensive ends Toland and Brian Linskey, sophomore defensive lineman Joe Donahue, Douglas, Powers, McNamara, Deptula and Turner.

SENIOR WIDE RECEIVER Mark Stanton, one of North's most reliable receivers, corrals a two-point conversion pass from Chris Bregoli as Taunton's Mike Dunham looks away.

YOUTH FOOTBALL

Panthers, Apaches, Manets Close To Title Game

The Quincy Point Panthers, North Quincy Apaches and Houghs Neck Manets all took a big step closer to a berth in the Quincy Youth Football League Championship with victories this past Sunday.

The Panthers (4-2) will gain a spot in the Nov. 2 title game with a victory over the Milton Mustangs (0-6) in this coming Sunday's 1 p.m. game.

The winner of the 2:30 p.m. game between the Apaches (5-1) and Manets (4-2) will determine who will advance to the championship from the other division.

In the 4 p.m. game, the West Quincy Elks (4-2) take on the Squantum Storm (1-5). All games are at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Wollaston.

Last Sunday, the Panthers edged the Elks, 12-8, thanks to a diving interception by Kris Kamborian at his own one-foot line with less than 30 seconds remaining. Mike Regen made the play possible by tipping Elks' quarterback Dan Duggan's pass, which was intended for Chris Kerr in the end zone.

The Elks' powerful running game, led by Scott Kelly, Dan DiNardo and Mike Ryan, resulted in Ryan's one-yard touchdown run. DiNardo added the two-point conversion for an 8-0 halftime lead. The Panthers took the second half's opening kickoff and marched downfield, led by the strong attack of James LaFleur and Mike Lorenzano. Lorenzano hooked up with Mark Chella for a 10-yard touchdown to cut the deficit to 8-6 with 4:42 left in the third.

Regen had a strong effort, setting up the Panthers' second TD. Regen, Lorenzano and Chella did the bulk of the groundwork. The touchdown was scored on a key block from LaFleur and gave the Panthers a 12-8 lead with 4:54 left to play.

With just over three minutes left, the Elks started a drive from their own 35 with great running by Kelly and DiNardo and strong play by Duggan. Duggan then threw the pass that Kamborian intercepted to seal the huge victory. For the Panthers, Chris Bolter, Keith Ryan, Matt Hodges and Joe Whiffen were among the defensive standouts.

In other action, the Apaches recored their fifth win, a 27-8 triumph over the Mustangs. Led by QB Pat Bregoli, the Apaches' high-powered offense scored three times in the first quarter. On the Apaches' first play, Bregoli hit Joe Fitzpatrick on a 55-yard scoring pass.

On the Apaches' next possession, Bregoli pitched to Charlie Sorrento, who raced 68 yards for a touchdown and added the two-point conversion for a 14-0 lead.

Apache kicker Dave Rochon booted the ensuing kickoff deep into Mustang territory, and the Mustangs fumbled the ball away. Three plays later, Ryan Farnham scored on a 15-yard run. Rochon kicked the point after for a 21-0 halftime lead.

The Apaches opened the second half with a 45-yard touchdown run by Fitzpatrick. The Mustangs' offense mounted a good drive capped off by an eight-yared scoring run. The two-point conversion was good, closing out the scoring at 27-8.

Playing well defensively for the Apaches were Joe Burke, Charlie Vidoli, Dennis Thomson, Scott MacDonald, Kevin Holleran and Kevin Gaughan. Offensively, Chris Marinelli, Cornelius Glavin and Rochon had good games on the line while MacDonald and Vidoli ran the ball well in the second half.

In other action, the Manets defeated the Storm, 36-13. Manet QB Jordan Virtue opened up the first drive completing two of three passes to bring the Manets deep into Storm territory. Danny Galligan scored on a 10-yard touchdown run and Virtue completed the two-point conversion pass to Paul Flynn.

The Storm returned the enusing kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown, cutting the deficit to 8-6. A few plays later, Flynn broke out of the pack for an 80-yard touchdown. Later in the half, Virtue completed a long bomb to Flynn for a 70-yard touchdown, then ran it in for the two-pointer and a 22-6 halftime lead.

In the third, Jason Moore scampered 20 yards for a Manet TD. Paul McAteer intercepted a pass to give the ball back to the Manets, which took advantage with a 30-yard touchdown pass to Brian Keefe. Flynn completed the two-pointer for a 36-6 lead. Billy McKeon made a spectacular interception for the Manets. The Storm added a TD and extra point, making the final score 36-13.

The Manets' offensive line of Joe Hearn, Brian Chenette, Paul Picarski, Donnie Brooks and Andy McWalter played outstanding football. Defensively, the Manets were sparked by Jason Moore, Dan Durocher, Robbie Tatem, Bill Reid, Mike Quigley, Corey Place, Dave Grogan, Brian Malone, Chris Jacques and Keith Hartshone.

Manets Mike "More Money" Sullivan, Sean Munchbach and McAteer gained a lot of yardage on the ground and Sean Richardson caught some passes and did a good job kicking and punting. Backup QB Josh Giordani saw some action in the fourth quarter and played well in his first varsity appearance.

Tough Road Test For Presidents

Quincy Must Contain Plymouth North's 'Unusual' Offense

QUINCY'S DEFENSIVE LINE, from left, Jim Quigley, Sean Fitzpatrick, Nathan DoRosario, Dan Nichol and Steve Wiltshire, will have the task of containing Plymouth North's explosive offense before it reaches the open field. The Presidents took advantage of the bye week to study the Blue Eagles' Delaware Wing-T offense, which accumulated 258 rushing yards in a loss to Randolph last Friday.

(Sun photo/Robert Bosworth)

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The Quincy High School football team passed its first test with flying colors, winning four of is first five games, including three Old Colony League matchups.

Now comes the second test, which on paper appears to be the tougher of the two, with games at Plymouth North, Silver Lake and Barnstable and home contests against Falmouth and North Quincy.

The three road games are against teams with overall records over .500 as of this week: Plymouth North (2-2 Atlantic Coast League, 4-2 overall), Silver Lake (3-1 OCL, 5-1) and Barnstable (3-0 OCL, 4-2). The two other opponents, Falmouth (2-2 OCL, 2-4) and North Quincy (2-2 OCL, 2-3), both picked up much-needed league wins last week and look to make more noise in the weeks to come.

Will the Presidents (2-1 OCL, 4-1) be up to the task? Their head coach, Peter Chella, believes they will be, thanks to improvements across the board and talent on both sides of the ball.

"We do face some tough competition, but I think we'll be ready for the challenge," he said. "The youngsters seem to have put their mistakes behind them.

"I'm looking for more of the same, which includes going right at the opposing defenses and finding the answers when we need them."

Quincy begins its quest for a successful second half Friday night at 7 when the Presidents visit non-league foe Plymouth North, a Division 3 team in the ACL.

The Blue Eagles suffered their second league loss last Friday at the hands of undefeated Randolph (4-0 ACL, 5-0 overall). PN fell behind, 28-0, made a valiant comeback with 21 fourth-quarter points, but eventually lost, 42-21.

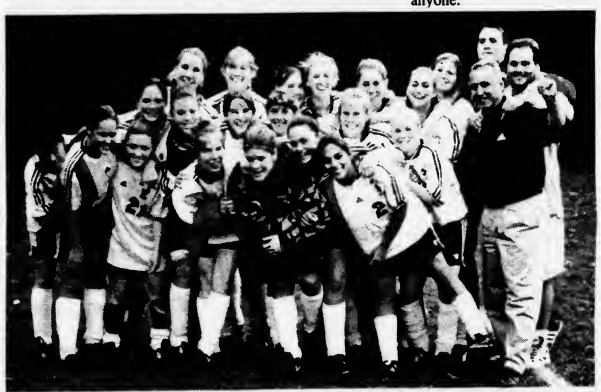
Chella attended the game and was quite impressed with the Blue Eagles' strong running attack, which accumulated 258 yards. Brett Burkhead (11 carries, 92 yards, two TD's) and Steve Huggon (13 carries, 125 yards, TD) were the Blue Eagles' catalysts.

"They have an excellent running game, which comes from the unusual offense they use, the Delaware Wing-T," he said. "There's a lot of motion, a lot of pulling and trapping. They have a lot of speed and quickness and run it well.

"We haven't seen it before, so we're taking the extra week off to study it in detail. It's a dangerous, explosive offense that can result in long touchdown runs. Hopefully we'll be able to contain it and keep the ball out of their hands."

Quincy, meanwhile, will counter with the talented trio of senior quarterback Kevin Moore (one TD pass, four TD runs), senior tailback Shaun Faherty (630 yards, seven TD's) and senior fullback Steven Maze (four TD runs).

The Presidents (1-1 on the road in '97) are confident they can play with anyone, but Chella and his staff are keeping the team's confidence at a manageable level.



"The kids are feeling good about themselves and what they've accomplished," he said, "but it's the job of the coaching staff to make sure they focus on the task ahead of them, which is Plymouth North.

"We almost got beat by Plymouth South, a team we shouldn't have had that much trouble with, so I think the kids understand that they can't overlook anyone."

Red Raider Girls Clinch First-Ever Tourney Berth

Flynn's Two Goals Lift NQ Over D-Y

GIRLS' SOCCER

THE NORTH QUINCY girls' soccer team and coaching staff celebrate the Red Raiders' tournament-clinching victory over Dennis-Yarmouth. At right in the dark shirt is head coach Paul Bregoli, who guided North to its first tournament appearance in the team's 20th year of existence.

For the first time in the its 20-year history, the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team qualified for tournament play with a 2-0 win over visiting Dennis-Yarmouth last Thursday.

"The reaction from around the city has been phenomenal," said NQ head coach Paul Bregoli after his team improved to 7-5-4 with the victory. "Teachers, students, football players, everyone is calling to congratulate us on a job well done.

"The girls are absolutely thrilled and I'm proud of all of them. They worked so hard and deserve what they've gotten. I said before the season that this could be our breakthrough year and to the girls' credit, it has been. It's been a great season, and if we keep it up, we could go far in the tournament."

Before they turn their attention to tournament play, the Red Raiders take on crosstown rival Quincy Saturday at 7 p.m. in the regular season finale for both teams. The NQ-Q boys' soccer game is at 5 p.m. Both will be played at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In the victory over D-Y, the visitors controlled play early until North senior tri-captain forward Laurie Flynn scored the first of her two goals (her 10th and 11th of the season) at the six-minute mark. Pressure by NQ junior forward Betsy Stone forced a turnover, followed by a pass from senior tri-captain mid Kristen Keohane to sophomore mid/forward Ashley Murphy, who fed Flynn for the goal.

"That is the key to us scoring goals--teamwork," said Bregoli. "All four girls worked for that goal, and when we do that consistently, we're tough to beat."

The Red Raiders maintained the slim lead for most of the game, thanks in part to the stalwart defensive play of freshman Jen Conley. Mids Dorothy Cronin, a junior, and Kellee Conley, a freshman, along with Keohane, who shut down D-Y's best player, Leah Stone, also drew the praise of their coach.

Finally, with 5:45 left in the game, the Red Raiders added to their lead when freshman mid Stacy Szcesuil booted a corner kick which Flynn headed by the keeper.

North junior keeper Kristen Bowes, who made six saves, preserved her eighth shutout with an incredible save late in the game.

"The ball was over her head," said Bregoli, "and almost in the net when she reached up and deflected it, then slapped it out."

In earlier action, the Red Raiders' offense got on track in a 4-0 triumph at Taunton last Tuesday. Keohane took a nice pass from Jen Conley and crossed the ball over to Cronin, who deflected it in for a 1-0 halftime lead.

North pulled away with three second-half goals, the first of which came at 13-minute mark by Cronin, who knocked in a rebound for her second goal of the game. At the 31-minute mark, sophomore mid Jill Nicholson, who played with a strained hamstring, took a great pass from Stone and beat the keeper from eight yard out. Flynn closed out the scoring when she stole a clearing pass, broke in alone and banged it in for her ninth goal.

"We hadn't scored in three-and-a-half games, so that first goal was a huge relief," said Bregoli. "It took the pressure off and we were a lot more at ease after it."

Meanwhile, the Red Raiders' junior varsity girls' soccer team has compiled an impressive 8-3-4 record. The season finale was slated for yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. against visiting rival Quincy.

NQ has been led by the solid defensive play of Laura Hamilton, Caitlin Powers, Rachel O'Hara and Corrine Sullivan. Other standouts include mids Kristin Coughlin and Kathlyn Gates and goalkeeper Rima Ashmanskas. Leading scorers are Lauren Awed (10 goals) and freshman Colleen Lahar (seven goals). Lauren Pizzi and Jenelle Hersey lead the team in assists with five apiece.

Coaches Mark Scanlan and Frank O'Donahue credit the team's exceptional work ethic and cohesiveness as the keys to their success. Both coaches expect big things from the team in the years to come.

Presidents Secure Fourth Straight Tourney Berth

VOLLEYBALL

For the fourth consecutive year and 10th time in head coach Tom Henderson's 13 years at the helm, the Quincy High School girls' volleyball clinched a tournament berth Monday with a 2-0 win over host Plymouth North.

"We're getting more consistency in our last few matches, which is a good sign at this time of year," said Henderson after the Presidents secured their third consecutive victory and fifth in their last six matches. "We're also getting contributions from a lot of players, which you need if you want to advance in the tournament."

The Presidents (9-5) still have four regular season matches left, beginning with visiting Falmouth yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. Whitman-Hanson comes to town Friday at 4 p.m., then Quincy travels to Durfee next Monday at 4 p.m.

The regular season finale promises to be a memorable match when Quincy hosts rival North Quincy next Tuesday at 7 p.m. The Red Raiders swept the first meeting, 2-0, on its home court Oct. 2.

Leading the way for Quincy in the 15-8, 15-6, tournament-clinching triumph over Plymouth North was senior Erin Barry (six kills, three digs).

Last Friday, the Presidents rolled past visiting New Bedford, 15-7, 15-9, sparked by the performances of Barry (11 kills, seven digs, four blocks), senior Karen Goldrick (five kills, one ace, five digs) and freshman Jacqui Niosi (19 assists, one ace, two digs).

"That was a big win over New Bedford, because it was the first time we beat them in the five years we've played them," said Henderson. "Hopefully we'll use it as a springboard to bigger and better things."

In a 15-2, 15-1 triumph over visiting Plymouth South last Wednesday, the Presidents were paced by sophomore Colleen Nichol (three kills, two blocks), senior Mary Chenette (three aces, two digs) and Niosi (12 assists, three aces).

NQ's Ross Will Bring Hoop Skills To BC

Brian Ross, a 6-8, 220-pound forward on the North Quincy High School basketball team, will bring his talents to Boston College next fall, announcing his decision last Wednesday to become an Eagle.

Ross, an All-Scholastic power forward, averaged 23 points, 11 rebounds, three blocks and five assists a game last season as a junior.

North Quincy coach Ted Stevenson said playing in the Big East and staying close to home were the deciding factors for Ross, who chose BC over Boston University, Northeastern, New Hampshire, St. Bonaventure, Marist, Rider, Holy Cross and Wichita State.

"It was a tough decision, because there were a few schools he really liked," said Stevenson. "Once BC came into the picture, it became the front-runner.

"You can't get much bigger than the Big East, and he'll get a great education on a beautiful campus not far from home. It has all he wants, and I'm very happy for him."

Ross became the first NQ player under Stevenson, now in his 11th year at the helm, to sign a Div. 1 scholarship. The last NQ basketball player, according to Stevenson, to sign with a Div. 1 school was Mark Jellison, who did so with Northeastern in 1974.

"This doesn't happen often, obviously, and he's worked very hard for it," said Stevenson. "He and his parents are relieved the long process of deciding on a school is finally over."

Stevenson was impressed with the response new BC coach Al Skinner gave when Ross asked how he could improve his skills during his senior season.

"Coach Skinner told Brian, 'Go back, have a great senior year, enjoy it, go to the prom and have fun, then worry about BC afterwards, when all that is done,'" said Stevenson. "That shows he's really interested in Brian beyond his basketball career."

With one season remaining as a Red Raider player, NQ's coach hopes his go-to guy has a successful campaign to conclude his high school career.

"He's going to be our main man down low this year," said Stevenson. "If he keeps working hard on his game, he'll become even better when he leaves for BC.

"Since they don't have many upperclassmen, they'll be looking for big things from him, and I think they'll like what they find in Brian."

Woodward Soccer Team Ties Cambridge, 2-2

In a 2-2 tie with the Cambridge School, the Woodward soccer team twice had a one-goal lead, only to see the visitors rally to even the score.

Woodward took a 1-0 lead when Stacey Queripel scored a goal 17 minutes into the game. Cambridge knotted the score at 1-1 with a goal in the final minute of the first half.

Janet McNamara put Woodward back in the lead with a goal 23 minutes into the second half. Three minutes later, Cambridge again tied the game.

Playing strong games for Woodward were goalkeeper Danielle Gatto, with 16 saves, along with co-captain Stephanie Queripel, Audrey Ferguson and Kathleen Hester.

A Happy 80th Birthday To North Quincy's 'No. 20'

GUESTS SIGNED A huge birthday card when they arrived at Pete Zoia's 80th birthday party. Zoia and his wife, Elaine, pose by the card.

THREE FORMER QUINCY High School football players and good friends of Pete Zoia were on hand for the tribute. With him here, from left, are Vin Moscardelli, former Central Junior High School principal; Mario (Mike) Cassali, former Central coach and Guido (Budsy) Pettinelli, former Quincy public school safety officer.

NORTH QUINCY HEAD football coach Ken McPhee, former Quincy High School head coach Jack Raymer and Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth, a Quincy High School graduate, were among those wishing Pete Zoia a happy 80th.

TWO FORMER FOOTBALL rivals, Bill Sullivan, longtime Quincy High School coach and Nick Malvesti, former Quincy three-sport star, flank Pete Zoia at his birthday tribute.

NORTH QUINCY HIGH School Principal Peter Chrisom, right, and Assistant Principal Eileen Feeney presented Pete Zoia (second from left) with a North Quincy football helmet decorated with the No. 20, his name and "Mr. North Quincy." At left is Steve Moynihan, former director of business affairs for Quincy Public Schools and a former North Quincy football player.

THE BIRTHDAY CAKE at Pete Zoia's birthday bash, which was decorated with the number 20 and read "Happy Birthday Pete" almost looked too good to eat--but not quite.

Over 200 Attend Party For 'Mr. North Quincy'

NQ Football Legend Pete Zoia Honored At 80th Birthday Gala

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Teammates and opponents alike came to honor Mr. North Quincy, Pete Zoia, a man who transcends all rivalries, at his recent 80th birthday celebration.

The festivities, which were held at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall, were attended by more than 200 people from across the city, state and country, including Zoia's wife of 58 years, Elaine, their 13 children, 27 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mayor James Sheets proclaimed the day, Monday, Oct. 13, as "Pete Zoia Day in the City of Quincy."

Zoia, a member of the first North Quincy High School football team in 1933 and currently an assistant coach, expressed his gratitude to those who made the event so special for he and his family.

"It was beautiful--definitely a highlight of my life," he said. "We had a great time, and I'm so thankful for everything everyone did for me.

"It brought back a lot of nice memories, and I got to see all my old friends, guys that played with me and others I coached. Even guys I played against, they're all good friends of mine. I never made an enemy, I don't think."

A two-time All-Scholastic halfback and captain of the 1935 Red Raiders, Zoia extended his gratitude to current North Quincy head football coach Ken McPhee, who presented Zoia with his framed No. 20 jersey to be displayed in the North Quincy gymnasium.

Zoia also received two framed pictures from the North coaching staff and cards signed by North's coaches, players and boosters.

"Ken always praises me; he's a great booster," said Zoia, who noted that McPhee was the first North football players to receive the Peter J. Zoia Jr. Scholarship, named in honor of Zoia's late son who succumbed to Hodgkin's disease in 1966 at the age of 14. "All the players seem to know my history, because he never lets them forget about the past, which is great."

Among the other gifts bestowed upon Zoia was a North Quincy football helmet decorated with the No. 20, his name and "Mr. North Quincy," a present from North Quincy Principal Peter Chrisom and Assistant Principal Eileen Feeney.

"What a beautiful trophy that is," marveled Zoia, a 1936 graduate of North Quincy High School. "The school has been so great to me and I'm so glad they were able to share this day with me."

The North Quincy band serenaded Zoia with a rendition of "On North Quincy" and "Rah North Quincy," the latter Zoia called the "real North Quincy fight song, because it was written by North Quincy teachers. The other is not the original."

One of Zoia's granddaughters, Tracey Beaulieu, entertained the audience with a song, "Hey, Pete Zoia!" and later led the Zoia-ettes in another tune, "These Are A Few Of Pete's Favorite Things."

Among those in attendance were Jack Raymer, former Quincy head football coach; Bill Sullivan, longtime Quincy head football coach; Zoia's nephew, Dave Burke, former North Quincy head football coach; Nick Malvesti, former Quincy three-sport standout and Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth, a Quincy High School graduate.

Other attendees included Steve Moynihan, former North Quincy football player; Vin Moscardelli, former Central Junior High School principal; Mario (Mike) Cassali, former Central coach and Guido (Budsy) Pettinelli, former Quincy public school safety officer.

Four players Zoia coached at Quincy Point Junior School, Dinny DiNardo, Frank Lommano, Dick Salvaggio and Bob Pettinelli, came to renew old acquaintances and wish their former coach well on his birthday.

"I hadn't seen them in years, so it was wonderful to see them again," said Zoia. "Those were great times; I enjoyed coaching them and hope they enjoyed playing for me."

While he shares numerous friendships with former Quincy players and coaches, Zoia makes special mention of his perfect record against the Presidents during his playing days.

"We never lost to them while I was on the team, and I'm quite proud of that fact," said the Quincy High School-North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame member, adding that he hopes this year's squad can snap the three-game losing streak against the Presidents.

Zoia played football for a total of 16 years, including 13 years with the Quincy Varsity Club semipro team and North Quincy Alumni Team. He later coached those squads, in addition to Quincy Point Junior and North Quincy Junior's teams. He also covered high school games for the Quincy Ledger and Quincy Sun.

Now that he's 80, does he have any plans to retire?

"I'll retire after we beat Quincy," he said with a smile. "I intended to retire last year, but that didn't happen. I still enjoy going out on the field every day and helping out, and if my legs hold up, who knows how long I'll hang around. Hopefully for a while longer."

COOLING THE ENGINE

A car's cooling system relies on a water pump to circulate the anti-freeze/water mixture between the engine and radiator. When the engine is cold, the coolant only circulates within the engine so that it may warm up faster. At about 195 degrees Fahrenheit, the coolant heats the thermostat (located at the engine outlet or at the inlet to the water pump) to the point at which it opens to allow coolant to flow to the radiator. The radiator cap utilizes a pressure valve to raise the pressure in the cooling system about 15 psi to raise the boiling point about 40 degrees. Thus, the boiling point of a 50/50 mixture of antifreeze and water will be about 265 degrees Fahrenheit in a well-functioning system.

HINT: Because the corrosion protection afforded the aluminum components in your car's cooling system by red and green antifreeze is used up in about two years, the system should be flushed and treated to new antifreeze every two years.

Our ASE Certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO will do their part in making sure your car is properly maintained, whether it is something as simple as a tune-up to more complex engine work. SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

YOU TELL ON YOURSELF

You tell on yourself by the friends you seek,
By the very manner in which you speak,
By the way you employ your leisure time,
By the use you make of dollar and dime...

You tell what you are by the things you wear,
By the spirit in which your burdens bear,
By the kind of things at which you laugh,
By the records you play on the phonograph...

You tell what you are by the way you walk,
By the things of which you delight to talk,
By the manner in which you bear defeat,
By so simple a thing as how you eat...

By the books you choose from the well-filled shelf;
In these ways you more, or less, tell on yourself...
So there's really no particle of sense,
In the effort to keep up FALSE PRETENSE...*

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A friend may keep you waiting for a scheduled appointment early in the week. Some people you'll be dealing with are evasive and hard to pin down. A home appliance may need replacing when it breaks down this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Travelers may meet with unexpected delays. Rumors and hearsay make it hard to know what to believe. Red tape and inconsequential matters could keep you occupied later in the week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You are inconsistent this week in your dealings with others and could incur unfavorable reactions from those around you. A friend who drops by this weekend could overstay his or her welcome.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's not a good week for gambling or other risk-taking. You could meet with unexpected expenses in your pursuit of pleasure this weekend. Instead, accent home life.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A person who keeps changing his or her mind is hard to deal with in business this week. A work concern from the past may still be unresolved. Be patient.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You and a relative may not agree about a domestic matter this week. Be leery of overpriced items while out shopping. Ask for help if you need it regarding a work project.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's not a good week for financial risk-taking. Also, be careful not to misplace a credit card. A partner could be reluctant to follow your lead on a concern.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're likely to get conflicting advice this week. Rely on your own gut instinct. It could be hard to plan social events this weekend when others delay making decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You could find a close partner unpredictable and hard to fathom this week. Surprise events cause a change in your work schedule. An adviser is unduly negative.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You may have to say no to someone's request for financial assistance. A pressing work matter could take precedence over socializing over the weekend and plans are subject to change.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your concentration tends to wander this week. Change involve travel plans made a while ago. You're likely to opt for time by yourself over socializing this weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Conservative tactics are best in business this week. Avoid unconventional moves. One person you'll be dealing with is very close-mouthed.
